FAITH AND WORK

By EARLE FRAZIER, ACSW

Executive Director

Paul was giving some people a not-so-gentle tongue-lashing for their quarrel-someness about who gets the credit. Then he put the whole matter to rest: "The one who plants and the one who waters really does not matter. It is God who matters, because He makes the plant grow." So there!

There is a most important lesson here for us would-be helpers and, like most important lessons, a very hard lesson which must be learned over and over. The most we can hope for is to become good laborers. We can never be lord of the harvest. Our passionate, well-intentioned desire to help not-with-standing, we can only offer help. The result of our offering is out of our hands.

At Barium Springs Home for Children we regularly try to evaluate our labors. At times, it seems we have done a really sound piece of work but Alice leaves seemingly none the better off for our efforts. What went wrong? Then we recognize all sorts of mistakes made with Judy who progresses nicely. What went right? All would-be helpers—ministers, teachers, physicians, parents—have experienced both sides of this puzzle. Yet we go on claiming credit when it goes right and assigning blame (or feeling guilty) when it goes wrong. How can we learn to perform our particular task as best we know how and not quarrel with what God does with our planting and watering? That's hard to do!

I recall as a boy being sent to plow and always having to answer to my father for any sloppy work. But when my work was acceptable, my responsibility ended. Neither rain nor wind nor crows not insects nor any other of the multitude of things affecting the harvest was my responsibility. I was never blamed for a poor crop. Come to think of it, neither was I given any credit for a good harvest. He who plants and waters and plows really does not matter.

Should we would-be helpers be blamed or credited—held accountable? By all means! But only for the quality of our work; never for what God—or man—makes of it.

Whatever you have received more than others—in health, in talents, in ability, in success, in a pleasant childhood, in harmonious conditions of home life—all this you must not take to yourself as a matter of course. In gratitude for your good fortune, you must render some sacrifice of your own life for another life.

- Albert Schweitzer

Kate McCallum Taylor

June 14, 1904 — January 2, 1980

"Work is love made visible." — Gibran
We saw love in her tireless work.

"You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are shot forth . . . even as He loves the arrow that flies, so He loves the bow that is stable." — Gibran

We traveled far because of her strength and stability.

— Proverbs 17:17a

She was our true friend.

May we celebrate her life fully mindful of our debt and let Kate Taylor's love, work and strength find expression through us for so long as we shall live.

Special Investment Program

We are pleased to list new members and renewals to Barium's Special Investment Program. Gifts from business firms and foundations are not included.

For many this is the eighth year you have been on this list. Some do not make the larger gift every year but continue to give regularly. Thank you.

But whether you make a large gift . . . a small gift . . . one gift

. . . or many gifts—you are important to the young people at Barium Springs Home for Children.

We encourage you to continue your generous support in 1980. Please remember, there are no small, no unappreciated, no unimportant gifts when the gift is used to help others. And a gift to Barium does help others . . . troubled youngsters . . . troubled families.

To Troubled Teens At Barium

Because you care . . . about others. And you give to Barium Springs Home for Children because you believe in what we are doing to help troubled youngsters and families. You believe that the strength of our country depends on a strong viable citizenry willing to forego personal luxuries, that others less fortunate may have an opportunity to become contributing members of our society. You know how important strong family relationships are as a training ground for effective citizenship. You know Barium Springs has solid innovative programs to help strengthen the family. You know how important your prayers and your gifts are to us.

And because you are important to us—and we believe we are important to you too—Bee Quest wants to suggest ways you can help us and, at the same time, result in tax savings for you.

You are probably aware that every dollar you give to us is tax deductible. Congress has enacted legislation to provide tax benefits to encourage generous support of family service agencies such as Barium Springs. The value of your deduction depends on your tax rate. For example, if you are in the 30% tax bracket, a gift to us of $300.00 results in a tax savings of $90.00; a gift of $1000.00, a tax savings of $300.00.

There are other plans which, from a tax viewpoint, may be even more attractive than outright cash gifts. Possibly you own securities or other properties which have increased substantially in value. If you sell them, a large part of the gain will be taxed; but give them to Barium and none of the gain is taxed . . . and you receive a tax deduction for the market value of the gift.

And then there is the deferred gift—a gift through your Will. By action of our Board of Regents all unrestricted bequests from our supporters are added to the Endowment and only the return on the bequest is used to meet current operating needs. In this way your bequest will continue to serve our program for many years to come. Here are two of the most frequently used forms of charitable bequests to Barium.

1. Outright Bequest. In an outright bequest anything you own may be left to us, to be used in a specific manner if you so designate, or as directed by our Regents. Such a bequest passes at the time of settlement directly to us for our immediate use. There are several methods for specifying an outright bequest:

- (1) A definite dollar amount.
- (2) A fraction or percentage of the total estate.
- (3) A fraction or all of the residuary estate. (That part of the estate which is left after deduction of all expenses, debts, taxes and specific bequests.)
- (4) Specific property: a house, other real estate, stocks, bonds, insurance proceeds, personal property.

At the present time such bequests are exempt from Federal Estate taxes and from inheritance taxes in most states.

2. Contingent Beneficiary. There is always the possibility that the beneficiaries named in your Will may predecease you. Why not name Barium the contingent beneficiary? In the absence of a provision naming a contingent beneficiary, costly litigation may be necessary to determine those persons entitled to your estate if such a contingency does occur. A statement in your Will similar to the following would suffice: "In the event of the failure or lapse of any legacy or devise herein such that the property so bequeathed would pass by intestacy, I direct that in lieu thereof, such property shall pass to Barium Springs Home for Children, Barium Springs, N. C." Your attorney at the time you make your Will or change it should advise you as to the proper wording for such a provision.

Thank you for sharing. Please remember: You are important to troubled teens at Barium.

THANK YOU

As we start a new year, the staff and young people at Barium wish to express sincere thanks to those friends who shared with us in 1979.

Mcny of you increased your giving . . . many of you were not able to give as generously as in previous years . . . some of you were not able to send a gift this year and many of you were first time donors in 1979. But without the gifts from all of you last year and in previous years we could not have provided the services needed by our youngsters.

To those of you who mailed your gifts direct to us, we sent our letter of thanks and appreciation. To those of you who gave annonymously through your church, we take this opportunity to express our thanks.

And a special word of thanks to the ministers and church treasurers for the promotion of our Thanksgiving Offering, which is so important to us.

Our youngsters and staff wish for each of you a very meaningful and rewarding 1980.

DAY CARE SERVICES EXPANDED

The day care program of our Family and Child Development Center now offers services for infants and toddlers, in addition to its already popular activities for three and four year olds.

Sara P. Kent, director, said the program for babies is certified for ten children, ages six weeks to 24 months. There are currently eight children in the program, ranging from six weeks to 17 months. Applications for the remaining two vacancies have been approved.

The two caregivers are Mildred Daniels and Shirley Park, the latter a registered nurse.

Up to seven children can be served in the program for two year olds, where Edith Roseboro is the teacher. At present, five boys and two girls are enrolled.

Individual activities for the children are based on their needs, the directed explained. Services include skilled quality day care, indivual help in development, games and activities, and balanced meals and snacks. Play time and a rest period are also parts of the day.

Before beginning the program, caregivers in the infant-toddler areas took in-depth training. They also visited local and other day care centers to observe.

The two caregivers in the program for babies will each have five children for whom to provide specified developmental training. During the day the parent's feeding schedule for infants will be followed. Parents provide formula for the baby.

Introduction of new foods is by joint agreement between parent and caregiver. The multipurpose room for infants includes cribs, a specially designed table with infant chairs, selected toys and exercise mats, and a large play area.

A chart is kept showing the child's daily activities, feeding and important events, such as first words spoken, and is given to the parents at the end of the day.

Two year olds have games and toys selected to encourage development, and are housed in a large room with plastic sliding boards and tunnels. Activities chosen are based on the infant and toddler learning program designed by the Division of Pediatrics at the University of Cincinnati.

Their specially designed kit tells the teacher what activities can be performed for a specific area of development, then describes materials needed and how to complete it. A description of the activity is sent to the parents to encourage them to reinforce the activity.

The purpose of this unique program, said Mrs. Kent, is to foster the young child's sensory, motor, perceptual and language development.

Other students at the day care center include 20 (the capacity) three year olds, cared for by two teachers and a CETA worker, and 21 four year olds with two teachers. There is space for three more four year olds.

Indoor and outdoor (weather permitting) activities are scheduled for all of the children.

Mrs. Kent said one important part of the program is the involvement of parents who are encouraged to take an active interest in their child's activities. A parents' advisory committee formulates plans and discusses parents' wishes.

Periodically, workshops and meetings are held at the center for parents. At a recent workshop, parents discussed discipline problems. Corporal punishment is never used at the center, the director said. Instead, caregivers enforce the time-out method, in which the child is separated from the group for a short period of time.

Parents are also encouraged to come by the director's office and watch their child on a closed circuit television system. Parents can see the activities their child is taking part in, and observe the caregiver at work.

Mrs. Kent said she and staff members use the system to evaluate the program, often videotaping activities in the rooms.

The day care center is becoming a model center. Classes at Catawba Valley Technical College in Hickory send members to observe at the center. Mrs. Kent said there are plans for the center to become more active in providing a training program for day care workers.

The infant-toddler program opened with specific goals, aimed at the parents and the children. Goals for interaction with parents include helping the parents learn what the child needs and what they can do to help him grow.

For the children, goals focus on the development of a healthy body. of an active mind and of wholesome feelings.

More information about the center and its program is available from the director.

FAITH AND WORK

By Earle Frazier, ACSW

Executive Director

Jesus had a way of making simple statements sound profound. "Every tree is known by the fruit it bears." And he went on talking about not getting figs and grapes from thorns and brambles. Doesn't everybody know that? Yes-but there is this nagging feeling that the issue was not trees or fruit at all. "A good person brings good out of the treasure of good things in his heart; a bad person brings bad out of his treasure of bad things."

We would-be helpers just might need to pay attention here. Maybe what really matters in trying to help is the "treasure" within the reaches of our innermost being. Maybe this Jesus has looked right past the unimportant, right past the important and derived the crucial; else why did he not mention formal education or experience which supposedly teaches so much? What really matters is who (and what) we are.

Now right about here I get awfully troubled because this world has a need for a lot of helping. And I wonder who will do it. The only potential helpers I see are us mere humans with varying mixtures of "goodness" and "badness," strengths and weaknesses. Didn't Jesus know that? Then why did he talk as if there were two kinds of people instead of just one? Maybe he wanted each of us to get busy recognizing the "good person" and the "bad person" and do a little better job of containing the "bad person." And maybe we need to change our whole idea about helping-you know, the good helping the bad, the wise helping the foolish, the strong helping the weak or the adjusted helping the maladjusted.

Now this line of thinking is getting totally out of hand. First thing we know someone will be saying each of us would-be helpers needs to get some help. Well, maybe we do; from our parents or our children, from our ministers or our parishioners, from our teachers or our students, or from any other special friends who know us well enough and care about us enough that we can bear to look at ourselves in their mirror. Come to think about it, how else does one manage those two persons deep within each of us? No way! And how else do we learn how to help someone else? No way!

I recall a man who was known as a good person. But I knew him well enough to know that the "other guy" was there too. Did that make me respect my friend less? Quite the contrary! I have nothing but respect for one who, despite weakness, acted so consistently on strength that he was known as a good person. Is it surprising that he was a skilled—though uneducated—helper? No. "A tree is known by the fruit it bears." And goodness grows on the same twig as helpfulness.

Jesus had a way of making profound things so simple I can begin to understand . . . with a little help from my friends.

HELP!

We need your help in keeping our mailing list for the Barium Messenger up to date. We mail to a large list, about 46,000, and it is difficult and expensive to keep duplications or incorrect mailings from happening—no matter how hard we try.

You are the only one who can help us. If your household is receiving more than one copy of the Barium Messenger, or if you change your address, please let us know promptly.

To notify us of a change, just cut the current name and address from the Barium Messenger, correct it, put it in an envelope and mail to us. Thank you so much.

Fayetteville

A properly drawn Will is the instrument by which you can provide for the security and welfare of loved ones. Some of the legal terms and phrases associated with Wills may be a bit confusing for many of us.

Bee Quest, therefore, is pleased to define some of these basic terms.

WILL: Your direction in writing setting forth how you want your property distributed at death. It has no effect until your death. Any adult of sound mind, regardless of how little or how much he possesses, should have a Will.

TESTATOR: The person who makes a Will.

EXECUTOR: The person (or bank or trust company) responsible for seeing that the terms of the Will are carried out.

WITNESS: The testator is not required to sign in the presence of witnesses; however, if he signs before calling the witnesses, he must tell them that the instrument is his Will and that the signature is his. The testator must see the witnesses sign. Witnesses do not read the Will. In North Carolina two witnesses are required, but three are recommended. A witness should not receive any property in the Will.

SPECIFIC BEQUEST: A gift by Will of specific property given to another.

RESIDUARY BEQUEST: That part of the estate which is left after deduction of all expenses, debts, taxes, and specific bequests.

CONTINGENT BEQUEST: A gift by Will of any part of the estate which other beneficiaries are unable to receive because of death or other reasons.

COST: Fees may vary from $35 to $100 for a simple Will . . . a more detailed Will may cost more. Check the fee with your lawyer in advance.

SAFEKEEPING: Your Will should be kept where it can be found immediately by your executor. A good place for your Will is with your attorney. It is also a good idea to keep an unsigned copy in your own home to review from time to time for any possible changes.

PROBATE: The court proceeding which verifies the validity of the Will and insures that the terms of the Will are followed.

OTHER HELPFUL DEFINITIONS

CHARITABLE GIFTS: Gifts by Will to schools, churches, hospitals, health, welfare and other qualified charitable organizations (including Barium Springs) are not subject to the estate tax. There is an unlimited estate tax deduction for such gifts.

LIFETIME GIFTS: If you can afford to give up some of your assets now you may save estate taxes by making current gifts to family members and others. You many give as much as $3000 annually to each of as many individuals as you choose and there is no gift tax. The $3000 annual exclusion may be increased to $6000 when one spouse agrees to let the other use his/her annual exclusion.

JOINT OWNERSHIP: Property registered in the names of two persons with the survivor to be the sole owner. One-half of any community property automatically goes to the survivor and is not included in the gross estate of the first spouse to die.

GROSS ESTATE: Includes securities, tangible personal property, real property, cash, mortgages, notes, or any other assets over which the decedent retained any rights of ownership.

FEDERAL ESTATE TAX: The tax on the transfer of property at death.

TAXABLE ESTATE: Reduce the Gross Estate by deducting funeral and administration expenses, debts, the marital deduction and the charitable deduction.

MARITAL DEDUCTION: For property which passes to the spouse an estate is allowed a deduction of $250,000 or one-half the adjusted gross estate whichever is greater. Extreme care should be exercised to be sure the marital deduction is properly provided for in the Will. Remember this deduction is not automatic.

APPRECIATION: An increase in value. Stocks, real estate, paintings, art objects, rare books, coin collections, etc., often increase substantially in value. When such items are sold and the sale price is larger than the purchase price the difference is the capital gain and is subject to income tax.

TRUST: A legal instrument whereby one person (trustor) transfers title to property to another person known as the trustee who holds, invests, and administers the property for the benefit of the person(s) named in the trust agreement. Trusts may be revocable or irrevocable, simple or complex, testamentary (established by Will) or inter vivos (established while the trustor is still living). The powers of the trustee are set forth in the trust agreement and by state law. He must take whatever action a prudent man would to preserve the capital of the trust and make the property produce a reasonable income.

ESTATE PLANNING: This is the overall process of setting up a program for creating, accumulating, conserving and distributing your property for maximum benefit for yourself and loved ones. A Will is usually the key to a sound estate plan.

GIFT ANNUITY: This is a gift to Barium in return for which we pay the donor a fixed annual income for life. Donor receives a sizeable charitable deduction . . . a large portion of each annuity is tax-free.

[PLEASE REMEMBER . . . if you have no Will, your property must be disposed of according to the laws of the state in which you live. To be sure your wishes are carried out you must have a carefully drawn Will. See your lawyer; and request additional information about Wills by completing the coupon below.]

Statement of Purpose

NA CONTRACTOR OF THE CONTRACTO

(Adopted by Board of Regents on November 13, 1978)

"The problem today is not so much that people have not heard the Good News. It is that people's life experience is such that, having heard it, they cannot bring themselves to believe it."

(Alan Keith-Lucas)

Barium Springs Home for Children, an agency of the Synod of North Carolina, Presbyterian Church U.S., interprets its purpose to be:

- I. To provide a Christian ministry of love and compassion to children, youth and families who have special needs as a means of restoring complete and meaningful family functioning by:
  - A. Providing residential child care in response to defined needs in co-operation with other private and public agencies in North Carolina.
  - B. Providing day care in response to defined needs in the Statesville-Troutman area serving as a model for the churches of Synod.
  - C. Providing and/or promoting family life education and counseling in harmony with other Synod efforts to help families.
- II. In providing these basic ministries Barium Springs Home for Children will be involved in:
  - A. Developing and refining improved, innovative and creative forms, methods and techniques of helping families in cooperation with other private and public agencies.
  - B. Co-operating with other agencies and educational institutions in the development and maximum utilization of trained staff and leadership for the helping professions so long as these activities do not detract from its basic ministry (cf. I. A,B,C,) offering all services and conducting all business in such fashion that children, youth, families, staff, colleagues and others will experience the "fruit of the Spirit" (Gal. 5:22, 23) to the end that each be enabled to believe the Good News.

Barium Springs Home for Children will carry out its purpose always by maintaining an atmosphere conducive to teaching the Christian faith and transmitting to children, youth and families only those characteristics which are positive factors in their growth and development,

[Editor's Note: This first annual service issue of the Barium Messenger gives information about our purpose . . . our programs . . . our people . . . our procedures. I encourage you to keep this issue as a ready reference to remind you of what Barium Springs Home for Children is all about. Thank you.]

A Brief Background

During the latter part of the nineteenth century most denominations and many fraternal groups established orphanages for a very specific purpose: To care for orphaned children.

"The year 1883 saw the first movement on the part of Presbyterians of North Carolina, looking to the establishment of an Orphanage, for the destitute children of our church . . . The number of children seeking refuge in the home (Charlotte) increased so rapidly that the ladies . . . thought it wise to place the Home under the broad aegis of Synod . . . The removal to Barium Springs occurred January 11, 1891 . . . The children in the Home before its removal from Charlotte numbered about 25."

From: A Brief History of Our Synodical Orphans Home

Two characteristics of orphanages need mention. First, children were cared for in extremely large groups. It was not uncommon for one "matron" to be responsible for thirty, forty, or even fifty children.

"Then at 6:30 the big bell again rings . . . From Lottie Walker Building, seventy girls are headed for the dining room, forty-four small ones from Annie Louise . . . Forty-three from upstairs Rumple Hall . . . Twenty-six big boys from Jennie Gilmer, forty little boys from Synod . . . Thirty-six from Alexander . . . From Howard comes twenty-four boys . . ."

From: A Brief History of Our Synodical Orphans Home

The second outstanding characteristic of orphanages was that most children stayed for extremely long periods of time. Many came as infants and remained until graduation from high school or even college.

"The size of the graduating class has increased steadily . . . The average class now numbers 20 . . . Flora MacDonald is the most popular college for girls; Davidson for the boys."

From: Reading—'Riting—'Rithmetic By Supt. J. B. Johnston

Although orphanages served a definite need, various people began to question the effects of living in such large groups for long periods of time. These questions led to a reduction in size of living groups beginning in the mid-20's and the trend continues today. The curent maximum per group at Barium is eight.

A series of developments during the 1930's brought profound changes for the orphanages. A dramatic increase in medical knowledge and technique enabled more and more parents to live past their child-rearing years. Hence, there were fewer orphans. With the development of Social Security and welfare programs those children needing care were often eligible for some type of grant. As a result, interested friends, neighbors or relatives could afford to take them into their homes. Added to these changes was a renewed emphasis on caring for children in their own homes.

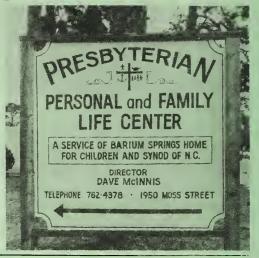

"But this year, commencing July 1, 1937, the State, together with the Federal government, is launching a program that should care for every family that has broken down from

THE PROGRAMS

DAY CARE

With the addition of infants and two-year olds in early January the Day Care Program at Barium Springs has taken on a new look. Each weekday 61 children (10 infants, 7 two-year olds, 20 three-year olds, and 24 four-year olds) engage in a variety of activities to enrich their world.

Goals for all ages focus on the development of a healthy body, an active mind and wholesome feelings. Each day has a "framework" that is predictable. A consistent but not rigid schedule allows flexibility for individual needs and for emergencies.

The planned program is designed to meet the interests and needs of the children. Activities promote interaction with others but also leave the child free to play alone and develop special skills and interests. Time is spent out doors and in the gym to develop physical skills. Field trips are planned to enhance the child's knowledge of his world.

In addition to serving children in the Troutman - Statesville - Mooresville area, the center serves as a model for day care workers to come and observe and take part in workshops

The Day Care Program receives support from the parents of the children, the Iredell County Department of Social Services, the N. C. Department of Human Resources, the N. C. Food Services Program, and from Barium Springs Home for Children which provides about 50% of the budget.

In the summer an additional 30 children, ages 5-10, participate in a program specifically designed for them. This program includes swimming, arts and crafts, and field trips to enhance the child's knowledge of his surroundings.

The center is presently operating at capacity enrollment with a waiting list of 15 children for the new infant-toddler program.

Parent participation and education is also an important part of the Day Care Program. Monthly meetings and workshops are held with a recent three hour workshop on discipline. Parents are encouraged to come by the director's office and watch their child on the closed circuit television system.

All teachers and staff are participating in continuing education through workshops presented by the center director and Title XX day care consultants from Appalachian University. The center is licensed and certified by the state.

RESIDENTIAL CARE

From its beginnings as an orphanage Barium Springs has developed into a multi-program family service agency in which residential group care is only one of its services. Today, we provide counseling to families in crisis and residential care to adolescent youngsters who exhibit emotional and behavioral problems. Our program is designed to help these families handle their responsibilities rather than for Barium to assume the family's problems.

Every situation is different and requires individualized planning and goal setting. Some families have the strengths and motivation to achieve reunification. Some accept their need to live apart but work toward a level of relationship that gives them some satisfaction. Others have minimal contact due to disadvantaged circumstances, unknown whereabouts of family members, or an extremely high level of tension in their relationships.

But, regardless of the situation, we make every effort to help youngsters and parents come to terms with the nature of their relationship, and hopefully, to improve these relationships.

The Residential Program is reality oriented, emphasizing the young person's learning to assume responsibility for his/her own behavior. Activities are structured to provide a sense of order and the opportunity to develop positive relationships with both adults and peers.

Each of the seven self-sufficient cottages has a capacity for eight youngsters. There is a central kitchen and dining room, gym, recreation room, swimming pool, a large playground area, staff residences and apartments, administrative offices and a number of utility buildings.

Group living is the most significant characteristic in one's experience at Barium. Because we believe a youngster's peers can be a helpful influence in his/her development, the staff uses a variety of formal and informal methods to help each achieve his positive potential.

In other areas, such as recreation, work program and Christian Education, the group approach is used to encourage youngsters to work together and help each other.

Perhaps the most important quality of the Residential Program is its people. Our staff cares about the hurts of others and is committed to helping them overcome their pain.

Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center

As we near the completion of our first year of operation, it is both pleasing and challenging that this center at Wilmington is providing service at a level originally projected to be reached within three years. It is also significant that churches, the Presbytery and individuals have made commitments in terms of financial resources, time, and interest to insure that this service ministry is available.

The strongest area of service in terms of counseling has been to individuals, couples and youth. Our primary work in education has been through consultation and support of pastors, and in the area of parenting skills.

Persons using our service come from a wide range of socioeconomic backgrounds and with an equally wide range of difficulties in their personal and family living.

During the year the close connection between the Church and this ministry has been identified by individuals and churches using this service as a significant factor in their lives. Persons seem to discover hope through experiencing the Church caring enough to work with them personally in the midst of complex and disturbing situations.

While a large number of those served come from the Greater Wilmington area, 25% live more than 20 miles from Wilmington. An outreach to pastors and parishioners throughout the Presbytery has found a beginning and, hopefully, will be expanded in the months to come.

A frequently asked question has to do with the relationship between Barium Springs Home for Children and the Center. Barium is strongly involved in the care of troubled children. One of the contributing causes to troubles in children is the instability of families. In addressing this problem, Barium works with Presbyteries to establish Family Life Centers that seek to strengthen the life of families and individuals "where they live."

In many ways it is a preventative measure, intended to provide help before there is a need to place children in residential care facilities. Barium's role is to help establish such centers, provide substantial financial aid for a specified period, and to give administrative support and direction.

THE PROCEDURES

Residential Care Program

Address: Barium Springs, N. C. 28010 Telephone: (704) 872-4157

- 1. Q. Where are you located?
  - A. On Highway 21 about 35 miles north of Charlotte and 4 miles south of Statesville.
- 2. Q. What kind of youngster lives at Barium?
  - A. We accept youngsters between 13 and 18 who exhibit emotional and behavioral problems.
- 3. Q. Who can apply for your services?
  - A. The legal guardian of the child is the only person who can apply. Other interested persons may inquire but only the legal guardian can make formal application.
- 4. Q. What are the fees?
  - A. Fees are based on ability to pay. No one is denied service for financial reasons.
- 5. Q. How does one apply?
  - A. To apply or to secure more information, call or write Silas B. Langfitt, Supervisor of Family Services.

Day Care Program

Address: P. O. Box 209, Barium Springs, N. C. 28010

Telephone: (704) 872-7351

- 1. Q. What area is served by the Family and Child Development Center?
  - A. The Statesville-Troutman-Mooresville area.
- 2. Q. What ages are accepted in the Day Care Program?
  - A. Present capacity: 6 weeks 24 months, 10; 2 year olds 7; 3 year olds 20; 4 year olds 24.
- 3. Q. How can my church get assistance in starting a day care program?
  - A. Call or write Sara P. Kent, Director.
- 4. Q. Is training given by the Center for Day Care workers?
  - A. Yes—especially in the area of infanttoddler care. Contact us for more information.
- 5. Q. Does the Center allow observation visits?
  - A. Yes, such visits are encouraged.

Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center

Address: 1950 Moss Street (P. O. Box 4543) Wilmington, North Carolina 28406 Telephone: (319) 762-4378

- 1. Q. How can I obtain more information about the services of the Center?
  - A. Write or call Rev. David McInnis, Director.
- 2. Q. What is a pastoral counselor?
  - A. A pastoral counselor is an ordained minister with extensive training in the field of mental health who works within the context and faith of the Church to help individuals and families build a bridge between faith and mental health. The counselor is subject to the highest standards, both in secular and religious terms, and works with people "in the market place" to enable them to live their lives abundantly.
- 3. Q. Must persons be referred through their church and how confidential is the service?
  - A. While referrals are often made by the pastor, you may contact us directly. The confidentiality of our services is strictly maintained; no names are released to church or other supportive agencies.
- 4. Q. How long does counseling take?
  - A. From a few weeks to a year or longer; there is no way to tell in advance. The time depends on how deep-rooted the problems are, how willingly a couple or individual works on them, and what goals the person(s) wants to achieve through counseling.
- 5. Q. What is the purpose of professional counseling?
  - A. While there are many statements concerning what counseling or therapy can or cannot do, it may help to explain its purpose this way: A competent counselor can help a person or couple to better discern reality—draw a road map—which in turn the person(s) can use to clarify where they are and may wish to go. It is a task of the counselee(s) to integrate that reality into their lives—drive the car. Hopefully, they can then more creatively meet the complexities of life as they assume responsibility for their own journey.

Barium Springs Home for Children, your Presbyterian Family Service Agency, has been helping children and families since 1891. Over the years the needs of children have changed but the Board of Regents and the Executive Directors have responded positively to these changes. Today Barium offers multiple services to the various situations that arise as it seeks to respond.

Administration

Address: Barium Springs, North Carolina 28010

Telephone: (704) 872-4157

- 1. Q. How can my church secure a speaker to tell us more about your program?
  - A. Write or call W. Earle Frazier, Executive Director.
- 2. Q. How can I get information about Gifts, Memorials, Wills, Trusts, Estate Planning, Annuities, etc.?
  - A. Write or call A. Broadus Hamilton, Director of Development.

A BRIEF BACKGROUND

Supt. J. B. Johnston

Among the results of these changes were more alternatives for children needing care, more children with living parents and growing controversy about the best method of care. Institutions, which were changing their names to children's homes, had a difficult time adjusting to serving children with living parents. At first the tendency was to separate these children from family and rear them much the same as the orphans of an earlier day. However, in the 1940's institutions began somewhat reluctantly and awkwardly to work with families of children in care with a goal of reuniting the family. This effort increased during the following two decades with institutional placement being more accepted as a temporary restorative service rather than a long term rearing service.

"A most important factor in building and maintaining a good group care program is the work with families and/or custodians... We must in our work with children never ignore their most intense reality which is their family. Quite apart from any negative or positive moral judgments we or others may make about parents or siblings, problems are seldom simply individual problems. To state that one individual in a family has a problem is somewhat akin to saving that my arm has a fever. And to address any effort solely toward helping one individual is likewise akin to treating my arm with no recognition of its attachment to, and reaction with, the rest of the body."

From: The Barium Messenger, March, 1977

In summary, Barium Springs began as an orphanage as did most other child care agencies in the Southeast. In response to changes it became a children's home caring for children of living parents. Next it became a family service agency offering services to both children and family in an effort to restore family relationships and return children to their own families. In all of these stages, Barium has mirrored the problems of the society it exists to serve. May this mirroring continue as we seek to recognize and respond to ever-changing problems.

THE CHALLENGE OF THE 1980's

Children and Youth

By STEWART HUMPHREYS

Free Will Baptists accepted the challenge of the homeless child in 1920 and for 60 years the Free Will Baptist Church has opened its arms of love to the orphaned, dependent, neglected and abused child. More than 700 children have spent some part of their lives, several months, others several years, on our campus.

Each new decade presented new challenges to us in child care. With each new challenge came an adequate response from Free Will Baptist people. Today we have one of the most well equipped campuses in the child care community. Our programs for orphaned, dependent, neglected and abused children are comparable to any in this state. Each year for the past decade we served an average of 80 children. Eighty children who will go forth into the world with the opportunity to be a better person, a better parent, and a better citizen. Their physical, educational and emotional needs were met and their spiritual awareness quickened by having lived on our campus.

Modern medicine, the absence of war in the world, a lower birthrate and the emphasis on reuniting families has resulted in a lower daily population on our campus. This trend is common to all children's homes. The orphaned child is almost non-existent. Social Security and welfare programs have limited the number of dependent children coming into care. Emphasis on reuniting families has reduced the period of care from several years to several months.

There will be a continuing need for group care for orphaned, dependent, neglected and abused children for some time to come, but this need will continue to decrease.

Along with a decreasing need for this type of care, however, there is an increasing need for other kinds of child care. The two most requested services and the two services most needed presently by our own Family Service workers are Emergency Care and Alternative Care for Troubled Adolescents. County DSSs are in desperate need for both of these services now and expect the need to grow. Hundreds of children and families could be served by our Children's Home were we to enter into these types of programs.

We already have the physical facilities for either one or both of these programs. Neither would entail significant increase in staff or expense to the Children's Home and to our denomination.

The crucial determining factor in the future of Free Will Baptist child care is the availability of children to the agency.

The discharge rate is up due to shorter periods of care, better child care techniques and emphasis on working with families. As a result, we have fewer children in our daily population. Two years ago the Albemarle Cottage was closed to child care. In January this year Rodgers Cottage was closed. If the current trends in applications and discharges continue we could face the possibility of the closing of an additional cottage within a year.

A survey of our communities and departments has indicated that there is a need for our present program, as well as Emergency Care and programs for Troubled Adolescents. The County Directors indicate they would begin to place children with us immediately upon our becoming an eligible resource for placement. This action would resolve our problem of declining population in our present program and enable us to begin programs in Emergency Care and for troubled adolescents and other programs that may be expedient in the future.

Some public funding would automatically become available and also thousands of dollars worth of services that we cannot duplicate. Immediately the question arises, "will the government take over the Home?" In a survey of all the other Homes in the state not a single Home had felt any outside pressure from governmental agencies. The high standards Free Will Baptists have set for their Children's Home would ensure that there would be no intervention, publicly or privately, into the affairs of the Home.

Jesus called the sick and troubled unto Him and speaking of children He said, "... do not forbid, or restrain, or hinder them ..." Let us accept our Lord's challenge and cast off the ties that bind us. The children of the 80s need us as much and maybe even more so than the children of our first 60 years of service.

[Editor's Note: In previous issues of the Barium Messenger there have been a number of articles on the changes which have taken place in child care agencies since World War II. The problems outlined in this article by Stewart Humphreys, Executive Director of the Free Will Baptist Children's Home, Middlesex, N. C., are typical of those faced by all child care agencies.]

Looking For Happiness

Happiness is never found by searching here and there—You've got to take it with you where you go.

If you've got it in your heart you'll find it everywhere—

And everything will wear a rosy glow.

You can look in every nook and corner and you'll find—

No trace although the whole world you explore.

But if it's there already stored away inside your mind—

You'll go on finding more and more.

You'll have your troubles and your trials and time will take its toll—

And clouds are bound to gather round your way.

BEE QUEST

"LET'S TALK ABOUT WILLS"

WHAT IS A WILL?

A Will is the legal document in which you state how you wish your possessions to be distributed after your death. It is probably the most important and permanent document you will ever prepare. Your Will is a continuation of your own life and influence. It is a clear cut expression of your wishes . . . the document that will act for you in distributing the material things you leave behind. You are the only one who knows how you want your possessions distributed. Only you have the right to make your Will. And, if you don't, you forfeit your last chance to give your possessions to persons of your own choice.

WHAT WILL YOU LEAVE?

No matter how little you think you have, you do have some things to leave behind. If you were forced to flee the country today and never return, leaving every one you love and every thing you own, you would quickly decide to whom you would leave your possessions. Your first thought would obviously be for your family or for others who are to some extent dependent on you. You would distribute among them the things they need and the things you want them to have. If you have money or securities or other valuable property, you would divide this as you saw fit. Perhaps after providing for needs of loved ones, you would want to share with your Church or a Church Agency such as Barium Springs Home for Children. This is good and right . . . but the only way to accomplish this is by means of a valid Will; this assures you that everything you own will be distributed as you planned and your wishes will be carried out in full.

WHO WILL DRAW YOUR WILL?

Few people would dream of signing an important legal document without first consulting a lawyer; and certainly your Will has more serious legal consequences than most documents you will ever sign. You would not bring a court action without a competent attorney, and yet your Will may have to stand up before a court if it is to carry out your wishes. Good intentions are not enough for drawing a Will. Your intentions must be in accordance with the law and must be expressed in language that cannot be misinterpreted. Any Probate Judge, executor, trust officer or attorney can tell you of the heartbreaking cases he has seen where an improperly drawn Will resulted in the complete miscarriage of the intentions of the person who made the Will.

The cost of legal counsel for drawing your Will is nominal compared with the possible loss if you draw your own Will or neglect to make one. Only a competent attorney can draw your Will and make sure your wishes will be carried out exactly. Your Will must stand on its own . . . you will not be there to clarify any misunderstandings. Lawyers have a saving.

"Nothing provides so much grist for the mill As the foolish person who draws his own Will."

WHAT ABOUT PROBATE COSTS AND ESTATE TAXES?

The cost of probating your Will and carrying out your instructions will be paid out of your estate. No matter the size of your estate, less will be taken out if your Will is clearly and correctly drawn. Wills improperly written may run headlong into excessive legal action and delays in settling the estate, resulting in extreme hardships on the very ones you want to protect. Bequests to charitable agencies such as Barium Springs are not subject to Federal estate taxes and will reduce the total taxes to be paid out of your estate.

IS CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP INVOLVED IN WILL MAKING?

It should be. You are God's steward and trustee. As a Christian you have been given the right to acquire and to retain material things, as a trust from God for the benefit of loved ones and your fellow man. You are aware of your accountability to God for the use of all of those material things you call your own. A Christian's Will is a final chance to complete your stewardship of earthly possessions—a golden opportunity to make a lasting confession of faith and love.

When you include in your Will a bequest to the Church or to one of its agencies, your resources will continue to work for the Kingdom of God in your name down through the years. By remembering the Church you acknowledge your gratitude to God for all of life's blessings. You follow the sound principle of Christian stewardship which applies in daily life. It may be that the most valuable legacy you leave to your loved ones is the example of Christian stewardship in the final disposition of your property.

Remember: A Will is the difference between having nothing to say about the distribution of your possessions after death—and everything to say.

PUBLICATION OF BARIUM SPRINGS HOME FOR CHILDREN

A Presbyterian Family Service Agency — Owned and Operated by The Presbyterian Church, U. S., Synod of North Carolina

Vol. 57

BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA, May 1980

(USPS 044-320)

No. 5

REGENTS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

The Board of Regents of Barium Springs Home for Children, meeting in the Barnhardt Center at the Home on April 13-14, considered a report from its Long Range Planning Committee affirming the current programs and directions of the Presbyterian family service agency.

Unanimous approval was given to the Day Care Program and an accompanying recommendation that the Home's parent body, Synod of North Carolina, be asked to give direction to Regents as to the need among Presbyterian Churches for consultative and staff training services. The report and action indicated the Home's ability and willingness to provide such services on behalf of Synod.

Also approved was completion of the remaining two years of a three year commitment to Synod and Wilmington Presbytery to provide family life education and counseling through the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center at Wilmington. A recommendation accompanying this action was also approved asking Synod to express its future needs of Barium relating to the Wilmington Center and other possible programs in the area of family life education and counseling.

A major portion of the two-day meeting focused on the residential child care program for troubled teenagers. Chairman Robert N. Wesley, Jr., of Winston-Salem, speaking for the committee noted the obvious need for programs to effectively serve teenagers, the lack of such programs and the frustrations of the Home since choosing this difficult task three years ago. A recommendation was presented and unanimously adopted that "the Home continue its efforts to develop an effective service for troubled teenagers" recognizing that "someone must attempt this task and if the church gives up, who will do it?" Wesley added, "We cannot back off from a needed effort simply because it is difficult."

Regents then heard a detailed explanation from W. Earle Frazier, executive director, of projected plans to reorganize the staff into teams composed of two child care workers, one social worker and one teacher in each cottage. Frazier noted that this staffing model, used in many agencies, would resolve various communication problems and enable staff to react more consistently to children. It was further noted that most children would attend the recently established remedial school on the campus. Regents responded with enthusiasm to proposed changes and urged that they be implemented with dispatch.

Outgoing President Lawton Nisbet of Greenville, a 1957 graduate of Barium Springs, expressed the mood of others in his closing statements: "Having served on this Board six years, and shared many frustrations, I am now excited about our programs, direction and potential. We have learned from our experience and I feel enthusiastic and confident about our future." Nisbet rotates off the Board being replaced as president by Mrs. J. A. King of Raleigh. Serving on the Board's Executive Committee with Mrs. King will be Rev. David Garrison of Wendell, Vice President; Mrs. Valeria Fleming of Fayetteville, Secretary; Miss Martha McLeod of Aberdeen; Mrs. H. G. Hartzog, Mrs. Cecil Thomas and Ms. Joyce Davis all of Raleigh.

MRS. J. A. KING

Other members of the Board of Regents include: Mr. William S. Bencini, High Point; Mrs. Herbert H. Browne, Jr., Charlotte; Mr. Dumay Gorham, Wilmington; Rev. G. Carswell Hughs, Charlotte; Mrs. L. S. Inscoe, Morganton; Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Aberdeen; Mrs. Mabel Lampley, Shelby; Rev. Scott Lindsay, Wilmington; Mrs. J. C. Marrow, Tarboro; Mrs. G. Allen Mebane, High Point; Mrs. Lon McAnally, Asheville; Mr. Sam Patton, Asheville; Mrs. Norris Preyer, Charlotte; Mr. John Randolph, Morganton; Mr. Robert N. Wesley, Winston-Salem.

Regents acted on recommendations regarding various administrative matters before adjourning for lunch with the pre-school children in the Day Care Program. The Board's next regular meeting is scheduled for November 9-10, 1980.

A Tour of Self-Discovery

Sit down and take an inventory for yourself. If you are dissatisfied with what you are doing and think you ought to do better, try to discover, no matter how long it takes you, just try to learn where the trouble lies. Find out the things that keep you back. Make long, searching tours of discovery in your own consciousness. Say to yourself over and over again, "Why can others do such remarkable things while I do ordinary, common things?" Constantly ask yourself, "If others can do them, why cannot I?"

You may find some great nuggets of gold in these tours of self discovery, which you never dreamed you possessed—great possibilities of power which you never uncovered before, and which may, if developed, revolutionize your life.

One of the fatal dangers of remaining a long time in one position, as a clerk, for example, is that habit tends to make slaves of us. What we did yesterday we are more likely to do today; and if we do it today, it is still more certain that we will do it tomorrow; and, after a while, using the same faculties in a dry routine, the other unused faculties begin to wane, grow weaker, atrophy, until we think that what we are doing is the only thing we can do.

What we use becomes stronger; what we do not use, weaker; and we are likely to deceive ourselves in underrating the power we really possess.

Low aim is crime because it pulls down every other quality to its level. Low aim destroys the executive ability. The faculties and the entire man follow the aim. We must climb, or we must go down. There is no such thing as clinging forever upon one rung of Life's great ladder.

HOMECOMING — AUGUST 2 and 3, 1980

NEW STAFF ORGANIZATION IMPLEMENTED

Our readers are familiar with our efforts over the past three years to develop an effective service for teenagers experiencing difficulty in their own home, school and community. The difficulties we have encountered are equally familiar to regular readers of these pages; instability, resulting low population and high costs, the necessity of discharging disruptive youngsters to maintain control, the lack of alternative programs in North Carolina, etc.

The Long Range Planning Committe of the Board of Regents studied this whole program during the past year and concluded, in the words of Chairman Robert Wesley, "That Barium should... never back off because solutions are elusive in any of its endeavors" and "that Barium (should) continue its involvement with troubled teenagers as its major emphasis but not to the exclusion of other activities and programs which are supported by Synod and within the preview of its charter." Yet, the Committee, Board, Administration and Staff agree that the program has been much less effective (and, therefore, much more costly) than desired and needed.

As a result, members of the staff and the committee visited other programs and talked with numerous people in the child care field in search of ideas and practices that have worked with teenagers. Extensive discussions focused on "what is wrong?" and "how do we set it right?" On May 12th our best answers were implemented in a new staff organization. Cottage Teams have been formed, each consisting of one social worker, two child care workers and one teacher. Each team is responsible for all activities and decisions related to their particular cottage group and families. This staffing model is becoming increasingly popular as agencies make the difficult transition from providing simple nurturing activities to providing restorative programs and activities in response to changing and growing needs.

Will this different approach work? Will the effectiveness of our service be improved? Will our population stabilize and increase resulting in a decrease in per child costs? Will a larger percentage of youngsters and families coming to us for help find us helpful? We, of course, cannot guarantee improvement. But we do believe that these changes offer the possibility of improvement and we are committed to making it work. After all, someone must solve the problems of helping the increasing number of troubled teenagers and their families; and if the Church doesn't—then who will?

Homecoming — Two Day Event

It has been announced by the Alumni Association that Homecoming 1980 at Barium Springs will be a two-day celebration starting at Noon Saturday August 2nd continuing through Sunday August 3. Planned activities include expanded opportunities for recreation and fellowship, worship at Little Joe's, the Alumni Association's annual business meeting, a dinner and other events.

A detailed schedule will be carried in the Messenger prior to Homecoming 1980, but, make plans now to be with us August 2 and 3.

WANTED: 1000 Summer Friends!!

Summer activities at Barium are planned with three goals in mind: fun, education, personal growth. For some of our young people summer may be a chance to improve academic deficiencies, to learn new athletic skills, to learn to live in harmony with their peers and adults, and to learn more about the world around them.

We invite you (Individuals, Women of the Church, Bible Classes, Youth Groups, Bible Schools, etc.) to share in providing the special support needed for an effective program to stimulate sound emotional and spiritual growth as well as "just plain fun" opportunities.

BARIUM SPRINGS HOME FOR CHILDREN BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA 28010
Dear Mr. Frazier:
It is good to share in Barium's Youth Activities Program.  My gift for $ is enclosed.

BEE QUEST

WHAT DO YOU MEAN ...

THE STATE HAS MADE MY WILL?!

Well . . . not necessarily. However, if you are with the majority of adult Americans, the State does indeed have a Will for you.

But this is one time, Bee Quest, when you should plan to be on the side of the minority . . . the 30% or less of adult Americans who have been farsighted enough to have a properly drawn "made-to-order" Will for themselves.

After all, you did work hard for those material things you own. Shouldn't you have something to say about their disposition? It seems to me you should.

Just for curiosity why don't we see what kind of a Will the State of North Carolina has for those who neglect to have a Will of their own.

Married man or woman with one child or its descendants:

If net estate is $15,000 or less:

All to surviving spouse

If net estate exceeds $15,000:

$15,000 to surviving spouse ½ of balance to surviving spouse

½ of balance to child or descendants of a deceased child

Married man or woman with more than one child or their descendants:

If net estate is $15,000 or less:

All to surviving spouse

If net estate exceeds $15,000:

$15,000 to surviving spouse 1/3 of balance to surviving spouse

2/3 of balance equally among children and any descendants of a deceased child

Married man or woman without children or descendants:

If net estate is $25,000 or less:

All to surviving spouse

If net estate exceed $25,000:

$25,000 to surviving spouse ½ of balance to surviving spouse

1/2 of balance to parents*

*If no parent survives, spouse receives entire estate.

Widow or widower with child children or descendants:

Divided equally among children

Single person; widow or widower without children or descendants:

Entire estate to parent(s)*

*No parent surviving:

Entire estate divided equally among brothers and sisters**

**No collateral kin surviving:

Entire estate goes into an Escheat Fund under the control of the State Treasurer

So . . . if you don't find that State Law on distribution of property meets your needs, do something about it now.

The only way you can be sure your property is distributed the way you want is to have a properly drawn Will. If you do not have a Will, or are dissatisfied with the one you now have, make an appointment with your lawyer today.

Do not write your own Will. A properly drawn Will is not expensive. In addition to distributing your property as you desire, a Will also helps to avoid lengthy legal action, lowers the cost of settling your estate, and assures personal attention to your affairs.

Be considerate of your family: Have a properly drawn legal Will.

COTTAGE TEAMS COMPLETED

Last month we reported to you plans to implement a cottage team organization of staff in our continuing efforts to more effectively serve troubled teenagers. All five cottages currently in operation are now staffed with two child care workers, one social worker and one teacher.

We are most pleased to have the five young women pictured above join our staff; all on June 1st. Each is looking toward a career in child care or relating helping professions. MISS EMILY PARTIN, a native of Durham, recently graduated from Davidson College with a degree in religion. She is assigned to the Goodman Cottage Team as teacher.

MISS CANDY HAWKS, a native of New Jersey, who also earned a degree (Sociology) from Davidson College is teacher on the Caldwell Cottage Team.

MISS LYNN HOUSER, from Advance, is a recent graduate of Western Carolina University and received her degree in Social Work. Miss Houser is on the Johnston Cottage Team as child care worker Houser is on the Johnston Cottage Team as child care worker.

MISS LYDIA GOFORTH of Statesville recently received a degree in social work from Mars Hill College and is teacher on the Cannon Cottage Team

MISS SALLY DAVIS is from Rutherfordton and graduated at Furman University, majoring in music. She is child care worker on the Goodman Cottage Team.

We are pleased that these people have chosen to begin their helping careers at Barium Springs Home for Children and look forward to profiting from their work and sharing in their professional growth.

SPECIAL THANKS

... to those friends of Barium who have already sent their contributions to our Youth Activities Fund.

The response this year has been favorable but still short of previous years. As you know, these "special" gifts help us to provide for a broader on-campus challenging summer program during the critical "school's out" period.

There is a strong supervised summer work program. This is good. But equally important is a progressive program to stimulate sound physical, emotional and spiritual growth.

And this is what your gift to the Youth Activities Fund helps to provide for our troubled teens. Thank you for sharing.

Strengthening For Living Today

(The following release is related to a Symposium sponsored by the Synod of North Carolina through its planning committee, Ministry Group On Family Life. The Synod of North Carolina represents all the Presbyterian Churches within the State who belong to the Presbyterian Church, U. S. and includes a membership over 150,000).

The Presbyterian Churches within the State of North Carolina will sponsor an intensive symposium which will focus upon the Family and many of the issues facing the family in today's world. This symposium will be held at Queens College in Charlotte, N. C. and will begin Friday, July 11, 1980 at 9:00 AM and end Saturday, July 12th at 4:00 PM. The symposium has a list of recognized educators in their respective fields leading various workshops as part of the entire program. Pre-registration is suggested to include the selection of your special interest workshops. Registration can be completed with information you can obtain from your nearest Presbyterian Church.

The Symposium will feature a keynote focus presented by Bill and Judy Eastman of Chapel Hill on "Strengthening The Family For Living Today." Participants will also have the opportunity of selecting at least two special workshops from a list of challenging subjects, ie, "The Church And Its Older Members," "Children in Divorced Families," "Improving Communication Within The Family," "The Single Adult," "Understanding Grief And Life" and "Issues Facing Youth."

Registration information will be available at your local Presbyterian Church together with early registration discount information June 1st. The registrar for the Symposium will be James Grubb, P. O. Box 10785, Raleigh, N. C. 27605.

[Editor's Note: As our readers may recall, Barium Springs Home for Children in recent years has been a leader in developing programs to strengthen family life. It was largely through the efforts and leadership of our staff and Board of Regents that several Family Life Centers were organized and now provide their respective communities and Synod with vital counseling services to individuals and families.

Participating in the Symposium in addition to those mentioned above are: Rev. David C. Hambrick, Jr., Director of the Family Life Program in Fayetteville; Rev. Robert W. Herron, Director of the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center in Greensboro; and Rev. David F. McInnis, Director of the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center in Wilmington.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to Mr. Villard C. Blevins, Chairman of Synod's Ministry Group on Family Life, for planning this worthwhile program.]

729 EAST THIRTY-SIXTH STREET
CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA 28205

Dear Alimni and Friends,

For nearly a century Barium Springs Home For Children has been serving the needs of boys and girls of North Carolina. Times and needs have changed through the years during that century of service. Those who were reared ahead of us felt the change, we have felt the change, and those who come after us will feel the change. Yet the need for change is ever present, and Barium Springs Home For Children has always been willing and ready to make the changes needed to meet the needs of the children of each particular era.

Who has enabled the Home to make the changes as they were needed? The support of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., Synod of North Carolina, the Alumni and friends of Barium Springs Home For Children. As you have supported the work and ministry of Barium Springs in the past, your support and concern for the Home is needed now as never before. The present program at Barium is beginning to prove itself for the benefit of the children, administration and the Presbyterian Church, U.S. Let us continue to support Barium Springs Home For Children and the fine work it is doing.

Jaul Paul A. Horn

Class of '42

... to some degree for the security of your loved ones: your spouse ... your children ... elderly parents ... handicapped relatives, etc. Or at least you should be.

And most of us recognize and accept this responsibility. We more or less plan our lives around these commitments. We work hard to earn the most money possible so that we can "look after" those persons who need us. If we are far-sighted we prepare a Will which gives some degree of security to these loved ones. Certainly, this is right and good.

But all of us have another responsibility—a responsibility to those persons who for whatever reason—sickness (emotional and/or physical) . . . lack of education . . . lack of job opportunity—not only cannot look after themselves, but cannot assume responsibility for the welfare of others. And this is not good.

Therefore, those of us who can provide for our own needs and the needs of loved ones must also assume some responsibility for the wellbeing of those who cannot look after their own needs. And to help carry out this responsibility, as Bee Quest has so often emphasized, "Everyone needs a Will."

And without question the basic purpose of your Will is to provide (as best your circumstances will permit) for the protection and security of your loved ones. This is right.

But what about your obligation to those who cannot look after their own needs? Bee Quest suggests you consider the following:

A contingent beneficiary provision in your Will. There is always the possibility the primary beneficiary(s) named in your Will may predecease you. If you do not name a contingent beneficiary, costly litigation may be necessary to determine who receives the bequest if the primary beneficiary(s) is not eligible to receive the bequest. Why not name Barium Springs Home for Children as your contingent beneficiary? A statement in your Will or Codicil similar to the following would suffice:

"In the event of the failure or lapse of any legacy or devise herein such that the property so bequeathed would pass by intestacy, I direct that in lieu thereof such property go to Barium Springs Home for Children." Your attorney at the time you make your Will (or add a Codicil) will advise you as to the proper wording for such a provision.

A second possibility is to consider leaving a part or all of the residuary estate to Barium. This is what remains in your estate after deducting all expenses, debts, taxes and specific bequests. In other words, after you have made provision for the needs of loved ones, you may find there is something left over to be given to help those who cannot help themselves. A statement similar to the one below in your Will (or Codicil) would in no way reduce any specific bequests and would benefit the young people at Barium:

"All the residue of my estate, including the real and personal property, I give, devise and bequeath to Barium Springs Home for Children."

A third possibility is to leave a percentage of your estate to your church or to Barium. Perhaps during your lifetime you tithed. Many do. In all probability you contributed regularly to a worthwhile charitable organization. That organization has come to depend on your support. An outright bequest of an amount to produce as much annual income as you now give (or would like to have given) will continue your giving far into the future. Here is an example of the form for a bequest to endow annual giving:

"I give and bequeath to Barium Springs Home for Children the sum of ______ dollars ($_____) to permanently endow my annual gift."

Bee Quest encourages each of you to request some of the materials available to you to help plan for the welfare of family and loved ones when you are not around to help. Consider first the needs of family and, after that, perhaps you will find you are able to make a gift to the troubled teens at Barium to give them an opportunity to become productive adults. Thank you.

Rev. Cook Homecoming Speaker

The guest minister for Home-coming Services at Little Joe's this year is Rev. Thomas Cunningham Cook. Many alumni will remember him as their pastor here from 1938-1945.

A native of Richmond, Virginia, he served in the American Expeditionary Force in World War I; educated at Hampden-Sydney College and Union Theological Seminary from which he graduated in the Class of 1930. Churches which he served include: Second Church, Salisbury; Little Joe's; First Church, Laurens, S. C.; Fifth Avenue Church, Knoxville, Tenn.

Although he retired from the full-time ministry in 1968, he has served as Stated Supply of the Owings, S. C. Church since 1972.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook have three sons, Thomas C. Cook, Jr., an Ordained Minister and Director of the National Interfaith Coalition on Aging; James M. Cook, an Ordained Minister and a Professor at Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga.; and Charles H. Cook, Senior Attorney for the Columbia Bank for Coops, Columbia, S. C. The Cooks have seven grandsons and one granddaughter.

Rev. Cook's sermon topic for the 11:00 A.M. service at Little Joe's will be "Sorrowful Success."

WRESTLERS WIN AGAIN

Coach Buck Jackins' Barium Springs High wrestling team successfully defended their State Championship in the annual high school tournament completed Tuesday, February 11th at Chapel Hill in the "tin can" gym, before a large crowd of interested spectators.

Triumph in the wrestling tournament was the third for Barium Springs and gave the Presbyterian Orphanage team permanent possession of the trophy first offered six years ago. Durham also had two legs on the trophy and staged a great but losing battle in its effort to nose out the Barium boys. Barium won with 41 points—just four more than Durham could accumulate. Other team scores: High Point, 28; Thomasville, 9; Greensboro, 0.

Barium Springs furnished four of the individual champions including D. Spencer, 135, and R. Spencer 145, brothers; M. Gaskill, 125, and Captain Ed Flowers, 155.

In addition to their excellent performances in the state wrestling meet, the Barium boys won all nine of their dual matches during the season, twice defeating Salisbury high, Greensboro high, Thomasville high, and Mt. Airy high, and winning from Davidson College freshman. In nine matches Barium piled up a total of 246½ points which was almost four times as many as the 62½ garnered by their opponents.

The above item appeared in the March, 1936 issue of The Barium Messenger and was written by Alwyn Morrison in The Statesville Record and Landmark.]

Note: As this issue of the Messenger goes to print, R. E. "Buck" Jackins will be entering Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem for eye surgery. He expects to be at Homecoming festivities and looks forward to relating some "tall tales" from the old days. Please remember "Buck" and his loved ones in your prayers.

AFTER FIFTY PLUS YEARS

It was a pleasure to welcome to our campus after an absence of more than fifty years, Mrs. Beatrice Mark Harding (left) and Mrs. Nellie Mark Cecil. They entered Barium in January, 1924 and both now live in Muncie, Indiana. The sisters were quite elated at their visit and picked up old report cards and a number of photos.

The staff encourages all of our alumni to visit and share their Barium experiences with us. You are always welcome.

Day Care Center Now Open For Infants, Toddlers

The Family and Child Development Center has recently added daycare services for infants and toddlers to its program. Babies from the age of six weeks to two years are admitted to the infant program, and two-year olds are served in the toddler program.

Individual help in development is offered to the children, along with games and activities. Balanced meals, snacks, and supervised rest periods are provided.

The Regents of the Home have offered to provide consultative and staff-training services for day-care programs at local churches in the Synod.

Mrs. Sara P. Kent, Director of the Center, supervises a staff of twelve conscientious, dedicated workers.

Indecision...

Indecision is debilitating; it feeds upon itself; it is, one might almost say, habit-forming. Not only that, but it is contagious; it transmits itself to others. . . . Business is dependent upon action. It cannot go forward by hesitation. Those in executive positions must fortify themselvts with facts and accept responsibility for decisions based upon them. Often greater risk is involved in postponement than in making a wrong decision.

-H. A. Hopf

A quaker, once hearing a person tell how much he felt for another person who was in distress and needed assistance, drily asked him, "Friend, hast thee felt in thy pocket for him?"

It's a year 'round job and Mr. Piatt does an excellent job. Keep up the good work "Pop."

SOME THOUGHTS ON WILLS

What Is A Will?

A Will is a legal document . . . a continuation of your own life and influence . . . an expresion of your wishes. It acts as your representative in distributing the physical things you leave behind. If you fail to make a Will, you forfeit your last chance to give your possessions to those of your choice. Only you know how you want them distributed and only you have the right and power to determine "who gets what." Don't be so indifferent . . . so careless . . . so unconcerned for the welfare of loved ones that you do not have a Will.

What Will You Leave?

Maybe a lot... maybe a little. But no matter what you have, you have some possessions to leave behind. Suppose you were forced today to leave the country forever, leaving every one you love and every thing you own, wouldn't you quickly decide to whom you would leave your possessions? Of course your first thought would be for loved ones who are dependent on you. You would distribute among them the things they need and the things you want them to have. If you have money or securities or other valuable property, you would divide this as you saw fit. Perhaps after providing for the needs of your family, you would want to share some of your possessions with your Church or one of its agencies. Very good... but the only way to accomplish this is by means of a Will which assures you everything you own will be distributed as you planned.

Who Should Draw My Will?

Few people would dream of signing an important legal document without consulting a lawyer; and certainly your will has more serious legal consequences than most documents you will ever sign. You wouldn't bring a serious court action without a competent attorney. And yet your Will may have to stand up before a court if it is to carry out your wishes. Good intentions are not enough for drawing a Will. Your intentions must be in accordance with the law and must be expressed in language that cannot be misinterpreted. Any Probate Judge, executor, trust officer or attorney can tell you of many heartbreaking cases where an improperly drawn Will resulted in a complete miscarriage of the intentions of the person who made the Will.

The cost of legal assistance in drawing a Will is nominal compared to the possible loss if you draw your own Will or neglect to make one. Only a competent attorney has the necessary skill to help you draw your Will so that it caries out your wishes exactly. Remember . . . you will not be there to clarify any misunderstandings. Your Will must stand on its own.

What About Probate Costs and Estate Taxes?

The cost of probating (proving) your Will will be paid out of your estate. No matter the size of your estate, less will be taken out if your Will is clearly and correctly drawn. Improperly drawn Wills may run headlong into expensive legal action and delays in settling the state. And this may work hardships on the very ones you want to protect.

Bequests to agencies such as Barium Springs Home for Children are not subject to Federal estate taxes, thereby reducing the total taxes to be paid out of your estate.

What About Christian Stewardship In My Will?

Christian stewardship should be a basic part of your Will. You are God's steward and trustee. You have been given the right to acquire and to retain material possessions as a trust from God . . . to be used for the benefit of your loved ones and your fellow man. You are aware of your personal accountability to God for the use of all those things you call your own. Your Will is the final opportunity to complete your stewardship of earthly possessions . . . a wonderful opportunity to make a lasting confession of faith and love.

When you include in your Will a bequest to the Church or to one of its related agencies, your resources will continue to work for the Kingdom of God in your name for many years. By such a bequest you acknowledge your gratitude to God for all of life's blessings. You follow the sound principles of our Christian heritage.

Probably the most valuable thing you can leave your loved ones is the example of Christian Stewardship in the final disposition of your property.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

Here is how it works:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledge. The amount is not mentioned.

PUBLICATION OF BARIUM SPRINGS HOME FOR CHILDREN

BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA, SEPTEMBER 1980

Endowment Challenge Gift

A very special friend has pledged an endowment challenge gift to the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center of Wilmington. These funds from this annonymous donor will match dollar for dollar all gifts up to a total of $25,000.

Director David McInnis sees this gift as, "going a long way in terms of making the endowment a reality to insure the future of this healing ministry among God's people."

REV. GEORGE R. SLATON, JR.

As further evidence of the Center's growth, McInnis recently announced the employment of a second pastoral counselor, Rev. George R. Slaton, Jr., who began his duties on July 1, 1980. His counseling services are available through the Center's main office at 1950 Moss Street, Wilmington, and through the newly established satelite office in First Presbyterian Church, Jacksonville.

The Center is indebted to the Sessions of Delgado Presbyterian and First Presbyterian, Jacksonville, for their generous provision of office space.

Hot [!] Homecoming Fun – 1980

Some 350 former residents, staff and friends gathered on August 2-3 to recall and share (and expand on!) experiences around this treasured place. Prompted by old movies, photographs and annuals warm words and emotions were comfortably expressed and received.

To the many alumni and friends who expressed gratitude for the efforts of staff, we simply reply, "Thank you for sharing so freely of your selves with those of us who labor in a different day—a different way. It was a joy."

Alumni officers for next year include: President—Rev. Paul Horne, Charlotte; Vice-President—Paul Barnes, High Point; Secretary - Treasurer — Pless Norman, Statesville.

CAMPUS SCHOOL OPENS

Registration for the Barium Springs School was held on August 28th with a full schedule of classes to begin on September 2nd.

Located in temporary facilities in the main dining hall, the school offers specialized instructions to all residents. Current enrollment is 43 with an expected average for the year of 48 - 50.

Principal Connie Beach and classroom teacher Rick Speilman offer academic instructions in the central classroom and resource area. Each cottage team teacher offers individual and group tutoring in the cottage homeroom adjoining the classroom. Speilman plans and implements a program of physical education in the afternoons. In addition, each team teacher develops and implements one period (45-50 minutes) of arts, crafts, music and/or other enrichment each day.

Administration, staff and regents believe the alternative school experience will complement the recent program change to a cottage team and group focus. It is also expected that academic deficiencies and behavioral problems can better be alleviated. If so, the Regents have agreed in principle to renovate the excess dining hall space to provide up-to-date facilities for the school.

NOTICE TO CHURCHES

Churches are asked to please pick up their Barium Springs Home for Children Thanksgiving materials at the fall meeting of their Presbytery. The postage saving can be substantial.

However, should you not get these materials at the Presbytery meeting, they will be forwarded at a later date.

Look for us there, and . . . thanks for helping!

We are particularly proud of these young men who donated $50.00 from their work earnings to the recent Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon. Their statement speaks for itself:

"We are proud to be a part of the fight against muscular dystrophy. We realize how fortunate we are to have working, healthy bodies... and hope that we have started an annual project in which all cottages will want to participate."

The lawyer was reading the will of a wealthy executive, recently deceased: "And to my nephew whom I promised to remember: 'Hi there, Charlie.'"

When it comes to giving, some people stop at nothing.

COTTAGE TEAM CONCEPT WORKING

The shift in mid-May, 1980 to a cottage team staffing pattern is, thus far, proving effective.

September 1980

Each cottage team consists of one Social Worker, two Child Care Workers and one teacher. This team is responsible for all aspects of service to the cottage group—family service, schooling and day-to-day care supervision.

A most encouraging result has been a reduction of turnover in our population. Of 41 children admitted since mid-May, 31 remain in care.

Our total current population is 43.

The six cottages currently in operation have a capacity of 60 youngsters. Staff and administration expect to operate at approximately 80% of capacity.

Readers desiring more detailed information about this different approach to child care are invited to write for a copy of our recently printed handbook.

Alumni News

Mr. Rufus Long, 1940 graduate of Barium Springs, visited on campus this month (August). He is now living in Falls Church, Virginia after being evacuated from Islamabad last Thanksgiving following the burning of the American Embassy. He is looking forward to retiring to North Carolina.

His son, Zeb, and his wife are leaving for Taiwan on August 22nd to serve as missionairies. His daughter, Lucy, has graduated from Davidson College and his son, Eric, is a rising sophomore at Davidson.

Changing Your Address?

If you are moving, or if your address will be changed in any way (new post office box number, change in route number, zip code, etc.), we would appreciate being notified as soon as you have this information.

When it is necessary for your local post office to supply us with this information, they must charge us a fee of twenty-five cents. With the circulation of the Messenger growing we have hundreds of adress changes each month. Also please advise if you are receiving two copies.

APPRECIATION

Barium Springs Home for Children expresses sincere thanks to International Paper Company (Mr. Mitchell Rawls, Plant Manager) Statesville, for providing the cardboard in which the Thanksgving materials are prepared for delivery to the churches. They have provided these materials free for a number of years. Thank you, Mr. Rawls and your employees.

Residential Program Supervisor

On October 1, 1980 Ms. Rebecca Armentrout assumed the position of Residential Program Supervisor. In her new position, Ms. Armentrout will supervise and coordinate the six cottage teams, on-campus school staff and time-out staff.

A graduate of Wake Forest University, Ms. Armentrout received her Master's Degree in psychology from the University of Toronto. She joined the Barium staff on August 15, 1980 after serving as social worker and unit supervisor at Boys Home of Huntersville.

Since the Barium staff was reorganized into cottage teams in early May, executive director Earle Frazier had supervised all areas of residential services. He now has returned to administrative duties full time.

Goodman Cottage Hosts Campus Party

On September 6th the Goodman Cottage girls sponsored a party for the entire campus, using money earned from extra work projects. The girls organized a swimming party which included barrel rides, a greased watermelon race, and a watermelon seed spitting contest, using seeds from the watermelons which were served for a snack.

Later in the evening "Boothill" a live rock band performed. The "Hub" was turned into a disco for the evening and everyone had a grand time. The "Boothill" Band is well-known in the Iredell County area and has performed throughout the state. Delicious refreshments—peanuts, soft drinks, potato chips, dips, etc.—were served.

The Goodman girls hope all the cottages enjoyed themselves as much as they enjoyed giving the party. The Goodman Cottage girls are: Derinda Burgess, Beth Cable, Teresa Cook, Jodi Creech, Karen Kistler, Susan McCain, Lori Medford, Kim Moloney and Gina Streib.

Duke Endowment Makes Grant To Campus School

Barium is pleased to announce a grant from the Duke Endoment of $24,000.00 to assist in the first year of the on-campus school. The grant anticipates $18,000.00 during the second year and $12,000.00 during the 1982-83 school year.

The Duke Endowment strongly supports child care agencies in the two Carolinas with annual gifts, special grants, consultation and training grants. Further, the Endowment provides substantial assistance to the broader field of child care, to hospitals in the Carolinas and to several institutions of higher learning.

Robert A. Mayer, II, director of children's services is a familiar person to the field of child care, having been Treasurer for the National Association of Homes for Children and a member of the board of directors of The Child Welfare League of America in addition to his involvement in our two states.

Recently Robert Sailstad and M. Laney Funderburk, Jr. of the Endowment visited Barium to offer consultation on our various public relations efforts.

Presbyterians in our state owe a huge debt of gratitude to The Duke Endowment for their encouragement, advice and financial assistance to Barium.

A BARIUM GIFT ANNUITY

Yes, a Barium Gift Annuity is a winner . . . a winner for you the Donor, for your wife, and for youngsters at Barium Springs.

Perhaps the best way to explain a Barium Gift Annuity is to answer very briefly a few of the most asked questions about this method of providing income for yourself and at the same time sharing with others.

- Q. What is a Barium Gift Annuity?
- A. It is a legal contract between you and our Board of Regents. You may give to us a cash gift, or a paid-up insurance policy, or real estate, or securities. In exchange, we agree to pay you a guaranteed income for life in regular payments.
- Q. What determines the amount of income received?
- A. Two things: (1) the dollar value of your gift; (2) your age at the time of the gift. Your income payments are always the same . . . and are not affected by a depression, by a declining stock market, or by a change in the administration of the Home. All of the assets of Barium stand behind the agreement.
- Q. Can I arrange for another person to receive the income?
- A. Yes. You may name another person to receive the income during your lifetime, or you may receive payments for life and name another to receive payments after your death.
- Q. Is the charitable gift annuity a new way to give?
- A. No. It is one of the oldest ways to provide income for self and to provide resources for non-profit organizations. Such contracts have been written for fitfy years or more - and are favorably regarded as a proper method for securing gifts. Barium's gift annuities are administered by The Presbyterian Foundation, Inc., U.S., Charlotte, N. C.

- Q. But I still don't see how a gift annuity, which usually yields a higher return than a savings account, will enable me to receive an income and also make a gift to Barium.
- A. Barium invests your gift, pays you a fixed income for life; the amount which remains in the gift principle at your death is used in support of our program.

The Barium Gift Annuity offers many advantages to the donor. It insures a guaranteed fixed annual income for life. The year in which you make your gift a large percentage is deductible from your Federal Income Tax as a charitable contribution. Also, a large percentage of your annual income from the annuity is tax free.

In addition, the Gift Annuity frees you of any management or investment worries; also, you have the convenience of receiving payments regularly and promptly. But, perhaps the most satisfying reason for purchasing a Gift Annuity is knowing that you are sharing with Barium Springs Home for Children in helping troubled young people.

For more detailed information about a Barium Gift Annuity you are encouraged to complete the request blank below.

NEW REGENTS ATTEND FIRST MEETING

Newly elected Regents pictured above (and Mrs. Hugh Farrior of Shelby) attended their first meeting of Barium's governing board on November 9-10.

After staff reports and discussions between Regents and staff members filled the first two hours of the regular Fall meeting, dinner was served by Mrs. Jessie Frazier in the Fellowship Hall of Little Joe's Church.

In their business session the Regents discussed a wide range of issues related to physical plant, farm and forest land, record keeping, current and future programming, and Barium's relationship to the Synod of North Carolina.

Actions taken included:

Approval of a proposal by B & G Design Company of Statesville to purchase a computer for payroll, bookkeeping and donor records.

Approval to sell six lots received from the estate of Hugh and Malcolm Knox of Charlotte.

Approval of a request from South Iredell High School to utilize land adjacent to the school for Vocational-Agriculture laboratory studies.

Approval of general plans for renovating the main dining hall to accommodate the on-campus school.

Approval to employ J. T. Pegram, a Statesville architect, to develop detailed specifications for the renovation.

Instructed the Executive Committee to study the completed plans and take final action.

Instructed the Long Range Planning Committee to begin developing coordinated plans to shape the activities of the Home for the next several years.

Following the Executive Session, the Board made plans for the Spring meeting on April 26-27, 1981. The Fall meeting concluded with lunch served in the main dining hall to staff and young people.

President Mary Neely King expressed the Board's pleasure with the progress of Barium's programs and particularly the recently changed residential program for troubled teenagers.

Our staff and youngsters are proud of the leadership provided by the Board of Regents. We hope our readers will note carefully the names of our Regents and feel free to discuss the Barium program with them. They would appreciate your interest and concern.

BARIUM OFFICES INVADED

At 10:00 A.M., October 31 (Halloween) approximately 60 spooks, goblins, witches and little devils descended on the Barium offices. This coven of creatures came from a distant planet known as "Day Care." Although no flying saucers were sighted, there were a number of strollers and carriages in the area. Also several brooms!

Ms. Sara Kent, head of the coven had "no comment" when questioned about the number of light years planet "Day Care" was from earth. However, she did say that her "creatures" were happy at the hospitality (cookies, candy, lollipops, gum, etc.) extended by the office staff. As she was leaving the "ghost-fest" she did say that the office staff could expect another invasion during the Christmas Season.

CALDWELL BOYS HOST SPOOK PARTY

This Halloween the boys from Caldwell Cottage sponsored a campus-wide party, using money accumulated by working as a group on an extra campus job. The party was a big success.

Activities included an "authentic" haunted house, bobbing for apples, and a pumpkin-carving contest. Everyone got into the spirit—costumes were both elaborate and original . . . the makeup jobs were near-professional (truly frightening!). The Hub was convincingly decorated, complete with black lights, fluorescent cats and witches on the wall, sawdust on the floor, and Frankenstein in his coffin. Weird music and generous refreshments were enjoyed by the ghostly crowd. The campus wishes to thank the Caldwell Cottage boys (Paul Speight, Gary Jones, John Mast, Johnny Milligan, David Robinson, Walter Wiestling, Alan Willstrop, Chuck Coleman, Danny Sloop, Derrick Shelton) for a most enjoyable Halloween party.

WINGSPREAD CONFERENCE: Focus On Church Related Child Care

A national conference on Church related child care was held November 5-7 at the Wingspread Conference, Racine, Wisconsin.

Earle Frazier of Barium Springs Home for Children and Glenn Robinson of Alexander Center in Charlotte, representing the Presbyterian Church in the United States (PCUS), joined representatives of fourteen other denominations in examining the role of church related child care in the eighties.

All of the speakers, including Dr. Alan Keith-Lucas of Chapel Hill, emphasized the growing need for services to more troubled children and youth, and cautioned against becoming overly dependent on public funds. Dr. Larry K. Brendtro of the Starr Commonwealth Schools of Michigan and Ohio echoed these concerns.

Both Keith-Lucas and Brendtro urged participants to cease apologizing for institutional child care; but to forthrightly claim and build on their rich Christian heritage.

Keith-Lucas appealed to the group to demonstrate a Christianity of Grace: "you are loved; therefore, try to behave" rather than a Christianity of law—"behave and you will be loved." He reminded those who want to believe that mankind—including children—are inherently good persons soiled by environment that "it was in paradise itself that man first got into serious trouble."

The Conference was convened by The Villages, a residential child care institution for neglected children which has its head-quarters in Topeka, Kansas, and by fifteen national church organizations, with the assistance of The Lilly Endowment. Staged by the Johnson Foundation at the former home of H. F. Johnson (Johnson's Wax), designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, the Wingspread conference concluded with participants expressing a need for a follow-up conference to further explore the relationship of church agencies to their parent bodies.

What Are You Teaching Your Child?

The following poem is recommended for daily use. Clip it and keep it handy. If your youngster seems overly critical of others, check the amount of criticism he gets at home. If your little ones seem to fight a lot, take an inventory of the atmosphere in your home. If your son or daughter frequently exaggerates or just plain lies, mom and dad just might be the teachers without knowing it. It's possible.

If a child lives with criticism, he learns to condemn . . .

If a child lives with hostility, he learns to fight . . . If a child lives with fear, he learns to be apprehensive . . .

If a child lives with jealousy, he learns to feel guilty . . .

If a child lives with jealously, he learns to feel guilty . . .

If a child lives with tolerance, he learns to be patient . . .

If a child lives with encouragement he learns to be confident . . . If a child lives with praise, he learns to be appreciative . . .

If a child lives with acceptance, he learns to love . . .

If a child lives with recognition he learns it is good to have a goal . . .

If a child lives with approval, he learns to like himself . . .

If a child lives with honesty, he learns to be truthful . . .

If a child lives with fairness, he learns justice . . .

If a child lives with security, he learns to have faith . . .

If a child lives with friendliness, he learns to be a friend . . . If a child lives with you, with what is he living?

—Author Not Known

WHAT IS SUCCESS

"To laugh often and love much; to win the respect of intelligent persons and the affection of children; . . . to find the best in others; to give of one's self; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a reformed social condition; . . . to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived — this is to have succeeded."

-Author Unknown

STERNNESS vs. DISCIPLINE

"Do not mistake sterness for discipline. A child knows the difference. Discipline is motivated by love and is fair; sternness is motivated by ego and is selfish."

-Pauline Lane Streeter

Christmas Gifts

Have you ever been at loss to know what to give special friends at Christmas? In recent years an increasing number of our readers have made Christmas Gifts to Barium Springs Home for Children to honor loved ones.

What more beautiful Chirstmas expression than a gift that will help boys and girls now and will continue serving children far into the future.

Upon receipt of your gift we immediately send a special Christmas card to the honored persons advising that you have made a gift to Barium in their name.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledge. The amount is not mentioned.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Cover Picture . . .

A 1979 Christmas card with the picture of Ben and Woeful prompted a stream of mixed thoughts and feelings. As we approach another Christmas Season, I want to share with our readers this picture of one of my best friends along with some thoughts and feelings.

Ben is among the world's privileged people; born to parents who love him, who love each other, who can express that caring, parents who can afford the best – including Woeful – for their first child.

Small wonder that Ben loves freely . . . that others return his affection . . . that he is so alert, alive and happy in anticipation of Christmas. Ben's present is stimulating and secure; his future bright . . . just as you and I would wish for all people at Christmas.

Then there are those children for whom the promises of Christmas have never been fulfilled . . . who, through no fault of their own, lack positive stimulation and security . . . whose experience has taught them (rightly or wrongly) that caring leads to hurt . . . whose future is uncertain or downright scary.

It really is an unfair world that gives so much to some and so little to others.

As we at Barium Springs Home for Children work specifically and exclusively with those teenagers who have been deprived of so much and hence, need so much . . . we know that we cannot possibly "make-up for" all the unfairness . . . but neither can we stop trying. Is this not the TASK of all who have received so much? Or is that our OPPORTUNITY . . . an opportunity to say "thanks" for our unearned good fortune . . . for our own childhood somewhat like Ben's . . . for our own children . . . for the blessing of knowing and enjoying people like Ben.

Let us not fail to fully enjoy – and appreciate – our family and friends this Christmas. We – and they – need that . . . lest we – and they – have a big holiday season – but miss Christmas altogether.

Carle Frazier

Jam pending this Christmas land a little early this year breauce I hope it will help all to remember what Christman in all aloud. I lived at Barium for five years around 1965 to 1970. There I learned how to get along with people, to swim, rule horses, clanse, cook (alot), clean. There I learned self respects. There I learned to love. I love James Liville Holl as my our parents.
My brother of Jather died within a month of each other when I was 13. Monstlep Hall picked up the pines. I was brought to be yough, but calm. I learned so much merely because somebody cared enjoy to track. For this I take this apportunity to thank you for being there and wish everyone a truly Marry Christman.

For unio us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be quelled Wonderful, Councellor, The Mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

Janet Mirkelle Stri

NEW HOME FOR LITTLE JOE'S WINDOWS

Something Old and something New is the topic of discussion between the Reverend and Mrs. W. A. Johnson, pastor of Southview Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville, N. C., and his wife, as they examine a stained glass picture window in the recently completed Southview Presbyterian Church's Assembly Hall. This large window and two other stained glass windows are gifts from the Session of Little Joe's Church at Barium Springs Home for Children. The Johnson's are alumni of the Home.

The larger stained glass window at the front and center of the building and smaller windows on the north and south side were given the church from the original Little Joe's Church at Barium Springs Home for Children. The windows were donated by individuals through out the Synod of North Carolina in memory of an orphan boy, Joe Gilliland, who was a cripple desiring a church on campus, pledging 47% to construction; but died the week after making his gift.

For years the old Little Joe's Church served as the center of worship and Christian Education for the Orphan Children. Reverend and Mrs. Johnson worshipped and were married in the old church. Later when a larger Little Joe's Church was built the windows were placed in storage.

When it came to the attention of the present Session of Little Joe's Church of the Southview Presbyterian Building program with the Johnson's as organizing first family, the old Little Joe's Church windows were donated to the new church.

The new Assembly Hall of Southview Presbyterian Church will serve as a multi-purpose building for Worship, Education and Social Activities in 3,000 square feet of floor space. The building cost about $200,000 and includes a Session and Conference Room, a Kitchen, a Choir Room, and a Storage and Utility Room.

A gift from Fayetteville Presbytery of $85,000 helped purchase the twenty-two acres for the new facility. A feasibility study of land use and development by people knowledgeable in church planning, projects a Master Plan for a population of 30,000 people in the area of the Southview Church setting. The Master Plan is divided into two phases. Phase I projects the Multi-purpose Building (already completed), a Sunday School and Administrative Annex, a Chapel, a Sanctuary and Outdoor Social Court. Phase II Planning includes a School of Christian Education, a Home for the Aged, a Group Home for the Handicapped, an Outdoor Ampitheatre and Recreation Area with lake. Priority of facilities is based on the need for space and availability of funds.

The new congregation of Southview is a nucleus group growing out of the merger of the two congregations of the Ashworth and Comfort Churches on February 4, 1978 and organized by Fayetteville Presbytery in March 1978.

A blend of the Old and New is reflected in the Spirit of Southview Congregation whose adopted motto reads: Building for Ministry—Inheritance to Fulfillment.

PROGRESS REPORT - 1980

By EARLE FRAZIER, Executive Director

As we begin a new year, our many friends are due a report on 1980 which proved to be a good year in the life of Barium.

The Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center of Wilmington reached its three-year goals in only ten months. A second pastoral counselor, George Slaton, joined the Center in July and opened a part time satellite office in Jacksonville. An annonymous donor gave $25,000.00 to start an endowment to assure the Center's continuing ministry. Director David McInnis expresses appreciation to the Synod of North Carolina, Wilmington Presbytery, Session of Delgado Presbyterian Church — Wilmington, Session of First Presbyterian Church — Jacksonville, and other Sessions which support and use this unique service. Barium is pleased to be a part of a service which fits into our church's connectional system so well and, therefore, serves our church so effectively.

The Family and Child Development Center at Barium Springs expanded its day care services from 44 children to 74 during 1980. This Center is now prepared to offer consultation and staff training services to churches wishing to begin or upgrade day care programs. Director Sara Kent and her straff await directions from Synod to offer this service to churches. Barium is pleased this program has realized its potential.

The Residential Group Care Program for troubled teenagers was completely reorganized in May, 1980 and has (finally) attained the stability which had been lacking. With the help of a grant from The Duke Endowment, all of our youngsters now attend an on-campus school, where small group and private instruction focus on their individual needs. Program Supervisor Rebecca Armentrout and her staff are busy refining the cottage team concept and the new campus school program. Plans are being completed to renovate the central dining hall to accommodate the school. While no one has, as yet, solved the problem of providing services to troubled teenagers, Barium is most pleased with our accomplishments in 1980. We look forward to further progress in 1981.

These three sound, effective programs would not have been possible without the patient support of thousands of Presbyterians, church groups, The Duke Endowment, Synod, and other friends. Their generous gifts enabled Barium to end 1980 "in the black" with almost enough funds left in the operating budget to pay for the proposed renovations for the on-campus school.

In so many ways, 1980 was a very good year. The Board of Regents, Staff and Administration are grateful for all who made this progess possible and for the opportunity to be servants of our Church.

Alumni News

Mrs. Eva Mae Ellis, who was a house mother at Barium Springs for many years died December 3, 1980. She had been living in Charlotte and is survived by three daughters and five grandchildren.

Mrs. Mabel Milton Hanner, who was the mascot of the 1936 graduating class at Barium, died on October 10th and was buried in Richmond, Va. She spent the first twelve years of her life at Barium Springs during which time her father Ernest Milton, was Treasurer of the Home.

So . . . what else is new? What does the future hold for me? For my family? For my friends? For my country?

No one knows... and perhaps it is just as well. But while it is important for us to make every effort to prepare for what lies ahead, can we ignore the needs of others? Is the Biblical teaching "your brother's keeper" out-dated? Bee Quest thinks not... and suggests that you take a look at Revocable Giving.

A Revocable Gift is one made with the understanding the giver may change his mind and reclaim the gift. Such a gift will enable the donor to retain a certain amount of economic freedom. Inflation, declining income from investments, lengthy illnesses and other economic uncertainties make us want to "hold fast" to what we have. The future is too uncertain; but we can make a revocable gift which we can control and have returned to us if we need it. It is not necessary to state the reason we want the gift returned. If we do not revoke the gift during our lifetime it becomes the permanent property of Barium.

But perhaps the best reason for making a revocable gift now is the matter of intent. If you wish to make a gift to Barium Springs Home for Children, to your church, or to some other such agency eventually but, because of the uncertainty of future needs are reluctant to do so, you should go ahead and make the gift now on a revocable basis.

THE DEPOSIT GIFT AGREEMENT

This is a contract between you and Barium which explains the terms of the agreement—the sum given, the rate of interest, your right to revoke, etc. Advantages: (1) you have made a gift to a cause in which you believe; (2) you have a fixed income for life; (3) you are free from investment worries; (4) you may add to the gift at any time and thereby increase your interest income; and (5) the principal will be returned if you so request.

EXAMPLE: Mr. X, a bachelor, age 55, would like to make a substantial gift to Barium. His present income is adequate for his own needs and for his mother who is dependent on him. His problem: to provide financial security for his mother if she survives him. The solution may be a Deposit Gift Agreement with Barium which provides that current interest from the gift will go to Barium. If X's mother survives him the gift may be exchanged for an annuity payable to her with the balance to Barium at her death.

THE LIFE ESTATE CONTRACT

This type of contract provides for the transfer of real property (home, farm, land, rental property, etc.) to Barium. The donor retains the continuous right to the income and/or use of the property throughout his life. And the donor retains the right to revoke the arrangement at any time and recover the full right to any or all properties transferred. At donor's death (or other named beneficiaries, if any) the property is Bariums.

EXAMPLE: Mrs. Smith, an elderly widow, wants to leave her home to Barium; however, she plans to continue to live there. Because of limited resources she needs to protect herself in the event of a lengthy illness and unexpected expenses; therefore she is hesitant to make an outright gift of her home. So she enters into a life estate contract and is assured if she ever needs to sell her home she can revoke her agreement with Barium and sell the property. If she does not revoke the agreement the property goes to Barium at her death.

These are only two types of Revocable Giving. Other forms of this giving arrangement will be presented in subsequent Bee Quest articles. Please use the request form for additional information on Revocable Gifts.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledge. The amount is not mentioned.

COPING WITH CHANGES IN JUVENILE LAWS

By JULIE FARNSWORTH
Sunday Staff Writer—Fayetteville Observer

The North Carolina General Assembly in 1979 approved some 20 bills which changed the face of juvenile laws in this state.

The bills went into effect January of last year, and one part of it has left judges, juvenile court counselors and parents with their hands tied.

Written by the Juvenile Code Revision Committee, an arm of the state Crime Commission, the bills were part of Gov. Jim Hunt's legislative package to revise juvenile laws. And while the now year-old bills have had some positive effects, there are some drawbacks court officials now are beginning to realize.

Cumberland County Juvenile In-take Counselor, Sylvia Whitley, Chief Court Counselor of the 12th Judicial District, Phil Utley and District Court Judge Charles Guy talk about some of the problems these laws have created for them, the judicial system and parents.

Before the passage of the bills, a delinquent and undisciplined child could be placed under probation. Today, only a delinquent child can be placed under probation, and the undisciplined child can only be supervised.

What differentiates a delinquent child and an undisciplined youth is that one breaks a law and the other does not. A delinquent child is between the ages of six and 16 and breaks the law. The undisciplined youth also is between six and 16-years-old, but falls into one or all of these three categories: he is truant, a runaway or regularly disobedient to parents.

The problem with the new juvenile code is the undisciplined youth. He cannot be placed under probation with threat of being sent to a state institution, such as a training school for correction. Instead, the undisciplined youth is placed under "protective supervision."

Utley explains the term "protective supervision" as one which greatly limits the authority of judges and counselors.

"'Protective supervision' means an undisciplined child is under the supervision of the court counselor. It's a general supervisory type of order and it's a matter of asking a child 'will you do this, will you go to the foster home and not run away?' Parents come to us and ask for assistance and the judges ask the kids please.'"

Until the undisciplined child is 16-yearsold, court counselors have no alternatives but to move the child from the counselor's office to foster home to group home and back to the nome of the child's parents, but he cannot be sent to a training school. The court has no way of punishing a child who is either truant, disobedient or who repeatedly runs away from home, Utley says.

Essentially, a counselor's job is limited to asking for the cooperation of the undisciplined youth, and the counselors say, for the most part, they don't get it.

Because of the lack of authority given to the courts, some judges in the state refuse to hear cases dealing with undisciplined youth, Utley says.

"The judges won't hear the case because they have no authority. I understand that, their feelings, but on the other hand, we have to do something for the child. I feel we have to keep trying with the kids," Ms. Whitley says.

"Take this for example," Utley says. "You have a 14 year-old girl who has finally gotten into court. She keeps coming back to court. Say the judge orders her to be placed in a foster care home or group home and she again runs away. When she runs away, the only thing we can do is get a runaway petition, have a 24-hour detention order which will hold her in the detention center for 24 hours, and that's all, until we can make some kind of placement where we think she will stay. The court has no way of punishing a child who continues to misbehave. We're lucky, our judges will hear the undisciplined cases."

Cumberland County District Court Judge Charles Guy says the problem with undisciplined youth is frustrating.

"You can get children who seem to be incorrigible and they are not charged with anything serious like dope, but they're failing to go to school, and they're running away from home and maybe shacking up, and the counselor likes to keep them out of court until the last resort.

Several inches of snow fell at Barium on January 30, bringing out the artistic talents of our youngsters.

"Finally, they're in court and the court's hands are tied completely and all we can do is chastise them and fuss at them. All I can do is put my name on a list of those who say, 'now don't you do this.'

"Some judges won't hear undisciplined cases," Guy says. "They know it's futile and the court counselors won't bring them into court because they know they're just wasting their time because the judge won't hear it. I'm totally frustrated with it."

Ms. Whitley and Utley both say since the law has changed, it's easier to cope with the delinquent child, even though the child commits more serious offenses.

"A delinquent child will go out and shoplift, and we have a training school for that. A delinquent child knows he can be committed to a residential treatment facility. He knows if he continues to misbehave there's a punishment involved.

"A delinquent child is easier to work with because he knows there'll be a punishment but an undisciplined child knows he can't be punished."

For some youth, the Juvenile Service Center, a detention center, is better than living at home.

"The detention facility is not a place where he'd hate to go. For some, it's better than the homes. They've got good food and a recreation facility," Utley says.

"We keep bringing the kid back again and again and we'll try something else. In some cases, this does help but there are quite a few of them who fall through the cracks, and the child then is handed right back to the parent."

The idea behind the passage of the bill was to force parents and the community to take more responsibility for troubled youth and to keep them out of state institutions if they have never broken a law, according to Cumberland County Rep. Lura Talley, co-sponsor of the bill.

She says the idea behind the code is crime prevention, keeping the runaways or kids who are truant away from the serious youthful offenders, and lessen the chance of the undisciplined youth becoming a delinquent.

"It's keeping them from being exposed to criminal behavior when all they were doing was running away from an unhappy home situation."

Ms. Tally, who was a member of the Juvenile Code Revision Committee, says the legis-

Special Investment Program

We are pleased to list new members and renewals to Barium's Special Investment Program. Gifts from business firms and foundations are not included.

For many this is your nineth year of special giving. Some do not make the larger gift every year but continue to give regularly.

But whether you make a large gift . . . a small gift . . . one gift

... or many gifts—you are important to the young people at Barium Springs Home for Children.

Please continue your generous support in 1980, and remember, there are no small, no unappreciated, no unimportant gifts when the gift is used to help others. And a gift to Barium does help others . . . troubled youngsters . . . troubled families.

Whitley, Mr. Elbert L., Sr.,

Word has been received of the death of Miss Reba Thompson of Danielsville, Ga., on January 21. She was a very popular and dedicated High School teacher at Barium for a number of years. Here is what "The Spotlight" of 1928 said about Miss Thompson: "She teaches the Freshman Class of girls, and there could never have been a better one secured to fill that position . . . very fond of all sports and one of the chief boosters at every basket or football game."

Julius J. Kinard, 62, of 505 Phoenix Street, Statesville, N. C., died January 26 at N. C. Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem, after a brief illness.

Julius was a resident at Barium during the thirties and graduated in 1937. He was an outstanding football player at Barium and also starred for Lenoir Rhyne College.

He retired from the U. S. Air Force with the rank of Colonel after serving in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. He had lived in Statesville for the past 10 years, teaching an introductory vocational course at D. Matt Thompson and Oakwood Junior High Schools. He is survived by his wife, Doris, of the home place, two sons, two daughters, three sisters and five grandchildren.

Coping With Changes

lators will have to examine the results of the new juvenile code this session.

"We'll have to shake it down and see how it works. There'll be changes I'm sure. Some part will come before the legislature this time," Ms. Tally says.

Ms. Tally and the counselors agree the problem now lies in a lack of alternatives for undisciplined youths. She sees community activities as one solution to the problem of undisciplined youths.

"Id like the child to get involved in boys clubs or 'Y' activities or some groups in the community, that there be enough resources in the community." Ms. Whitley sees part of the solution in vocational education. She says the majority of runaways and disobedient youths are in the junior high school age group and oftentimes are failures in school.

"The undisciplined child needs the alternatives that we don't have; a foster care home doesn't work all the time; a group home doesn't work all the time," Ms. Whitley says.

She says a vocational school would fit the needs of the undisciplined child who cannot function in the traditional classroom.

"We need different school alternatives for those who can't sit and do math, reading and history. We need a vocational school. Many of our kids are school failures and then they go into undisciplined acts. Some do have learning disabilities and some are low achievers." Another solution. Utley says, is a facility, other than a training school, where a judge can place an undisciplined youth.

"We would like to have some authority as to where he could go by court order, say, if he didn't work out in the home, in the foster home, counseling and they're not going to school.

"The swing now is toward children's rights," Ms. Whitley says. "There are so many cases of child abuse and so on, that now, it's swung the other way and we can't compensate for it"

(This article appeared in the February 1, 1981, edition of The Fayetteville Observer. We are grateful to the writer, Miss Julie Farnsworth, and to the editor of the paper for permission to use this excellent explanation of juvenile laws in North Carolina.)

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledge. The amount is not mentioned.

PUBLICATION OF BARIUM SPRINGS HOME FOR CHILDREN A Presbyterian Family Service Agency - Owned and Operated by The Presbyterian Church, U. S., Synod of North Carolina

Vol. 58

BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA, MARCH 1981

(USPS 044-320)

No. 3

W. EARLE FRAZIER, ACSW Executive Director

On the following pages you will see three SIGNS OF SUCCESS and the directors of those activities who, with their staff, are largely responsible for our church's effective services through Barium Springs.

Members of Barium's Board of Regents and Synod's Ministry Group on Family Life are listed below. Regents have worked diligently to develop and implement these programs within guidelines developed by Synod through its Ministry Group on Family Life which has given oversight and strong support in our effort to work in concert with other ministries of our church.

The Residential Program for troubled teenagers stabilized during the past year after several years of frustration and searching for an effective model.

The Day Care Program has expanded during the past year and is now capable of offering consultation and staff training services to churches wishing to establish—or up-grade—a program of day

The Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center at Wilmington is proof that the church can provide family life education and pastoral counseling through a cooperative effort of Synod, Presbytery and Sessions.

I hope you will acquaint yourself with these programs, keep this second annual program issue of Barium Messenger and call us if we can be of help. The signs, the success and the programs belong to you.

F SUCCESS IGNS

RESIDENTIAL GROUP CARE FOR TEENAGERS

AND FAMILIES

"Providing residential care in response to defined needs in co-operation with other private and public agencies in North Carolina..."

(from the Statement of Purpose, adopted by Board of Regents, 1978)

Ms. Becky Armentrout

Philosophy and Goals

The residential child care program of Barium Springs Home for Children has responded to the changing needs in a changing society by committing itself specifically to providing group care for teenagers who are having more than usual difficulty in their home, community, and school. As we try to best accomplish the tasks we set for ourselves, the staff also offers counseling, planning, and support services to the families of teenagers in residence. In each case individual planning is to accomplish the following goals:

- 1. Stabilize the youngster's and family's situation as quickly as possible to make sound planning possible.
- 2. Enhance the development of trusting relationships between staff team members and families, and develop meaningful relationships between the youngster and both peers and adults.
- 3. Offer help in such a fashion as to increase the probability of the family and youngsters using our help to clarify basic problems and develop strategies for resolving and/or coping with these problems.

The direction taken may be toward reuniting the family toward achieving a satisfying relationship but with a lesser amount of contact.

Program Structure

Services to youngsters in residence and to their families are provided in each of six cottages by a team of skilled staff. Each team consists of one social worker, two child care workers, and one teacher. Team members share responsibility in admission procedures, implementation of child care programs and family service plans, and operation of the cottage within agency guidelines. The campus operates on a year-round, full-time basis except that children observe major holidays and a two-week summer vacation in their homes away from campus. All youngsters attend school in the licensed, private school on campus where instruction is geared to the performance level of the individual. Recreation opportunities are available on campus, in the gym, the swimming pool, or the large playground areas. Each cottage group also receives a weekly work assignment.

In all facets of the program, a focus on the cottage group—the team and youngsters in a particular cottage—is paramount. The group model of care uses relationships within the peer group and relationships with staff to promote stability. Staff members communicate to youth and families the realities of their situation, empathize with their hurts and frustrations, and offer support for the plan of action chosen by the youngster and family.

Application for Services

Contact the Residential Secretary at Barium Springs Home for Children, Post Office Box 1, Barium Springs, North Carolina, 28010, or by calling (704) 872-4157. Applications are forwarded to a cottage team for prompt processing. Barium Springs Home for Children expects families holding custody of children in the Home to share in the cost of the service according to their ability to pay. In the event of unusual circumstances or other expenses, this fee can be adjusted by negotiation.

Philosophy and Goals

The philosophy of the Family and Child Development Center is that all children share certain needs, and can benefit from a comprehensive developmental program to meet these needs.

Our goals are:

Encourage self-confidence, spontaneity, curiosity, and self-discipline which will assist in the development of the child's social and emotional health.

Enhance the child's mental processes and skills with particular attention to conceptual and verbal skills.

Establish patterns and expectations of success for the child, which will create a climate of confidence for his present and future learning efforts and overall development.

Encourage good health habits and development of physical abilities.

Endeavor to increase the ability of the child and his family to relate to each other in a loving and supporting manner. Enhance a sense of dignity and self-worth within the child and his family.

allows the child time to play alone and develop special skills and interests.

Some time is spent outdoors each day in good weather. Occasional field trips are planned of which the parents will be notified well in advance. Each child has ample opportunity for rest according to individual needs.

- A program planned for four year olds which has 24 children in a large multipurpose classroom with one teacher and one assistant teacher.
- A before and after school program for ten children ages five through nine. Another full-time assistant works directly with all classrooms.

Schedule

Monday through Friday for all twelve months.

The following holidays are observed: New Year's, Easter Monday, July 4th week (Vacation), Thanksgiving and Friday following, and Christmas week (Vacation). No adjustment of fees is made for days closed except for July 4th week and Christmas week.

Hours are 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Daily routine varies with the teacher's plans for each day.

Each day shall have a "framework" that is predictable. This schedule will be consistent but not rigid, allowing flexibility for individual needs and for emergencies. The program shall be planned according to the interests and needs of the children. There is a balance of activities promoting interaction with others that

Parent/Guardian Participation

Several parents will be elected to be members of the Parent's Advisory Committee to assist in the planning and operation of the Day Care Program.

Parents are encouraged to make arrangements for visits in the classroom. Individual conferences between parents and staff are held twice a year. These conferences discuss the child's development at the center and ask parents assistance in effective planning for the child's Day Care experience.

BIRTHDAYS are a special time for children. We invite and encourage parents to share lunch with their child at the Center on the child's birthday.

Other

The Center is licensed by the State of North Carolina and is certified by the Department of Social Services.

The program is the direct responsibility of the Center Director. The services offered to families by the Center include day care for children, conferences, evaluations, parent involvement, and referrals to other appropriate agencies.

The services offered to the children include skilled quality day care, individual help in development, a developmental, preschool program with various activities and balanced nutritious meals and snacks.

Our schedule of fees:

Ages two and under: $35.00 per week.

Ages three and over: $30.00 per week (Includes meals, snacks and supplies.)

Before and after school care: $10.00 per week.

"Providing and/or promoting family life education and counseling in harmony with other Synod efforts to help families..."

(From Statement of Purpose adopted by Board of Regents, 1978)

REV DAVID MCINNIS

A Brief History

Several years ago a growing conviction within Wilmington Presbytery culminated in an effort to establish a ministry of pastoral care, counseling, and education. The focus of these concerns was to improve the quality and health of individual and family life throughout the Presbytery area. Their concern grew from a deep understanding of the many problems faced by today's families. Thus, a Presbytery Committee was established to bring this ministry to the people.

The proposal for this ministry met with widespread enthusiastic support from the Presbytery, the Synod of North Carolina, and its service agency, Barium Springs Home for Children. Based upon the Church's historic commitment to care for individuals and families, Barium Springs and Wilmington Presbytery have since April 1979 conducted a cooperative effort that provides an indepth program to meet a demonstrated need for healing and enrichment in the midst of individuals' and families' lives.

This ministry is provided through pastoral Care and Counseling, as well as through Educational work in the areas of Family and Personal Life. Pastoral Care, Counseling, and Education conducted within the context of the Christian Faith are expressions of a healing ministry combined with the knowledge and techniques of the behavioral sciences. The work is carried out in a cooperative atmosphere with other qualified helping professionals such as pastors, social workers, nurses, psychologist, guidance counselors, teachers, psychiatrists and the like. Indeed this particular ministry is an endeavor that helps build a bridge between faith and mental health.

As we enter the third year of this ministry, it is an understatement to say that the response has been tremendous. The Center maintains offices in Wilmington and Jacksonville and persons throughout the Presbytery area have made consistent use of the services, which seems to indicate that a need is being met. And indeed it is the responding to persons in need of help with their individual and family lives that gives purpose and direction to this ministry. It is a privilege to provide this care for persons in the name of the Church and our Lord, Jesus Christ.

Services Offered

Nine basic areas of service are offered by the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center:

1. Individual Counseling: to help individuals understand their personal problems and potential and become better able to cope with personal and interpersonal issues.

- 2. Marriage and Conjoint Counseling: to help husband and wife or couples through individual and joint session(s) to clarify their relational problems and find new and better ways of relating.
- 3. Parent and Family Counseling: for parents and children to move with greater understanding toward strengthening family relationships. Several or all family members may be counseled at the same time through the use of individual, joint, or total family sessions.
- 4. Children and Youth Counseling: to help those having problems at home, school, and with their peers.
- 5. Group Counseling: to help individuals explore interpersonal feelings and problems with the goal of increasing competence in interpersonal relations. This is a supplement to individual counseling.
- 6. Educational Events: to offer educational opportunities to assist individuals, couples, and families in their personal and interpersonal relations and to enrich and expand their concept of family and person.
- 7. Consultation Service: to support and assist clergy in evaluating parishioners' problems, in identifying the help that is needed and in enhancing their own effectiveness in parish ministry.
- 8. Premarital Counseling. for couples or individuals considering marriage to understand some of the factors which may undermine healthy marital interaction as well as those which contribute to a harmonious relationship.
- 9. Pastoral Care: to provide a support system for pastors throughout the Presbytery. This service is provided through visitation on behalf of Wilmington Presbytery.

Beautiful Spring Awakens The Earth And The Heart

Spring in all her loveliness and charm gladdens every heart, but especially those at Barium Springs. The luscious green of the grass, the softness of the blossom of the pear tree, the glitter of the gold of the forsythia, the pink fragrance of the crabapple tree, and the soft, green drapery of the giant oaks of the campus stir the souls of those who go to and fro in this place.

The physical beauty seems to be enhanced by the hallowed presence of all the boys and girls and men and women who have been a part of Barium Springs during its seventy-five years; and, even above that the presence of the Omnipotent One whose Hand is manifest in His creation and opened in providence toward His creatures. With this awakening of the earth there is also the traditional events which stir the thoughts and inspire the mind as the calendar events occur and are enjoyed. The most glorious, of course, is the Easter season, putting together the loveliness of flowers, the fun of the Easter eggs and bunnies, God's love manifested in the crucifixion, and hope set forth in the resurrection. The heart is stirred and soul inspired as it stands in the presence of the Eternal.

Castle Contest

Castles in the air? Nope—they're real! We've just wound up our annual build-your-own castle contest, launched along with our study of the Middle Ages. For weeks the school overflowed in the wrapping paper tubes, construction paper, and boxes of all shapes and sizes. By the contest day, there were forty castles as creative and different as the people who made them. First prize was a giant puzzle of King Ludwig's castle—we hear Debbie Allen still has a "few" pieces to go on it!

Alumni News

Mr. Ben Fort has retired after 47 years of employment with the Vicks Health Care Division of Richardson-Merrell Inc. His many friends and associates have made a generous contribution to Barium Springs Home for Children in honor of this occasion.

Excerpts from their tribute to him read as follows:

THE LIBRARY

"I want you to know that we all admire and respect Mr. Fort. He is indeed a Grand Gentleman in the full sense of the word and he is admired and loved by all of us. Throughout his working career he has been a constant inspiration to hundreds of young and up-coming executives. He has just retired from his position as the Director of Materials Management for our Company.

All of us at Vicks and the business associates who have come to know Ben would like to express our gratitude to the Barium Springs Orphanage for the part it played many years ago in the personal development of our dear friend Ben B. Fort."

Mr. Fort now lives in Chalfont, Pennsylvania.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledge. The amount is not mentioned.

Walking For Others

On March 21 the young men from Caldwell Cottage participated in the Statesville Walk-Athon for the March of Dimes. Their efforts raised $125.20 to help crippled children. Each boy walked a total of 20 kilometers for their pledges. They were tired but happy to be able to help the March of Dimes.

REGENTS ELECT GARRISON

Rev. David Q. Garrison, pastor of New Hope Presbyterian Church near Chapel Hill, was elected President of the Board of Regents during the April 26-27 Spring Meeting. Garrison has served on Barium's Governing Body four years; two years as a nember of its Executive Committee.

John Randolph of Morganton was elected Vice-President and Mrs. Cecil (Frances) Thomas of Raleigh became Secretary. Serving with these officers on the Executive Committee are Mrs. John (Harriet) Gilbert of Statesville, Mrs. H. G. (Grace) Hartog of Raleigh, Miss Martha MacLeod of Aberdeen, and Ms. Joyce Davis of Raleigh.

Other actions by the Board included:

- * Approving the use of space by the Barium Alumni Association to develop a collection of artifacts and memorabilia.
- * Instructing the Executive Director to engage a surveyor to establish boundaries of Barium property.
- Approval of a plan whereby staff members may have the

Barium To Continue Center

The Board of Regents approved a request from Synod's Coordinating Council to: (1) continue its management of the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center (PPFC) at Wilmington; and (2) duplicate this model in other areas as approved by the Ministry Group on Family Life (MGFL) as funds are available.

Readers will recall that PPFLC was established in 1979 by Barium at the request of Synod's Council to attempt resolution of the funding and management problems encountered in other similar programs. The Center was to be a three year joint effort of Synod and Barium. Regents reported to the Ministry Group on Family Life in 1980 that the new model was operating successfully. A second pastoral counselor, George Slaton, joined the staff in July, 1980 and a satellite office was opened in Jacksonville.

As our society grows more complex and coping more difficult it seems certain that many more individuals and families will need, at various points in their lives, help in facing change and stress. The MGFL, Synod's Council and Barium believe that the church cannot ignore this need or depend on the public sector to adequately meet this need.

Even if this were possible, some would seek help more easily and quickly if offered by the church. Hence, Barium looks forward to helping other communities and/or areas avail themselves of this proven service on behalf of the church.

Interested groups should contact the Ministry Group on Family Life by writing to Mr. Willard C. Blevins, Chairman, c/o Synod of North Carolina, Post Office Box 10785, Raleigh, N. C. 27605.

HOMECOMING—AUGUST 1 and 2, 1981 (REUNION—CLASSES OF '40 and '41)

Day Care Consultation Available

DAY CARE - 3-YEARS OLD - SUMMER FIELD TRIP

Following the recommendation of its Ministry Group on Family Life, Synod's Coordinating Council has requested Barium Springs Home for Children to provide a new service to churches of Synod. The Board of Regents has approved this request.

Consultation in day care and staff training assistance is now available through the Family and Child Development Center on the Barium Springs campus. Mrs. Sara P. Kent, Director of the Center, has an extensive background in day care, consultation, staff training and administration. She has a well trained and experienced staff.

In addition, the Center is housed in a facility specifically designed for staff training. Audio-Visual monitoring of various groups as well as video taping and playback capabilities are incorporated in the facility.

Some topics on which staff training can be presented are:

Ages and Stages of Development
Infant Care—Learning Games for Infant Care
Yardstick for Planning—Lesson Plans
Assessment of the Child LAP
Helping Young Children Overcome Problems
Developing A Learning Environment
Create Strategies for Young Children
Family Involvement
Establishing A Day Care Center
Training Paraprofessionals to Work With Young Children
Staff, Selection, Training and Relations

Other topics can be offered as needed.

Food Experiences for Young Children

Barium is pleased to share this model day care program, competent staff and excellent facilities with individual churches across Synod wishing to begin (or upgrade) a program of day care on behalf of Synod. You may contact Mrs. Kent at (704) 872-7351 or by writing to her at Barium Springs.

A Thought To Remember

"Whatever you have received more than others—in health, in talents, in ability, in success, in a pleasant childhood, in harmonious conditions of home life—all this you must not take to yourself as a matter of course. In gratitude for your good fortune, you must render some sacrifice of your own life for another life."

- Albert Schweitzer

opportunity to participate in a tax-sheltered annuity program.

- * Responses to recommendations by Synod's Group on Family Life as reported elsewhere in this issue.
- * Authorized the Executive Directeor and Architect Ton Pegram to, in consultation with President Garrison, proceed with negotiation of a contract(s) to renovate the central dining hall to accommodate the on-campus school.

Regents heard reports from staff regarding programs of the Home and later met with the newly elected Endowment Trustees Parks H. Dalton of Interstate Securities, Ravenal B. Currie of The Duke Endowment, and Dr. Warner L. Hall of The Prese byterian Foundation. Board members responded very positively to both the reports by Staff and the plans outlined by the Endowment Trustees.

After adjournment lunch was served in the central dining hall for youth, staff and Regents.

THE WILL OF A CHRISTIAN

"You shall remember the Lord your God, for it is He who gives you power to get wealth."

Deuteronomy 8:18a

Your Christian Will may state very simply, "I believe in Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour," or it may be a more extended expression of your faith. By such a statement you acknowledge that your making of a Will is something more than a routine business transaction. Your Will should make fair and sensible provisions for loved ones in accordance with their needs and the size of your estate. You remember the words of the Psalmist, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein."

And, because you remember, you will leave a portion of your estate, no matter how small, to advance the cause of Christ's Kingdom. As a Christian you leave no finer legacy to your family than a genuine testimonial of your faith as expressed through a bequest to the Church and/or one of its service agencies.

A Will is a written document in which the maker states how his property is to be distributed after his death. Basically, a Will should serve two purposes: (1) distribute what you own according to your wishes; (2) distribute it as economically as possible. To these two purposes Bee Quest would add a third—an acknowledgement that Jesus Christ is your Lord and Saviour.

You are God's steward and trustee. As a Christian you have been given the right to acquire and to retain material goods as a trust from God—for the benefit of your loved ones and your fellow man. You are aware of your accountability to God for the use of all material things you call your own. Your Will is a final opportunity to complete your stewardship of earthly possessions; it is your last chance to make a true confession of faith and love.

When you include in your Will a bequest to the church or one of its agencies, your resources will continue to work for the Kingdom of God, in your name, down through the years. By remembering, you acknowledge your gratitude to God for all of His blessings. You follow the sound principle of Christian stewardship which you applied in your daily life. Perhaps the most valuable heritage you can leave your loved ones is an example of Christian stewardship in the final disposition of your property.

Failure to make a Will often brings deep sorrow and unnecessary expense to loved ones. Therefore, love for members of your family insists that there will be no tragedy because you neglected to make a Will. Your dependents may have special needs; however, the court will not take these into consideration as it applies the letter of the law to your Will. You should deal sympathetically with the special needs and circumstances of your dependents. Make a Will now that reflects your Christian gratitude and love.

Most people recognize the need for private colleges, universities, museums, the arts, medical research foundations, etc., to have large endowments . . . but very few appreciate the critical need for children's homes to have substantial and growing endowments. Have you made room in your Will for Barium Springs Home for Children? One form of a testamentary bequest is:

"I give, devise and bequeath to Barium Springs Home for Children, Barium Springs, N. C. (then state the amount of your bequest or percentage) for the use of said agency in fulfillment of its general corporate purposes."

Or your bequest may be designated for a specific use which can be memoralized; or it may be added to the endowment; or, Barium Springs may be named a contingent beneficiary to receive a bequest only if there are no surviving primary beneficiaries.

Every individual who possesses anything has the responsibility of deciding who is to receive his estate, no matter how small or how large. Every Christian also has a further obligation to return to his fellow man a portion of the goods he has accumulated through his life's work.

Followers of Christianity have established churches, schools, hospitals and organizations to help the sick, the uneducated and the needy. Today all of us benefit from this heritage. It may not always be apparent, but it touches your daily life in many ways. You have a responsibility to keep it alive and strengthen it.

You can satisfy your love and concern for your loved ones and your fellow man by making a valid Christian Will. Only you have the power and the right to make such a Will. Please do.

The First School Year

In it's first year of operation the campus school has "made a difference" in the lives of Barium youngsters. The majority of students arriving at Barium have not attended school regularly, if at all. They have experienced very little success academically, and think of teachers as "against them" and school as a "drudge." Since opening the school, our main purpose has been to provide remedial help where needed and to help students achieve success in a supportive educational setting. Our goal has been continually realized, as we see youngsters settle in, one by one, to the routine of school and to the task of learning.

Each student is tested on the day he arrives, and placed in the different subject areas according to ability. They are tested again in January, and once again at the end of the school year in order to check their progress. This year, according to recent test scores, there was an average gain of over a year-and-a-half in reading levels. Several showed gains of as much as three years. During the second semester, 75% of the students showed more than the five month's expected gain in reading as well as in spelling. Gains in math skills have been similar.

Upon hearing these test results last week, one eighth grader remarked, "I used to be a terrible reader. Now I'm great!" His teacher laughed with him, knowing it was true. After a good group discussion on World War II recently, one teacher said,

"Times like this make it all worth while."

It seems, looking back on the year, that we've had a lot of "times like this." In countless sessions of poetry writing, drawing, science experiments, good stories, and arguments over why the South lost the war, we have learned a great deal from one another, become fast friends . . . and enjoyed it all immensely.

Graduation At Barium

ROBYN WELSOME

Twenty-four years ago Barium Springs held what we thought was its last graduation ceremony. With the class of '57, the Campus High School closed its doors and students attended public schools.

But this year Barium Springs again had its own graduating class—a class of one! Anyone looking in on the festivities would have thought there must be dozens graduating. Robyn Welsome, of Charlotte, was our "first" and the whole campus truly celebrated her hard work and achievements.

Graduation activities took place on the afternoon of June 3, followed by dinner. Afterwards, Stultz Cottage gave a reception in Robyn's honor, inviting all of the Barium staff and students as well as Robyn's family and other guests.

Robyn will move to Charlotte this month and is exploring possibilities for employment in the field of child care.

REGENTS APPROVE RENOVATION

A TYPICAL COTTAGE GROUP HOME ROOM

At the April 1981 meeting of the Board of Regents the renovation of our present dining room to accommodate our campus school was enthusiastically approved. Work is now in progress and will be completed in time for this school year. But we will need special help from our friends to equip the classrooms. Here are our basic needs:

55 Student Desks @ $ 35.25 = $1938.75 6 Teacher Desks @ $145.00 = 870.00 6 Teacher Chairs @ $ 30.83 = 184.86

An article elsewhere in this issue points to the results of the first year of operation of our school. Please use the coupon below to share in this most vital need.

Working With Disturbed Children Is Hard . . . .

The editorial by Donald A. Orr in the February 16 Outlook really hit home. I began full-time work in residential child care a little more than two years ago, and even though I'd been a board member in another children's home for more than five years and had been a counselor to some of the residents there while working on a master's degree, I wasn't prepared for the aggressive behavior Mr. Orr wrote about in the public schools. Shortly after I came here I was called on one night to help calm a young resident who had already assaulted several of our staff, damaged some furniture, and put his fist through a window trying to get out. My theological education and ten years' experience as a "warm, caring" pastor were of little help in trying to subdue a frightened, defiant teen-ager who was determined to hurt some adults.

Children's homes have changed, and sometimes I wonder if our theology also has changed. Our business was a lot easier and a lot more attractive when we cared for cute little orphans or children from broken homes, and it was easy to feel we were providing a ministry. Now some of the people who study these things tell us that more effort should have been made to hold families together, that children often do better when they aren't placed in places like ours, and that adoption, foster homes, and group homes are often a better alternative. Many in our field have had our self-righteous balloons burst; as we care for more disturbed, more aggressive, less attractive adolescents, we're more on the frontier of our faith.

GIVING UP IS WORSE

It isn't hard to find a theological basis for a ministry to troubled people. The parable of the sheep and the goats and the story of the good Samaritan are appropriate and hard to refute. The problem comes when we try to translate that over-arching framework into day-to-day terms.

How does our theology help comfort staff members who have been assaulted by residents who don't know better ways to express anger, hurt, and disappointment? What do I say to the staff member whose child has been molested by a confused resident? How do I resolve my own worries about my family's safety as we live with children who often resent and react against anyone in authority?

These questions trouble me, but what troubles me a lot more is that good, committed church people will give up on others who aren't nice, clean, and respectable. I'm troubled by what may be a move toward further insulation and isolation in our churches, where being part of a "majority" may be more important than hanging in there with some awfully unlovable people. Working with these troubled, troubling people can be terribly discouraging, but giving up would be even worse.

[Editor's Note: My sincere thanks to George Laird Hunt, Editor of The Presbyterian Outlook for permission to share with our readers this timely message from David S. King, Executive Director, United Presbyterian Home for Children, Mars, Pa. This letter first appeared in the "Mail To Main Street" section of The Presbyterian Outlook, March 16, 1981 issue.]

POOL SCENE

On a hot (93 degrees on July 9) summer day, there is nothing quite like a dip in our pool. It's the favorite afternoon recreation for Barium youngsters and staff. Fun and water safety are stressed at all times. Joel Parlier, our lifeguard for the summer, teaches swimming to those who either do not swim or wish additional instruction.

School Progress Report

In last month's Messenger we told you of plans to renovate our present dining room to accommodate the campus school. Plans are on schedule and classrooms should be ready for the fall term when all Barium youngsters will attend this school.

We invite our friends to share in equipping the classrooms. Many of you in recent years have designated your summer time gift to be used in our Youth Activities Program. The coupon below may be used to indicate your preference. But regardless of which fund you choose, the gift will be wisely and conscientiously used to help meet the needs of those young people in our care.

Summer Is Not All Fun and Games

It's the season for extra yard work, and each cottage group has a regular work assignment to help keep the campus in good shape. Sometimes a cottage group will request extra work to earn money for a special trip or other treat. Scenes like these are typical around campus.

This particular group from Johnston Cottage is working at Little Joe's Church. Even if the work is hard at times, the results are a well kept campus . . . and who wants to stay inside on a pretty summer day anyway? In these pictures, Paul is mowing around the church sign, while Steve, David and Jeff work on the hedges.

ALUMNI NEWS

White Stag Manufacturing Company in Portland, Oregon, announced recently the promotion of Jim White to Director of Engineering of their domestic and Mexico facilities.

Jim is the son of Mary White and the late Ike White of Barium Springs, North Carolina. He is a graduate of Troutman High School and Chowan College. Jim and his wife, Ann, along with their three children, will continue to make their home in Murfreesboro, Tennessee, where they have resided for the past four years.

A REWARDING CHALLENGE!

The girls in Stultz Cottage have a garden they are really roud of! And rightly so. They are growing corn, lettuce, cabage, broccoli, green beans, peas, squash, cantaloupe, watermelons nd carrots. Planting and tending the garden has been a big ummer project for the girls, who are learning how fast weeds nd morning glory vines grow!

They particularly enjoy the "fruits" of their labor when they repare fresh vegetables in the cottage. Another learning project hey've tackled with enthusiasm is freezing and canning. The ocal agricultural extension agent has worked with them on propr canning and freezing procedures. Now they will be able to njoy their own vegetables all year.

The girls' enthusiasm for this project has been great and hey have learned a lot. Inspecting some of their maturing corn lants are Nancy Puffenberger, teacher in Stultz Cottage, along vith gardeners Claire, Tammy, and Angela.

There'll Be Some Changes Made

The dining hall at Barium is a big mess right now. But the "mess" is temporary. By this fall, kitchen and dining facilities will be completely renovated and a large part of the building will house the on-campus school.

SUMMER ACTIVITIES

An energetic start has been the order of the day for two groups of our girls this summer. Several mornings each week, the girls and staff of Sullivan and Stultz Cottages have walked and jogged through PARCOURSE in Statesville. Established by Davis Hospital, PARCOURSE is a wooded trail with eighteen exercise stations designed to develop endurance, strength and flexibility.

In the top picture, Jeanette, Claire, and Lisa do a leg stretching exercise, as Stultz teacher Nancy Puffenberger waits her turn. In the lower picture, Wynnette and Stultz child care worker Cathy Owens walk forward on the balance beam. # HOMECOMING-1981

The first week-end in August continues to be a most enjoyable one for alumni and staff of Barium Springs Home for Children. This year was one of the best—over 350 alumni and friends gathered to reminisce, to share stories of by-gone days, and to perhaps "stretch" some of their experiences and youthful pranks. But a fun time was had by all. For some this was their first visit "home" in many years. Others who live near by are at most homecomings. But to all it was a most enjoyable and meaningful occasion. The staff looks forward to welcoming all of you back in 1982.

ALUMNI NEWS

Mrs. Louise Surles Catron visited on campus along with her husband, Ruben. Mrs. Catron was a 1951 graduate of Barium Springs and is now living in Homestead, Florida, 33030 (16730 S. W. 301 St.)

During her visit, Mrs. Catron learned that her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Surles Feimster, is now living in Taylorsville about 25 miles west of Barium Springs. She had not seen or heard from her in 31 years. Mrs. Catron spoke to her sister on the phone and upon leaving here was planning to have a re-union with sister.

Mr. Marshall F. Norris, a 1943 graduate of Barium Springs, has written to have his name added to our mailing list and would be interested in hearing from former classmates. His address is: Marshall F. Norris, 1639 West Ball Rd., #1, Anaheim, California 92802.

Mrs. Helen Briley Hobbs has also written to give her address. She is a graduate of the Class of 1934 and would like to hear from classmates. Her address is Mrs. Helen B. Hobbs, 5 Frederick Drive, Newport News, Virginia 23601.

The late Julius J. Kinard, Barium Class of 1937, who retired in 1970 as a Lieutenant Colonel in the U.S. Air Force after 30-year career, has been posthumously honored by President Reagan for his service. A certificate recently received by his wife, Doris, honors Kinard's memory "in recognition of devoted and selfless consecration to the service of our country in the Armed Forces of the United States. . . ."

Col. Kinard died on January 26, 1981, and is buried in he National Cemetery in Salisbury.

Lee Norman, class of 1955, was a recent visitor on campus. His address is Post Office Box 1223, Jackson, Tennessee 38301.

Mrs. Nellie Johnson Summers of Statesville, a graduate of Barium Springs High School, died September 1, 1981. She is urvived by her husband, Joe and two children, and two brothers, Llyde W. Johnson and Fred O. Johnson, both of Statesville.

Monday, June 22nd after a hurried lunch, Cannon Cottage staff: Chris McNeeley, Lynn Wakeford, Bill and Nora Ashley, and residents: Jim W., Robert, Tom, Perry, James, Jim N. and Ronald with a whole gob of supplies and gear piled into the yellow van and headed towards the mountains. Everyone was full of excitement and buzzing about the adventure ahead.

Around five o'clock we arrived in the small quiet town of Hot Springs, North Carolina. After some searching we found the Smokey Mountain River Expedition Company sheltered under a large bridge on the banks of the beautiful rushing French Broad River. As the staff signed in, of course the guys went flying down to the river with whoops and shouts. When we finally gathered them up we drove to the camp grounds and set up camp. Soon dinner was sizzling and popping on the griddle—hamburgers with all the trimmings and potato chips and plenty of good drinks.

With supper finished, the dishes cleaned and breakfast chores assigned, we started a fire. Then the ghost stories began. Suddenly, without warning, the wind picked up and large drops of rain pelted us. Everyone scurried for their tents as lightning illuminated the darkened sky and thunder exploded around us.

Through-out the night and until early dawn, Mother Nature entertained us with great booms of thunder and brilliant bursts of crackling lightning while the tents quivered under the constant rain.

But the morning dawned bright and clear. (Whew, thank the Lord!) Breakfast went fast-man the kids never finished chores this fast before—soon we were packed and on our way to adventure.

When we arrived at the raft station we were given life preservers and a whole lot of instructions. We boarded an ancient bus that chugged and coughed and wheezed but brought us safely to the river—that beautiful French Broad River. We were assigned places in rafts and given oars—(What are these for? What do you mean we have to paddle?—Are you kidding?) Seven tired miles later we knew our guide wasn't joking.

EUGENE, JAMES, JIM N., ROBERT

PERRY, RONALD, CHRIS, TOM

Finally, we pushed our rafts into the river and one by one floated out to begin our great trip.

The river was gentle at first, and then the first rapids— WOW! We made it. The excitement mounted—then we stopped and just dropped out of the rafts to flop and float around. Then back in the rafts (boy that wasn't easy) to continue. After the third rapid (we're really veterans now) we stopped below the fourth rapid for a surprise—we tramped up stream and with the help of our guide stepped out into the rushing stream, jumped and splashed to the middle, pointed our feet down stream and roared body surfing down to the rafts. It took nearly an hour to get the kids (and adults) back into the rafts. After two more rapids (wow are they fun and fast!!) we stopped for lunch—ham and cheese sandwiches, apples and cold Kool Aid. We stuffed ourselves. It was delicious!! We had been on the river since ten o'clock and it seemed like twenty minutes. We continued, rapid after rapid 'til finally we reached the last one. "What do you mean eighteen feet-no way!" No other way? Oh, wow!! Well, here goes nothing—whooeeee! Man those three drops are fantastic—can we go again? Oh, we have to come back. Well we will—"

Around four o'clock a tired group of people finally beached the rafts and climbed the banks. We hung our life jackets on the racks and looked back longingly at the river one more time what an adventure—after one more look we piled into the van and started home. Oh, what stories, torrents of words and expressions: Adventure, excitement, "never had so much fun, let's come back, let's stay and go again tomorrow—our raft was fastest, we paddled better, what about the water bucket fights." On the road now, guys dozing, really tired. Around six o'clock we stopped for a great dinner and finally reached home and Cannon Cottage. Nine o'clock — worn out, frazzled, pooped, sleepy, sore, sunburned! But man what a time we had. Thank you Barium Springs—thanks for a great adventure, great summer, thanks for caring—We love you—

The Cannon Cottage Gang! Kids and Staff

This is Jennie's last day in your. class, and words cannot express the gratitude and appreciation of keel toward the way you have helped and taught gennie this past year. Before she came to Barren Springs, Jenne would make up crying - nut manting to go to nursey. after only a few weeks in your class that stopped, and now she looks forward to every day of the center and even how to be reassured that she will be going back the next day. I am constantly amound and delighted ax the things she has learned and brough home that she has done, you have been patient and understanding through all of Jennie 's growing stages and her 'goac and had " periods during this year. I tuly believe you have made the diplevence in Jennie's willook on life outside her home and family - in a pre-school and a future school setting. I truly do thank you back, Sincerely, anto Senty

APPRECIATION

Barium Springs Home for Children expresses sincere thanks to International Paper Company (Mr. Mickle Howell, Plant General Foreman) Statesville, for providing the cardboard in which the Thanksgiving materials are prepared for delivery to the churches. They have provided these materials free for a number of years.

NOTICE TO CHURCHES

Churches are asked to please pick up their Barium Springs Home for Children Thanksgiving materials at the fall meeting of their Presbytery. The postage saving can be substantial.

However, should you not get these materials at the Presbytery meeting, they will be mailed at a later date.

Look for us there, and . . . thanks for helping!

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

THE GANG'S ALL HERE!

The pictures here were reprinted from the 1980-81 Barium Springs School yearbook, our first since 1957 when the "old" Barium Springs High School closed its doors and students began attending public schools. The book was organized to give each cottage group its own section for pictures of the staff and youngsters and their activities. A section of poems and drawings by the youngsters on campus was also published in the yearbook. You'll get a chance to find out about those talents when we bublish some of the poems in later issues of The Messenger.

The results of this first effort in so many years was a little ate, arriving during the summer after the completion of the school year. However, the work and waiting was worth it when we were able to laugh and remember all the times and people the yearbook represented. We're already making plans for another one to be printed for the upcoming school year, and a yearbook will once again become a regular feature at Barium Springs to go along with our own new school.

The group you see in the picture here really is almost the "whole gang," gathered last June at the end of school celebrating graduation and the completion of our first year of school on campus in 24 years.

BEE QUEST

A major objective of Barium Springs Home for Children is to provide the best program possible to help those troubled young people in our care. Such a program is expensive; but, as a Friend of Barium, you can help us accomplish our goal and in no way eopardize your own financial security.

Perhaps you are one of those friends who give regularly to Barium and would like to make a large gift. But how? Your resources are rather limited and with the ever increasing cost of day-to-day living most of us hesitate to commit ourselves to the larger gift. One possible answer is a deferred gift—a plan whereby you make an immediate gift to Barium but retain the absolute right to enjoy or possess the property during your life; and, if you wish, you may extend this privilege for the life of another.

Here's how. Some friends leave their homes and other real state to us in their Wills. In most cases they can't make these sifts now because they need their homes to live in and the income rom other property. But . . . you may be interested to know that you can deed your residence or other property to Barium now, etain the use of the property for life, provide for another to njoy life occupancy, and receive all income from the property.

In addition, an income tax deduction is allowed for the renainder interest of your gift at the time you make it, probate osts are reduced, and, if your gift should increase in value, uture capital gains tax would be avoided. The deed gives you and others, if you chose) the right to live in the residence for ife; the house does not become the property of Barium until you and those designated by you are deceased.

EXAMPLE: Mr. and Mrs. McIver, both retired, have a modest estate consisting mainly of their home and a small farm which they rent out. Their income from social security and from the farm enables them to live comfortably. Both of their children are grown and financially O.K. The McIvers have always been interested in Barium and support us with regular memorial and other special gifts. They plan to leave both the residence and the farm to Barium in their Wills. (Each has a Will).

Mr. and Mrs. McIver decide to make a gift now to Barium but will continue to live in their home and receive the income from the farm. They accomplish this by deeding the property to Barium Springs Home for Children now but retain a life estate in the property. Here's what happens:

- (1) The McIvers retain full use of the property for life.
- (2) They receive an immediate income tax deduction for the remainder interest in the properties.
- (3) Barium receives the property at their death.

Here is a slightly different example where real estate may be used to make a lifetime gift to Barium and at the same time Donor will increase his income.

EXAMPLE: Mr. Winston, age 68, and his wife own 100 acres of unimproved real setate for which they paid $20,000 in 1950. They receive no income from the property and, of course, pay property taxes on it. The Winstons need additional income but would have to pay a large capital gains tax if they sell the property. What can they do? The solution: They deed the land to Barium in exchange for a Charitable Remainder Annuity Trust, the amount of which is determined by the sales price (in this case $100,000), of the proprety. The results:

- (1) Mr. and Mrs. Winston have made a generous gift to Barium.
- (2) All capital gains tax on the sale of the property is avoided.
- (3) They have exchanged property which produced no income for an income of $6800 annually for Mr. Winston's life time. (Or, a slightly reduced income to include payments for life to the survivor).
- (4) They have received a charitable contribution deduction of $37,280. from current income taxes with a five year carryover.
- (5) Of the $6800 annual income, $4828 is tax free.

We will be pleased to give you additional information explaining how you may plan a deferred gift to Barium Springs Home for Children, maximize income tax benefits, and increase your income. Write today.

FORMER REGENT DIES

William "Bill" Bencini died at North Carolina Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem on Sept. 5, 1981, after a lengthy illness.

Bencini was a native of High Point and served as Mayor there from 1971 to 1973. He was active in civic affairs, a charter member of the Forest Hills Presbyterian Church where he was a deacon, elder, trustee and Sunday School teacher. "Bill" made a valuable contribution to Barium Springs Home for Children where he served as a Regent for two terms.

Surviving are his wife, Ann of the home; one daughter, Mrs. Gene F. (Beth) Carcone of New York City; and two sons, William S., Jr. of High Point and Franklin T. of New York City.

The family has requested that memorials be directed to Forest Hills Presbyterian Church, High Point, Barium Springs Home for Children or the American Cancer Society.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY AT THANKSGIVING

*REPLICA OF "THE SPRINGS"

"WHY ARE WE CALLED BARIUM SPRINGS?"

One day a tribe of Indians living in this area made a marvelous discovery. Deep in the woods they encountered a group of old horses they had turned out to die years before. The horses were not only alive, the story goes, but spry and healthy. Nearby they soon uncovered the natural springs, and Indians from miles away came to be healed by the "Medicine Water." Many who bathed in it spread the word of miraculous cures from wounds and diseases.

At the same time, though, they noticed that deer and other wild animals would not drink from it, so they named it "Poison Springs." When the white settlers moved into the area in 1775, they too were afraid of drinking the water. Many years passed, until finally the water was analyzed and found to possess a number of health-giving substances. The largest spring contained mainly barium, but it actually was only one of nine springs, each within ten steps of the next one. Each of the nine contained a different element. Besides the barium spring, then, there were limestone, salt, iron, alum, chalybeate, magnesia, and red, white, and blue sulphur springs.

By 1882, the property had become known as Linster's Springs, as it was owned by the F. F. Linster family. A Statesville Record and Landmark article at the time described it this way:

"This remarkable spot has many visitors. So many different kinds of water . . . are situated in a beautiful dell into which the sun can hardly penetrate, and from which the evening sun becomes invisible for an hour before it sets. The place has nothing but its natural attractions to offier the visitor, but these are certainly rare."

It seemed destined to become a thriving resort area. Nearly every house in Troutman rented out a spare room or two to a con-

Our Programs

Residental Group Care For Troubled Teenagers

The only such program in our state—we are proud to be a part of a church willing to attempt—and support—this most difficult service to youth.

Day Care For Pre-Schoolers

Our day care program has become a model program serving 74 children — 6 weeks through 4 years of age.

A joint effort of Snyod and Barium has produced a most effective family life center model at Wilmington.

Our Special Needs | Challenges

To meet the special needs of troubled teenagers we found it necessary to establish an on-campus school; additional yearly cost in excess of $100,000.00.

Synod has requested that we make available to churches day care consultation and staff training; estimated annual cost $20,000.00.

Synod has requested that we duplicate our successful family life center model at Wilmington in other selected areas; approximately cost $75,000.00/center.

In an effort to contain run-a-way utility costs we are implementing recommendations of a recent energy study; projected cost $38,000.00.

Home Receives $48,000 In Duke Endowment Grants

Trustees of the Duke Endowment have made a grant of $18,000 to Barium Springs Home for Children to support its oncampus school for teenagers in care, according to A. H. Gale, Jr., director of the Endowment's Hospital and Child Care Division. A concurrent grant of $30,000 to assist with the cost of renovation to provide suitable space for the school was also announced by Gale.

Both Earle Frazier, executive director of the Barium Springs Home for Children and Rev. David Q. Garrison, president of the Board of Regents, expressed appreciation to the Duke Endowment for this special support.

Barium Springs Home for Children has received annual support from the Duke Endowment since 1925. Since that time, trustees of the Duke Endowment have made grants to Barium Springs totaling more than $850,000.

In addition to children's homes in North Carolina and South Carolina, the Endowment also assists nonprofit hospitals in the Carolinas; four educational institutions, Duke, Johnson C. Smith, and Furman Universities, and Davidson College; and rural United Methodist churches, retired United Methodist ministers and widows and dependent orphaned children of United Methodist ministers in North Carolina.

The Duke Endowment was established by James B. Duke in 1924, and is today among the largest private foundations in the United States, with assets valued at $380,608,292. Grants made during 1980 totaled $33.5 million.

Since 1924, trustees of the Duke Endowment have appropriated more than a half billion dollars—$538,433,817—to the beneficiaries selected by Mr. Duke.

stant stream of visitors. Trains from Charlotte and Statesville stopped four times a day, and carts would shuttle people down to the springs by way of what is now the dirt "orchard road." Each of the nine springs was fixed up with a rock wall around it, and the whole area of an acre or so was landscaped in lawns and flowers, and enclosed. The plans were to build a hotel and swimming pool, and to develope three more springs further back in the woods into bathing pools.

Unfortunately, the property had to be sold and re-sold as each owner in turn was unable to pay the mortgage. A hotel was eventually completed in 1886, and the name changed to Barium Springs. The hotel was "a neat wooden structure of dressed lumber, covered with tin, two stories high and one hundred feet long, containing thirty good sized rooms with a well of water and several outhouses." (N. C. Presbyterian, Nov. 1890) It was located a short distance from the springs on a slight rise of land surrounded by oaks, the site of the present dining hall. After several changes of ownership, the hotel was finally sold to the

Friends and alumni were saddened to learn of the death of Mr. Robert A. Johnson of the class of 1951. Mrs. Johnson lives at 1840 Stockton Drive Fayetteville, N. C. 28304. The Barium staff extends deepest sympathy to the family.

Synod of North Carolina in 1891 to house the first children of the orphanage.

In the meantime, the Barium Springs Company retained ownership of the springs, and did a booming business from the 1880's to the end of World War I, when they were sold to the children's home. A booklet, entitled the "Water Book," published by the company in 1903 contained multiple testimonials to the springs' healing powers. The water was sold in five gallon glass demijohns which were set into individual wooden crates. It was also available in large wooden barrels lined with wax. The demijohns sold for $2.50 and the 53 gallon barrels for $9.00. These were shipped all over the country; there are records that even list shipments to Ireland and England.

A begrudging comment is found in the Landmark of September 5, 1889: "The dullest month of the year, and J. I. Pope, manager of Barium Springs, has shipped over $100 worth of water."

Advertising itself as "the great human repair shop," the company claimed almost limitless curative powers for the water—everything from skin diseases to rheumatism to cancer. Many of the testimonials were written by physicians and well-known leaders in the community and state. An example is this one by Mr. J. C. Howie of Charlotte: "I suffered from inflammatory rheumatism, spent $300 at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and lost all hopes of recovery. Spent six weeks at the Barium Springs, gained 25 pounds, and my health was as good as it ever was. I felt like a new man."

It is interesting to note that people were asked to accompany their orders with a letter explaining their problem, so that a physician connected with the company could then send instructions along with the water. These instructions were sometimes fairly extensive, and may have played a role in some of the healings. To cure eczema, for instance, they advised the person not only to bathe in Barium water every two hours, but also to drink a gallon of water a day, soak the skin in a bran solution, apply a particular commercial ointment, drink a glass of milk before each meal, take frequent naps and follow a detailed diet.

Whatever the factors involved, it is certain that many people believed they were healed from the Barium water. In an old advertisement, the Springs were allowed to speak for themselves:

> "My name is Barium Rock Water; I have sped through strange, dark ways untried before, by pure desire for friendship led, I bring four royal gifts to thee: Long Life, Health, Peace, and Purity."

Love

Love is like a baby being born.
With his parents smiling at him.

Love is gliding through the air with the birds and nothing to worry about cause you're free now.

Walking on the beach with your best friend holding hands and just smiling at each other.

Love is a boy getting his first spanking cause he did something wrong.

Love please be kind to me and if I do wrong remember to spank me for it.

Love is being with someone you love a lot, even if it means you have to lose them and say good-bye forever.

A Christmas Prayer

We thank Thee, O God, for the return of the wondrous spell of this Christmas season that brings its own sweet joy into our . . . troubled hearts.

Forbid it, Lord, that we should celebrate without understanding what we celebrate, or, like our counterparts so long ago, fail to see the star or to hear the song of glorious promise.

As our hearts yield to the spirit of Christmas, may we discover that it is Thy Holy Spirit who comes—not a sentiment, but a power—to remind us of the only way . . . there may be peace on . . . earth and good will among men.

May we not spend Christmas, but keep it . . . through Him who emptied Himself in coming to us that we might be filled with peace and joy . . . Amen.

Peter Marshall

Christmas Gifts

Have you ever been at loss to know what to give special friends at Christmas? In recent years an increasing number of our readers have made Christmas Gifts to Barium Springs Home for Children to honor loved ones.

What more beautiful Christmas expression than a gift that will help boys and girls now and will continue serving children far into the future.

Upon receipt of your gift we immediately send a special acknowledgement to the honored persons advising that you have made a gift to Barium in your name.

ENTHUSIATIC BOARD OF REGENTS MEET

The Barium Board of Regents met in regular session on November 15-16 to hear staff reports, long range planning reports and a report from Synod's Ad-Interim Committee on Coordinated Child Care. Nineteen of twenty-three Regents were

From staff reports we are pleased to report that the three major programs of the Home continue to make progress. Rebecca Armentrout, Director of Residential Services, shared observations about some of the joys and sorrows of working with troubled youth. Sara Kent, Director of Day Care Services, noted the need for additional infant care space; space currently not available in the Center's facility. David McInnis, Director of the Wilmington Family Life Center, reported that the Center's staff is at this time unable to meet the demand for counseling services. A part time counselor will be employed to assist with this problem.

Broadus Hamilton, Director of Development and Treasurer, gave a comparative report of income and expenditures over the past several years. He noted that while actual salary related expenditures have risen, salaries remain a fairly constant percentage of total expenditures.

Clements Lamberth, General Presbyter for Concord Presbytery, and Jack Parse, a member of the committee on Coordinated Child Care, reported on the proposed plan for coordinating the work of Glade Valley School, Grandfather Home for Children, and Barium Springs Home for Children. The plan, which calls for Glade Valley and Grandfather Home to move from Presbytery to Synod jurisdiction, will be finalized by the Ad-Interim Committee for the 1982 meeting of Synod.

Preliminary reports on Long Range Planning were given by Harriet Gilbert (Program Committee) John Randolph (Facility Committee), Grace Hartzog (Administration Committee) and Joyce Davis (Development Committee). Each committee was given further instructions for refining and completing recommendations to be presented to the Board of Regents at the April 25-26, 1982 meeting.

Our staff and friends are proud of the leadership provided by the Board of Regents. We hope our readers will note carefully the name of our Regents and feel free to discuss the Barium program with them. All of us appreciate your interest and concern.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

Services Expanded At Barium Day Care Center

Realizing the problem that many parents of pre-school age children face because of lack of services to children with communication disorders, Barium has started a class at the Family and Child Development Center to focus on this problem.

This pre-school age child will learn how to communicate more effectively at an age in which the necessary foundation for all future learning is built. It is imperative that these children learn proper patterns of communication or relearn patterns that have been distorted due to various complications. The program will be designed not simply to teach correct pronunciation but also to teach understanding of language at a particular child's capacity.

The program will directly affect not only the children but their families as well. Teaching parents to communicate effectively with children who are not capable of the normal acquisition of language skills can have tremendous impact on family relations. Helping parents understand the disorder opens new doors for effective communication. It minimizes the often devastating effects such as high anxiety, frustration, aggression and withdrawal in children. With proper education of parents this can possibly be avoided.

Barium Springs is physically ideal for such a program. The closest comparable services for these children with communication disorders is in Charlotte or Winston-Salem. Most parents cannot afford the time or money needed to travel this distance. Not only is Barium centrally located in the community but the building itself offers great potential. The equipment at the Center is a tremendous advantage in teaching children and their parents, as well as other educators. The existing classrooms allow for proper integration of children with problems into the main-stream of society. The availability of appropriate models and the potential for structuring good interaction between children with communication problems and those without similar problems will certainly aid in the development of language skills.

Sara P. Kent, director of the center, sees in this program great potential for the cooperation of other community agencies such as churches, Headstart program, day care facilities, public school systems, and local physicians.

A Most Sincere "Thanks"

As we begin a New Year, the staff and young people at Barium wish to express deepest appreciation to those friends who shared their gifts, their prayers and concerns with us in 1981.

Many of you increased your giving . . . many of you were not able to give as generously as in previous years . . . some of you were not able to send a gift . . . and many of you were first time donors to Barium in 1981. But without the gifts from each of you last year and in previous years we could not have provided the services needed by our youngsters. Thank you so much.

To those of you who mailed your gifts direct to us, we sent our official receipt and a letter of thanks and appreciation. To those of you who gave through your church (and many did and will again in 1982), we take this opportunity to express thanks.

And a special word of thanks at this time to those ministers and church treasurers for their generous efforts in our Thanksgiving Offering, which is so important to us.

Our youngsters and staff wish for each of you a very meaningful and rewarding 1982.

Special Services Coordinator

On January 4, 1982, William Reade Baker assumed the position of Special Services Coordinator at the Family and Child Development Center at Barium Springs. In this newly created position, Baker's primary responsibility will be working with preschoolers with communications disorders and their families. This new service of Barium is described elsewhere in the Messenger.

Mr. Baker is well qualified for this position. He received his B.A. degree in Psychology at University of North Carolina, Charlotte, in 1974. He also has an A-Certificate in Special Education from Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.

For the past three and one-half years, Baker has been employed by the North Carolina Department of Human Resources at the Developmental Evaluation Center, Concord, N. C. Reade and his wife, Sue, occupy a staff residence on campus. We welcome them to the Barium community.

enable each of us to concentrate on a particular need of children and families. And a special thanks to our church and friends for making our special ministry possible.

BEE QUEST

A Tale of Two Wills

You would not deliberately choose not to provide for the welfare of loved ones. And yet . . . over 70% of the over 1½ nillion Americans who die each year do not have personal Wills.

But do you know that every citizen of our state has a Will? The state, because it looks out for the careless, has prepared a Will for you. Not a special Will to meet your special needs, but one just like that of your next door neighbor or of the stranger n the next county. And this Will remains in force until you reate one of your own.

Will it make any difference to your loved ones if you die without a personal Will? You be the judge.

If you are a legal resident of North Carolina with a wife and two children and die without a personal Will, the state-prepared Will disposes of your property in this manner:

- 1. Your widow receives one-third of the net estate. Each of the two children receives one-third.
- 2. If your children are not of legal age, widow will probably become their guardian; however, her appointment is at the discretion of the Probate Court.
- 3. Your widow must render an annual accounting of how, why and where she spent the money necessary for the proper care of your children.
- 4. Your widow will be required to produce to the Probate Court a bond to guarantee that she will make no unlawful use in the handling, investing, and spending of the children's share of the estate.
- 5. Your widow may be required by your children when they reach eighteen to justify any expenditures she made in their behalf from their share of the estate.
- 6. Your widow may be required to receive prior approval of the Probate Court for many of the expenditures for your children's support.

So... you don't like the Will the state has prepared for you? Can you do something about it? You can . . . . AND YOU SHOULD Make the state prepared Will null and void by having your own personal Will. It can be adapted to provide exactly what you feel is necessary to protect your family and loved ones. Let's take a look at a few of the advantages of a Will which you and your attorney prepare.

- 1. You, not the state, determine to whom, how, and when your property will be distributed. Your estate represents a lifetime of effort on the part of you and your wife.
  - You are the one who should decide how your resources are to be used. You have the privilege and responsibility to make this decision on the basis of those principles and convictions which marked your life.
- 2. You select your own executor (person, bank or trust company) to handle your affairs. You may save the expense of bond premium by stating in your Will that your executor is to serve without bond.
- 3. You select the guardian who will bring up your minor children and manage their property—subject to your wife's natural rights.
- 4. You can reduce, sometimes even eliminate, estate taxes with a Will. This, of course, leaves more of your resources for your heirs.
- 5. You can make a charitable gift by Will. Many of our friends make bequests to Barium in their Wills so that their much needed support will continue after their death.

Does it make any difference which Will you choose? Bee Quest thinks it does. What do you think?

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

PUBLICATION OF BARIUM SPRINGS HOME FOR CHILDREN

JOINT VENTURE AT BARIUM

Many children ages 12-14 have need of special services to help them cope with learning, emotional or social problems.

These needs will be met when Barium Springs Home for Children (BSHC) and Alexander Children's Center (ACC) of Charlotte, cooperating Presbyterian agencies, open the Pre-Adolescent Center on the campus of BSHC on April 1.

Alexander Children's Center provides treatment for children ages 6 to 12 who have significant problems in these areas. Glenn Robinson, executive director of ACC, has expressed concern that "many children outgrow our program but still need special services which are quite limited."

Both Ed Chapin, director of Mecklenburg County Department of Social Services, and Jerry Moore of the Division of Exceptional Children Services, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools, have confirmed Robinson's observations.

Barium Springs has, in recent years, served troubled teenagers. Earle Frazier, executive director, has noted children 12-14 years of age often cannot function in groups consisting primarily of older teens.

Frazier also pointed out the shift to serving teens has resulted in limiting the capacity of BSHC to approximately 50 youth, though the home has bed-space for 75-80 children.

The obvious gap in services and the availability of facilities at BSHC prompted officials of both agencies to explore the possibility of a joint program. The combined staff experience and expertise has led to the development of an administrative structure, program policies and educational curricula for a self-contained program.

Robinson and Frazier envision beginning with one cottage of three to five children from ACC, with a maximum of eight children in the cottage. Intake will initially be limited to ACC residents from Mecklenburg County to simplify developing and refining program components.

Eventually the program could serve from 24 to 32 children n three or four cottages, depending on the effectiveness of and lemand for the program.

Plans also include children initially attending school on campus, though some children may later attend public schools.

Eddie Beach, a social worker at BSHC, has been chosen as director of the Pre-Adolescent Center. A graduate of Davidson College, he earned a master's degree in psychology from Mississippi State University and a master's in Christian education from Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Va.

The Morganton native is married to the former Connie Lowrance. Mrs. Beach, daughter of W. W. Lowrance, director of Broughton Hospital, is principal of the on-campus school at Barium Beach's mother, Mrs. Mary (Mattie) Beach also resides in Morganton.

Barium Springs now operates a pre-school center on campus and a pastoral counseling and family life education center at Wilmington. The home's facilities are also offered to a wide range of church, school and volunteer organizations for recreation and gatherings.

Rev. David Q. Garrison, pastor of New Hope Church near Chapel Hill and president of the home's Board of Regents, said he is pleased that "the Board of Regents is demonstrating responsible stewardship in service to people in need—infants, children, youth and adults. Presbyterians are truly ministering to families through BSHC."

Special Investment Program

We are pleased to list new members and renewals to Barium's Special Investment Program. Gifts from business firms and foundations are not included.

For many this is your 10th year of special giving. Some do not make the large gift every year but continue to give regularly. Thank you.

But whether you make a large gift . . . a lesser gift . . . one gift

... or many gifts—you are important to the young people at Barium Springs Home for Children.

Please continue your generous support in 1982, and remember, there are no small, no unappreciated, no unimportant gifts when the gift is used to help others. And a gift to Barium does help others... troubled youngsters... troubled families.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A WAY TO SAY YOU CARE

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

BARIUM: SYNOD'S OWN I.R.A.

This is the third ANNUAL PROGRAM ISSUE designed to give you an over-all view of Barium's services and the procedures for making use of these services. We are ever aware that giving help is a most difficult undertaking as is the act of taking help. Yet we are convinced that all share an innate need to be helpful and all find ourselves, from time to time, in need of help.

The services described on these pages are the best efforts thus far of a host of people—individual Presbyterians, Synod's Ministry Group on Family Life, Regents and Staff—to act on our inborn desire to help.

It is our goal to offer the resources of our church and the abilities of our staff with integrity for we know full well that each of us is, at times, among the givers and, at other times, among the takers.

For Teenagers

Philosophy and Goals

The Teen Center program of Barium Springs Home for Children has responded to the changing needs in a changing society by committing itself specifically to providing group care for teenagers who are having more than usual difficulty in their home, community, and school. As we try to best accomplish the tasks we set for ourselves, the staff also offers counseling, planning, and support services to the families of teenagers in residence. In each case individual planning is to accomplish the following goals:

• Stabilize the youngster's and family's situation as quickly as possible to make sound planning possible.

Enhance the development of trusting relationships between staff team members and families, and develop meaningful relationships between the youngster and both peers and adults.

 Offer help in such a fashion as to increase the probability of the family and youngsters using our help to clarify basic problems and develop strategies for resolving and/or coping with these problems.

The direction taken may be toward reuniting the family toward achieving a satisfying relationship but with a lesser amount of contact.

Program Structure

Services to youngsters in residence and to their families are provided in each of six cottages by a team of skilled staff. Each team consists of one social worker, two child care workers, and one teacher. Team members share responsibility in admission procedures, implementation of child care programs and family service plans, and operation of the cottage within agency guidelines. The campus operates on a year-round, full-time basis except that children observe major holidays and a two-week summer vacation in their homes away from campus. Recreation opportunities are available on campus in the gym, the swimming pool, or the large playground areas. Each cottage group also receives a weekly work assignment.

Since 1980, all youngsters have attended school in the licensed, private school on campus. Our schooling and instruction are designed (See TEEN CENTER on Page Three)

APPLICATION FOR SERVICE

Contact the Teen Center Secretary at Barium Springs Home for Children, Post Office Box 1, Barium Springs, North Carolina, 28010, or telephone (704) 873-1011. Applications are forwarded to a cottage team for prompt processing. Barium expects families having custody of children to share in the cost of the service according to their ability to pay. In the event of unusual circumstances this fee may be adjusted by negotiation.

For Pre-Adolescents

Eddie Beach Director

Background

On April 1, 1982, Barium Springs Home for Children is expanding our residential group care program. This program, the Pre-Adolescent Center, will be on the south end of the Barium Springs campus and separate from the current residential program for teenagers.

The impetus for this new program came from dialogue between Barium Springs and Alexander Children's Center, a Presbyterian agency in Charlotte, North Carolina. Alexander is a treatment center for emotionally disturbed children, while Barium Springs has, in recent years, provided residential care for troubled teenagers. The two agencies recognized that neither setting provided appropriate services for 11, 12, and 13 year olds with significant social, emotional, and learning problems. Both agreed that a new program was needed, an opinion confirmed by department of social services and school officials. With adequate facilities available at Barium Springs, and with experience, expertise, and commitment from Alexander and Barium Springs, it was decided to establish the Pre-Adolescent Center.

The Program

The Pre-Adolescent Center will be housed in the Quadrangle (Wallace, Johnston, Stultz and Cannon cottages). In order to simplify program development, the first children admitted will be Alexander Center residents from Mecklenburg County. The first cottage to open will house boys, with a second cottage being used for school, office, and central dining. Eventually, the program could serve from 24 to 32 children, with a maximum of 8 in each cottage. Each cottage will be staffed by two skilled child care workers, who will provide the daily nurture and guidance needed by the boys and girls.

All children will initially attend classes on campus with one special education teacher for every eight students. Later, public school may be considered as an option for those children showing the potential to succeed there. In addition to the regular 180 days of school, the Center will provide summer instruction aimed at maintaining academic skills.

The Pre-Adolescent Center plans to develop a "helping community" among staff and children by integrating work, play, learning and worship. The Center seeks, in particular, to enhance the child's relationships with family members and to promote realistic planning for the future.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION

If you would like to know more about this program, please write The Pre-Adolescent Center, P. O. Box 1, Barium Springs, North Carolina 28010 or call (704) 873-9857.

"Providing day care in response to defined needs in the Statesville-Troutman area and serving as a model for the churches of Synod..."

DAY CARE PROGRAM Philosophy and Goals

The philosophy of the Family and Child Development Center is that all children share certain needs, and can benefit from a comprehensive developmental program to meet these needs. Our goals are:

Encourage self-confidence, spontaneity, curiosity, and selfdiscipline which will assist in the development of the child's social and emotional health.

Enhance the child's mental processes and skills with particular attention to conceptual and verbal skills.

Establish patterns and expectations of success for the child, which will create a climate of confidence for his present and future learning efforts and overall development.

Encourage good health habits and development of physical abilities.

Endeavor to increase the ability of the child and his family to relate to each other in a loving and supporting manner.

Enhance a sense of dignity and self-worth within the child and his family.

Program Structure

Each weekday 87 children (16 infants, 14 two-year olds, 20 three-years olds, 24 four-year olds, and 13 school-age children) engage in a variety of activities to enrich their world. The center is presently operating at capacity enrollment with a waiting list.

The program is designed to meet the interests and needs of the children. Activities promote interaction with others but also leave the child free to play alone and develop special skills and interests. Time is spent out doors and in the gym to develop physical skills. Field trips are planned to enhance the child's knowledge of his world.

In addition to serving children in the Troutman-Statesville-Mooresville area, the center serves as a model for day care workers to come and observe and take part in workshops, and training provided by the center.

The Day Care Program receives support from the parents of the children, the Iredell County Department of Social Services, the N. C. Department of Human Resources, the N. C. Food Services Program, and from Barium Springs Home for Children.

In the summer an additional 30 children, ages 5-10, participate in a program specifically designed for them. This program includes swimming, arts and crafts, and field trips to enhance the child's knowledge of his surroundings.

Parent participation and education is also an important part of the Day Care Program. Monthly meetings and workshops are held. Parents are encouraged to come by the director's office and watch their child on the closed circuit television system.

to serve the broader program goals of educating and preparing individuals to live satisfying and productive lives. Academic instruction in the school is geared to the performance level of the individual as we attempt to help those youth who are functioning below grade/age evel academically to attain appropriate grade/age level and to realize heir academic potential.

In all facets of the program, a focus on the cottage group—the eam and youngsters in a particular cottage—is paramount. The group nodel of care uses relationships within the peer group and relationships with staff to promote stability. Staff members communicate to youth and families the realities of their situation, empathize with heir hurts and frustrations, and offer support for the plan of action thosen by the youngster and family.

SPECIAL SERVICES PROGRAM Philosophy and Goals

The Special Services Program is designed to meet the growing demand for early intervention in the lives of children with special developmental needs. The Special Services Program operates within the Family and Child Development Center structure and adds home training for specific children, one to one developmental programing and small group instruction. It is an addition to the existing potential for parent group and para-professional workshops offered by the Family and Child Development Center. The program is primarily designed to individually assess the needs of children 0-5 and provide program instruction in identified areas of delayed development. Our goals are: (1) to help alleviate problem areas of development before a child reaches public school age, (2) to mainstream children when possible into the normal classroom setting, and (3) to educate parents as to the nature of their child's problem and methods of appropriate developmental stimulation.

Program Structure

All children enrolled in the Family and Child Development Center are eligible for the Special Services Program without additional cost. Parents who wish to participate in the Special Services Program or the home training aspect of the program without enrolling their child in the Family and Child Development Center are charged $15.00 per hour. Parents and para-professional workshops are charged according to the cost of materials per workshop.

Parent participation is a primary goal of the Special Services Program. Classroom participation is requested and home training is directed to the education of parents. Home training is available at odd hours to accommodate working parents. For those parents whose children are enrolled in other day care facilities, consultation is available through the home training program and through direct consultation to day care agencies.

Our program operates in the spirit of "total involvement." We feel there is no room for competition in the delivery of services to children with special needs. By working together with the "total involvement" method in mind we are able to utilize all available services to meet the needs of preschoolers, regardless of their placement in the community.

APPLICATION FOR SERVICES

For more information on the Special Services Program or to refer children contact Reade Baker, Special Services Program Coordinator, at the Family and Child Development Center, P. O. Box 209, Barium Springs, North Carolina, 28010, or by calling (704) 872-7351. Applications will be promptly reviewed and contact will immediately follow.

PRESBYTERIAN PERSONAL and FAMILY LIFE CENTER

"Providing and/or promoting family life education and counseling in harmony with other Synod efforts to help families..."

A Brief History

The past three years have obviously been significant in the life of the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center. It has grown from the ideas and hopes of persons within Wilmington Presbytery, Barium Springs Home for Children, and the Synod into a service that provides more than two thousand hours of counseling and educational events each year. It has changed from an idea to a reality, from a dream to a daily presence in the lives of persons seeking help, from a hope to a readily available resource to pastors as they care for their parishioners. These three years have given substance to a concern for improving the quality and health of individual and family life as well as contributing to the depth of care available to persons in local congregations.

During these three years the cooperation of the individual sessions, Wilmington Presbytery, the Synod of North Carolina, and its service agency, Barium Springs Home for Children has become a foundation that gives vitality and consistency to the services available through the Center.

This ministry is provided through pastoral Care and Counseling, as well as through Educational work in the areas of Family and Personal Life. Pastoral Care, Counseling, and Education conducted within the context of the Christian Faith are expressions of a healing ministry combined with the knowledge and techniques of the behavioral sciences. The work is carried out in a cooperative atmosphere with other qualified helping professionals such as pastors, social workers, nurses, psychologists, guidance counselors, teachers, psychiatrists and the like. Indeed this particular ministry is an endeavor that helps build a bridge between faith and mental health.

As we complete the third year of this ministry, the future may be faced optimistically. The continuance of the relationship between the various church courts and agencies that make the ministry possible is a source of great pleasure in that this cooperation daily emphasizes the value and possibilities of the connectional system. Further, the addition of Ms. Kathy Weeks with her training in psychology has added new depth to the staff while the ongoing work and commitment of Rev. George Slaton and Rev. David McInnis have continued to establish the stability from which this ministry is offered.

Finally, the establishment of a sound financial basis as well as consistent useage of the available services indicate that a need is being met. Certainly, it is this responding to persons in need of help with their individual and family lives that gives purpose and direction to this ministry. It is indeed a privilege to provide this care for God's people in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Services Offered

Nine basic areas of service are offered by the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center:

- 1. Individual Counseling: to help individuals understand their personal problems and potential and become better able to cope with personal and interpersonal issues.
- 2. Marriage and Conjoint Counseling: to help husband and wife or couples through individual and joint session(s) to clarify their relational problems and find new and better ways of relating.
- 3. Parent and Family Counseling: for parents and children to move with greater understanding toward strengthening family relationships. Several or all family members may be counseled at the same time.

4. Children and Youth Counseling: to help those having problems at home, school and with their peers.

5. Group Counseling: to help individuals explore interpersonal feelings and problems with the goal of increasing competence in interpersonal relations. This is a supplement to individual counseling.

 Educational Events: to offer educational opportunities to assist individuals, couples, and families in their personal and interpersonal relations and to enrich and expand their concept of family and person.

Consultation Service: to support and assist clergy in evaluating parishioners' problems, in identifying the help that is needed and in enhancing their own effectiveness in parish ministry.
 Premarital Counseling: for couples or individuals considering

 Premarital Counseling: for couples or individuals considering marriage to understand some of the factors which may undermine healthy marital interaction as well as those which contribute to a harmonious relationship.

9. Pastoral Care: to provide a support system for pastors throughout the Presbytery. This service is provided through visitation on behalf of Wilmington Presbytery.

The main office of the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center is in the Delgado Presbyterian Church, 1950 Moss Street, Wilmington. (Mail Address: P. O. Box Box 4543, Wilmington, N. C. 28406). Appointments may be scheduled between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. (Monday through Thursday) and 8:30 to Noon on Friday. Our telephone number: (919) 762-4378.

Our Jacksonville Office is in the First Presbyterian Church, 400 Bayshore Boulevard, North. Appointments may be scheduled by calling (919) 455-2434 between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Rev. George Slaton, the counselor for this office, is only in Jacksonville on Thursdays.

The Barium Messenger is anxious to hear from alumni and tiends. Write us!

Mother's Day Offering, May 9

The annual Mother's Day Offering is a special way for churches and individuals in our Synod to share in the ministry of The Presbyterian Home in High Point. This year the special offering authorized by Synod will be taken on Sunday, May 9.

The Barium Messenger encourages its readers to share in this very important ministry.

Since its beginning thirty years ago, Presbyterian Home has never turned away anyone for lack of funds or inability to pay the full cost of care. During this time it has been "home" for over 800 elderly men and women.

Please send your gifts direct to The Presbyterian Home, Inc., Post Office Box 2007, High Point, N. C. 27261.

ESTABLISHED 1891

BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA 28010

April 27, 1982

DEAR FRIEND OF BARIUM:

Thank you for your letter and for raising a very good question: "What do Wills have to do with children?"

Mr. James W. Shepard of the Spofford Home, Kansas City, Missouri, gives us some excellent answers in the Winter, 1979 issue of Spofford Scribbles. I appreciate his permission to share this information.

Older adults, of course, have a natural interest in Wills, because they have already seen them accomplish the last wishes of many of their friends. They may already have drafted their own Wills, with the help of an attorney, and even updated them through the years.

But what do Wills have to do with younger people, or children?

Several important things:

Young parents need to have their own Wills, "his and hers," in order to provide proper care for their minor children, in case something should happen to both parents at the same time (as in a car, a fire or a plane accident); unfortunately it does happen quite often.

In a thoughtful Will, each parent can name the guardian they have chosen and agreed upon in the event the other spouse is not living.

If they fail to make these provisions in their Wills, and the children are orphaned, the State will appoint a guardian who will be accountable to the court. This could be someone whom the parents would not have chosen, probably the nearest relative who is willing to take them.

And, of course, children's needs must be taken into consideration when their inheritances are planned. A simple matter? Equal shares to all?

Not necessarily. Suppose one child is handicapped and will need special support all his/her life? As the children grow up, other differences may also suggest unequal inheritances—for instance, one child may have financial responsibility for the care of the aging parent(s). It might be fitting to provide a large bequest for that one, if possible.

Or one child may become unusually wealthy on his/her own, or through marriage, while another may have real financial pressures which could be alleviated through unequal bequests.

So when planning their Wills, parents should think beyond simply "counting heads" in some cases.

Children do change through the years of education, adventure and developing of relationships. There may be a time when a lump sum inheritance would be a dangerous thing for a young person, even though he may have reached voting age! At that time, it might be wise for the parents to change their Wills, assigning not a cash bequest, but smaller, regular, monthly income from a trust created particularly for that person. The trust can be arranged through a provision of the Will.

Remember, Wills once written do not have to be final. When changes occur, in lifestyle, business, family, interests, etc., so can the Wills.

There is another important way in which children can influence the plans you may have for your Will—the children at Barium. These troubled youngsters are in a true sense, the dependents of us all. They must look to us for the chance to gain their balance and catch up with a world that has gotten a head start on them.

Your bequest to Barium might safely be an outright cash amount, or a percentage of your estate. It could be a gift of stocks or bonds, real estate, insurance, antiques, or other property of value.

Whether or not you can consider including a bequest for Barium Springs Home for Children, if you would like information on Will writing (which could greatly benefit your heirs), just ask us.

There's no obligation but just a reminder that Barium welcomes gifts and bequests for the future of some very important youngsters.

Thank you again for your involvement and support of our efforts to help young people and families. It is a joint effort, you know.

Sincerely.

Beo Quest

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

"POETRY ALIVE" AT CAMPUS SCHOOL

The minds and imaginations of youngsters and staff in the Adolescent Center came alive recently when Ellen Turlington Johnston-Hale spent three days on campus conducting workshops on poetry and sharing with us her own experiences as an educator, poet, and observer of people.

Mrs. Johnston-Hale, better known to her students as "Miz J," is currently the Poet-in-the-Schools for the North Carolina Arts Council, as well as teacher, consultant and speaker to various civic and educational organizations. She has a number of books and articles to her credit and an award winning television series called "Poetry Alive." Before all this, "Miz J" was a teacher with the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system, teaching English and Creative Writing for a number of years. She is the mother of three grown children and admirers everywhere among the children she has worked with across the years.

Perhaps the more important, but more difficult thing to describe, is what Ellen Turlington Johnston-Hale is really like. She has a refreshing, spontaneous way of relating to people and events. She entertains. She uses mundane, everyday occurrences to illuminate the kind of hurts, concerns, joys, and delights that we all feel in life. She shares her perceptions and insights and very real love for students and people of all ages through her poetry. She touches the "poet-child" in everyone and, better yet, makes us touch that part of ourselves. She gives out poetic licenses, real little cards that give people permission to see things differently, enjoy the moments that other people miss, and to write it all down in a poem.

THE LIBRARY

UNIVERSITY OF N. C.

These are some of the poems the youngsters were inspired to write. Their thoughts and their poetry covered everything from a school bell rung at a wrong time, to a girl who had run away and was missing during the workshop, to their history lessons, to their thoughts of home and parents to ... well, many other things. Enjoy this sample from our Barium Springs poetry collection!

[Editor's Note: We regret that space does not permit the printing of all poems; however, others will be printed in future issues.]

SUPPER BELL

It's not supper cause we just got through with lunch so why is someone dinging the ding-ding-dong and ringing the dong-dong-ding and donging the dog gone thing?

Group effort from one class

FEAR

Where is it at.
In Charlotte on Tippa Avenue.
When I walk down that street by that old house, I get scared like a cat chasing a mouse.
I walk as fast as I can because I know that I won't be back again and when I get off of that street,
I grab hold of my feet and say,
We've made it together again.
M.B.

RUNNING AWAY

One night I ran away Away from home. I thought my mom didn't . . . well, I thought she didn't love me.

I was out on the streets with hardly any money for three whole weeks I hardly ate I thought I was cool at first But I soon found out it was dumb.

So I went home
I kissed my mom and said
I'm sorry.

D.R.

WHAT DO THEY THINK?

What do they think?
They think they know me.
But I know different.
Qualities surround me
Like the sky surrounds the sun.

What do they think?
They think they know the world
But deep down it's crazy
Confused and sad
People hide from the truth
Never letting things go.

What do they think?
They think they are happy
But really they're not.
Hiding the truth, living a fantasy.
What do they think?
They really don't know.

My mother used to run my life
Until I started dating then I would let My boyfriend run my life until he broke my heart
Then I started running my own life.
L.T.

THUNDER STORM

I didn't even know we had one!
But Miz "J" said she got waked up last night and wrote it in her poem pot how thunder vibrated, rocking across black sky; how fierce jagged lightning ripped the darkness, split pale shadows on my wall.

Group effort from one class

DAYLIGHT

The sun rises on a clear morning All sparkles as the dew sets in Smells as sweet as a rose blooming Spiders weave their web of mystery Patterns never the same. I wake when the dew is wet I wish all days were this way.

T.W.

My mind is like an ocean
With vast ships traversing across its depths
Holding knowledge in its cargo holds
No, my mind is a desert
With nomads searching for an oasis.
No, my mind is a lightbulb
Which only works when turned on.
No, my mind is a pond
With creatures thirsting for knowledge
No, my mind is . . .
Does anyone know?
W.C.

IT'S SUICIDE

They ran away . . . again.
They couldn't take it anymore, this anger, the hatred, the bore.
Or maybe . . .
Maybe it was all for fun.
It's a dangerous game to play.
The way people get killed everyday.
It's just like play Russian Roulette . . .
. . . With a loaded chamber.

BEE QUEST

ISN'T IT GREAT?

VACATION . . . HAPPY TIME

Yes, it's that time of year again. A time to get away from day-to-day routines. An opportunity to see new places, make new friends, to relax with the family. A chance to sleep late, to read, no schedules to meet. A chance to look back on where we've been . . . where we are . . . and to look ahead to where we want to go. But most of all, an opportunity to "get away from it all" for a short while.

And what is this panacea we all anticipate with such eagerness? Nothing but the ANNUAL VACATION!

And, like most things we look forward to, an enjoyable vacation requires a lot of planning by the entire family. Where to go? By plane or car? The costs? Reservations? Length of stay? The list goes on and on.

Then, once the basic decisions are made, there is the seemingly endless check list: discontinue paper delivery, advise Post Office to either hold all mail, or forward, or have a neighbor pick up daily; arrange for lawn to be mowed; notify police department; leave key with a friend and request periodic checks of the house; leave emergency telephone number with neighbor; provide for care of pets and plants; etc., etc.

Making these arrangements is necessary if you and your family are to have a "good vacation." But most of us do these things automatically. However, the one thing which would give all of us piece of mind and a more relaxing vacation is overlooked by at least 70% of us—OUR WILL.

So, Bee Quest earnestly urges you to make your Will before starting on your vacation. Or, if you already have one, review it carefully. Make sure that your Will reflects your family's needs at this time.

Really, making your Will is not at all difficult. The five basic steps listed below will service as a guide to assist you in preparing a sound sensible Will for the protection of your loved ones.

- * List your property, your heirs and what each is to receive.
- * Name your executor. If there are minor children be sure to name a guardian. Every couple with children must recognize that a common disaster could orphan them.
- * Consult a lawyer to be sure your Will is properly drawn and meets legal requirements.
- * Remember to include in your Will a bequest to those charitable organizations you supported during your life time. They need your continuing help.
- * Review your Will regularly to make certain it reflects any changes in your net worth, family obligations and future plans.

Only five things to remember: LIST . . . EXECUTOR . . . LAWYER . . . REMEMBER . . . REVIEW.

REMEMBER...HOMECOMING: July 31/August 1

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

Outstanding Award To Barium Couple

James and Lucille Hall of Barium Springs Home for Children received the N. C. Child Care Association's Child Care Worker of the Year Award during the association's May 11 annual program meeting at Camp Caraway, Asheboro.

In making the presentation, W. Earle Frazier, executive director of Barium Springs, said, "Most of the vast number of people we meet have little lasting impact on us. But a few people along the way make lasting impressions."

Among the latter group, he added, are the Halls, who joined the Presbyterian agency in 1967 as houseparents for 12 girls in their early teens.

The Halls plan to retire in August and return to their home town of Fayet-

Frazier related incidents showing the couple's unique way of caring for the nany boys and girls they have worked with through the years. He also praised heir honesty in dealing with both chillren and staff.

"It was so nice to begin a conference

A Message From Alumni President

Dear Alumni:

Homecoming is knocking at the door for 1982. A schedule of the festivities is included in the Alumni letter just mailed, and in the June, 1982 Barium Messenger. It is hoped that all Alumni will be able to attend Homecoming on July 31-August 1, 1982.

The headquarters for the Saturday evening "get-to-gether" is the Ramada Inn, on I-77, Statesville, N. C. (Tel. 704-872-5215. If room reservations are needed, the Ramada Inn has quite a number reserved for the Alumni who may wish to make reservations. If you desire to make such reservations, please make your reservations right away. Ramada Inn has a Senior Citizens program, for those who wish to take advantage of it.

There are several other Motels close by: Days Inn (Tel. 704-873-5252), Master Hosts Inn (Tel. 704-873-5236), and the Holiday Inn (Tel. 704-872-4101.)

Looking forward to seeing you at Homecoming.

Paul A. Horne, President with Mrs. Hall and ask the usual question, 'How's it going?' and be told how it was really going," Frazier said.

He added the Halls have "enriched and enlivened the lives of staff people at Barium Springs" and that hundreds of boys, girls and staff count them among their best friends.

The N. C. Child Care Association is made up of 25 non-profit agencies in the state. Each year the association recognizes outstanding performance by one child care worker or couple, one social worker and one trustee of member agencies.

The Alan Keith-Lucas Friend of Children Award is presented to an individual who has made outstanding contributions to children and is not limited to member agency personnel.

ALUMNI NEWS

Mr. Walter Watson Beattie of 2401 Shamrock Drive, Charlotte, died May 15, 1982 at Memorial Hospital. Walter, a member of the Barium Class of 1927 and a Davidson College graduate, was an Assistant Postmaster in Charlotte for over 40 years.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Vivian Phillips Klutz Beattie; a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Lewis of Wilmington; a sister, Mrs. Martha McGrath of Richmond, Va., and three grandchildren.

The Messenger is pleased to add to our Alumni list Mrs. F. J. Golman, (Pat Hooten) 1347 Jobs Peak Drive, Gardnerville, Nevada 89410. Pat, her sister Betty Lou, and brother Roland spent many years at Barium. Hopefully, all three will be here for Homecoming.

FATHER AND SON

What sort of a father are you to your boy? Do you know if your standing is good? Do you ever take stock of yourself and check up Your accounts with your boy as you should?

Do you ever reflect on your conduct with him? Are you all that a father should be? Do you send him away when you're anxious to read, Or let him climb up on your knee?

Have you time to bestow on the boy when he comes With his questions—to tell him the truth? Or do you neglect him and leave him alone To work out the problems of youth?

Come, father, reflect. Does he know you today And do you know him now as you should? Is gold so important to you that you leave It to chance that your boy will be good?

Take stock of yourself and consider the lad; Your time and your thought are his due; How would you answer your God, should He ask, "What sort of father are you?"

—Author Unknown

Rev. Wayne Rogers Homecoming Speaker

The guest minister for Homecoming Services at Little Joe's Presbyterian Church this year will be Rev. Wayne Rogers. Wayne was a resident at Barium from 1959 to 1963.

He graduated from King College, Bristol, Virginia in 1968 and was ordained into the ministry in 1972. He is married to Judy Belcher of Haysi, Virginia, and has three children.

Although Wayne did not finish his schooling at Barium, certainly there is no doubt his experiences here had a great influence on his life. Rev. Rogers is now serving as pastor of The Covenant Reformed Presbyterian Church in Asheville.

HELP!

We need your help in keeping our mailing list for the Barium Messenger up to date. We mail to a large list, about 44,000, and it is difficult and expensive to keep duplications or incorrect mailings from happening—no matter how hard we try.

You are the only one who can help us. If your household receives more than one copy of the Barium Messenger, or if you change your address, please let us know promptly.

To notify us of a change or duplication, just cut the current name and address from the Barium Messenger, correct it, put it in an envelope and mail to us. Thank you so much.

YOUTH ACTIVITIES FUND

In recent years readers of the BARIUM MESSENGER contributed most generously to our Youth Activities Fund. Many have already responded this year; however, total gifts to this fund are much less than in previous years. May we sincerely urge that if you haven't already given this year that you will do so as generously as possible.

Individuals or church groups may want to assume responsibility for one or more of the following items: lifeguard or special education tutor for one week—$125; cottage week-encouting—$100-$150; camping equipment—$25-$100; tennis racket or ball glove—$20; arts and crafts materials—$15-50.

You can be sure that your gift will be very much appreciated and used to better prepare our young people to face the challenges and opportunities of approaching adulthood.

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

New Administrative Assistant Added To Barium Staff

Rochelle S. Haimes of Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., will join the administrative taff of Barium Springs Home for Chillren on September 1.

She comes to Barium Springs from the Andrus Children's Home in Yonkers, N. Y., where she has served as director of linical services since October 1979. Her luties there included planning and superision of social services to families and hildren.

The new administrative position at Parium Springs is designed to provide adninistrative support and oversight of all ampus - based programs, including the re-school, teen and maintenance prorams, as well as the planned pre-adolesent program.

Miss Haimes has experience as a child are worker, social worker, remedial proect supervisor and group home supervisor. t one time she served as direcor of the Division of Community Care of the Epis-

CONGRATULATIONS, DAVID!

DAVID AND BUDDIES

The students and staff of Barium Springs School experienced a very exciting event on June 7. David Eugene Robinson became the second graduate of Barium Springs School—the first to receive a high school diploma—since the school opened 2 years ago. David came to Barium from Charlotte, North Carolina 21/2 years ago. He lived in Caldwell Cottage while at Barium. David's graduation was the culmination of much hard work both in school and in the cottage. This also included taking and passing the competency

David's graduation was an event that copal Child Care Services in Charlotte.

She obtained a bachelor of arts from Columbia University, earning her masters in social work from the university's school of social work in 1971.

The field work coordinator for Hunter School of Social Work is a member of the National Association of Social Workers and the Academy of Certified Social Workers. She has also been a field instructor for the University of North Carolina School of Social Work.

Miss Haimes' postion was approved by the home's board of regents in April and will allow Executive Director Earle Frazier to devote more time to development and public relations.

everyone on campus looked forward to. The celebration began with graduation exercises in the dining hall. Everyone on campus was invited to share this memorable time with David. The dining hall was decorated very appropriately with, among other graduation decorations, the word "congratulations" written in large letters and strung above the reception table. These letters were made by David's cottage mates in Caldwell Cottage. The program was presented by Connie Beach, principal of Barium Springs School, who also presented David with his diploma and a travel alarm as a gift from the school. Maria Lambert, teacher at Caldwell Cottage, and proud classmates congratulated David at the end of the program.

Following the graduation exercise, a reception was held for David in the dining hall. All who attended the graduation exercise enjoyed refreshments and extended personal congratulations to David.

David was then honored with another reception at Caldwell Cottage for his special guests. These guests enjoyed sharing this event with David and watched as he opened the many gifts he had received.

David left Barium Springs Home for Children June 10 to return to Charlotte. He is currently employed at a nursing home in Charlotte and reports that he is enjoying his job and doing very well. We are extremely proud of David and wish him continued success.

Picnic and Field Day

On June 2, all of the boys and girls and most of the staff of Alexander Children's Center in Charlotte boarded the bus and drove 44 miles to Barium Springs. There the children and staff of The Pre-Adolescent Center hosted them for a picnic and for field and swimming events.

The children worked up their appetites by competing in such events as the 35-yard dash, the sack race, the frisbee distance throw, the 30-yard swim race, and diving. Awards were given for first, second, and third places, for overall most points, and for participating. Everyone had a great time and we hope to make this an annual event.

Mailing Cost

Due to rate increases in January, 1982 the cost of mailing The Barium Messenger has more than doubled. Our readers can help by giving us address changes promptly and advising us of duplications. Thank you.

TO MOTHER

I know you raised me and wanted me to turn out better, All I know to say is, "I'm sorry."
A lot of times I didn't listen when I knew I really should.
You knew what you were talking about I just didn't want to listen.
If I had known things would end up like this, I would have listened a long time ago. A lot of times I didn't show it But I really do love you.
All I know to say is "I'm sorry!"

T.W.

About Our School

In the two years since its opening our campus school has met a very special need for those youngsters in our Adolescent Center. They receive a full program of instruction in the normal range of academic subjects (reading, English, spelling, math, history, and science) as well as physical education and enrichment classes in arts, crafts, independent living skills, and personal issues. Our schooling and instruction are designed to complement and coordinate with the broader program goals of education and preparing individuals to live satisfying and productive lives.

Academic instruction is geared to the performance level of the individual to best help each young person who is functioning below grade/age level academically to attain appropriate grade/age level and to realize his potential. The cottage and school communicate closely about each youngster's progress in school and about other factors and situations in his life which affect him and therefore affect his school performance.

The results of all this can be seen in each youngster who begins to take pride in his school accomplishment for the first time, who begins to believe a little more in his own ability, who is able to successfully return to a public school, and in each David Robinson who graduates and moves on in life, a little better prepared because of what he accomplished at Barium Springs. And for those of us who appreciate more tangible results, achievement testing for the 1981-82 school year in reading, spelling and math showed an average achievement gain per student greater than the number of months in school in all three subjects.

Each cottage group, under the direction of the cottage teacher, has been involved in a program of summer instruction to enhance and maintain skills acquired during the school year. Such creative ideas as writing and presenting plays, and holding debates and contests have been combined with basic reviews to make the summer instruction a little fun as well as helpful. Soon the new school year will be in full swing again, with orientation day scheduled for August 25, and the school will be filled again with groans over homework, bells and student chatter, and a lot of staff and youngsters excited over what they are learning.

DREAM

ome people have asked me how can my dream come true, but I tell them, that life is a dream to me, textulf I had a dream it would be that I make something out of myself.

ntmat

would be a Pro basketball player, and some day I would retire and get married and have children.

R.H.

way back in the woods where a flat rock lolled in spring sun I'd jump on it, sit down, listen to a robin chirp, squirrels chattering, a wind swirl rustle oak frills; I could hear the stream sloshing over the rocks I'd look and listen till dark. Then I'd go home and say to myself, "I'll be back."

I AM WHAT I AM

P.M.

I try I am one person I am but one. I feel no mask, for I live and let live I try to stand among the fallen world. I want meaning. I want truth. They all talk of what is best. They all talk of following the rest.

My own private place

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

HOMECOMING-"Simply Great'

Quoting Paul Horne, outgoing President of the Barium Alumni, this year's Homecoming was "simply great." There were some 400 or more former residents, houseparents, workers, and friends of Barium present for the two day affair.

On a rainy Saturday, July 31 about 200 were on campus to reminisce about "old times," browse through old school annuals, look at pictures of days gone by, admire the replica of the original springs, and partake of a delicious meal of hamburgers and hot dogs with all the trimmings.

Saturday evening the "Happy Time" get-together was held at the Ramada Inn in Statesville. The "tall tales" and "remember whens" continued into the wee hours of the morning.

On Sunday morning 200 more alumni and friends gathered with those already on hand from Saturday to join in worship services at Little Joe's Church. The services were led by Rev. Paul Horne; Rev. W. A. Johnson offered a prayer for those alumni who were deceased in the past year; and Rev. Wayne Rogers preached the sermon, "The God You Made Versus The God That Made You."

Following the Worship Service a delicious meal of barbecue and fried chicken was served in the dining hall. The business meeting which followed was attended by the largest number of alumni in many years. The alumni voted to proceed with the Memorabilia Room project and to prepare a history of the "Home" to be published in time for Homecoming 1983. The following officers were elected: Paul Barnes of High Point, President; Joe Ben Gibbs of Troutman, Vice-President; and Alice Jones Clendenin of Statesville, Secretary-Treasurer.

Dates for Homecoming 1983 will be announced later.

CLASS REUNIONS: Also "Simply Great"

Special congratulations to the alumni responsible for getting such a large attendance at their class reunions. These class representatives who so diligently tracked down alumni and encouraged (or "browbeat" as one alumni, who had not attended homecoming in many years, expressed it) their attendance are: Joe Ben Gibbs, Class of 1942; Bill and Myrtle Johnson, Class of 1947; and Henry L. Troutman, Class of 1952.

of returning alumni and friends.

Also a very special thanks to David Thomas of Charlotte, a member of the Class of 1955, for the many excellent photographs he takes each year at Homecoming. These pictures are placed in albums and are on display each year for the enjoyment

CLASS OF '42

Most frequently heard comments at the 40th reunion of the class of '42: "You haven't changed a bit," "Do you remember...," "Whatever happened to ...?" "You're prettier than ever." From a graduating class of 34 members the following were present: Elizabeth Roberts Bateman, Chesapeake, Va; Lacy Beshears, Clemmons; Lorene Brown, Whiteville; Flora Mae Smith Dunlap, High Point; Gwyn Fletcher, Largo, Fla.; Joe Ben Gibbs, Troutman; Paul Horne, Hartwood, Va; Sarah Parcell Howard, Concord; Louise Everette Kelly, Elizabethtown; Myrtle Mills Kiker, Midland; Ben Lewis, Stony Point; Margaret Presnell Mayhew, Mooresville; Bill McCall, Charlotte; Jack McCall, Edwardsville, Ill.; Tom McCall, Antioch, Tenn,; Mott Price, Eden; Wallace Twombly, Troutman; William Wadsworth, Asheville; Jack and Virginia Cranfill Weeks, Wilmington.

From the FOREWARD of the 1942 Spotlight: [Although we did not all start out together, we have finished together, and we will always stick together and try to live in a way that people will look at us and point us out, saying, "That boy or that girl was graduated from Barium."]

CLASS OF '47

The following members of the graduating class of 1947 celebrating their 35th anniversary were present for Homecoming:

Earl Adams, Greensboro; Earl Allen, Charlotte; Helen Hawley Bennett, Wilmington; Margaret Katen Everett, Huntsville, Ala.; Ricky Lippard, Charlotte; Jean McDonald Marsh, Pineville; W. A. "Bill" Johnson, Fayetteville; Myrtle Rushing Johnson, Fayetteville.

After supper at Barium class members met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Rhyne of Statesville. Landrea Rhyne is the daughter of Bill and Myrtle Johnson who served as hostess with a dessert of cake and homemade ice cream.

Helen Hawley Bennett brought with her memorabilia of class pictures, press clippings, individual pictures of classmates, copies of special programs of classmates while students at Barium, and many interesting articles.

Myrtle Rushing Johnson, class historian and prophet, pointed out that on the day of our graduation in 1947 we agreed our first class reunion would be held 35 years later, and so it was. It was noted that we lost one member by death during the year, Miriam Huddleson.

We warmly welcomed Margaret Katen Everett on being present since she recently had open heart surgery involving a triple bypass.

Also, a special welcome went to Earl Adams who was in his first attendance at Homecoming since graduation. Earl is personnel manager of Pilot Life Insurance Company for 32 states.

The class voted to have their 40th reunion at Barium in 1987.

CLASS OF '52

Rendezvousing at the lounge of the Country Kitchen in Statesville, the 15 members of a graduating class of 20 had a grand time remembering the joys as well as some of the heartaches they experienced at Barium. Class members present included: Hilda Barnes Reid, Mooresville; Sarah Bradshaw Johnson, Mooresville; Glenn Compton, Thomasville; Fred Feimster, Charlotte; Norvan Hillard, Landis; Elmina Johnson Wallpe, Flower, Ind.; Franklin Lentz, Gainesville, Fla.; Donnie Odom Huddleson, Upper Marlboro, Md.; Mary Frances Price Misenheimer, Salisbury; Carl Spicer, Lancaster, Pa.; Dwight Reid, Mobile, Ala.; Charles Stevens, Hillsborough; Henry Troutman, Greensboro; Caroline Wicker Waddington, State College, Pa.; and Mack Wicker, Huntersville. Other friends present were Jerry Innis of Fort Bragg and Clyde Reid of Aberdeen.

As a momento of the occasion, Carl Spicer presented to each member a facsimile of their junior class picture from the 1951 Annual. There were some changes but most were recognizable!

From the FOREWORD of the 1952 Spotlight: [There is no word, phrase, or collection of pictures and print that would be a full or even slight representation of the great life we lead at Barium Springs."]

When should I make my Will? If you don't have one—NOW.

In this article Bee Quest assumes you already have a Will; however, no would point out there are four different time periods in your "Will" ife. Each Will requires different provisions to meet changing needs and esponsibilities. Let's take a look.

MARRIAGE

What would the Will a young man might make shortly after mariage look like? Little planning would be required. Usually such a Will s very brief and simple. It names an executor and leaves everything to its wife. Everything, that is, which does not become hers in another way. For example, life insurance is often the only substantial asset in a young person's estate and passes directly to the wife if she is the beneficiary named in the policy. For many young couples this first Will is more often an expression of love and confidence than anything else.

PARENTHOOD

All of this changes (not the "love and confidence" Bee Quest hopes) when children arrive—even though one's estate is still not large. A Will s now very definitely a necessity. If a young father dies without one his roperty would be distributed according to state law. In North Carolina f the deceased father has no Will and leaves a widow and two children, is widow would receive only one-third of the estate and each child one-hird. Also, the children's share would be administered by a court appointed guardian.

But parenthood does more than intensify the need for a Will—it reates the need for a different Will. The "everything to my wife" proision in the first Will now leaves critical questions unanswered. What f both parents should die in a "common disaster" while the children are oung? Should the estate be administered by a guardian? Who? Perhaps trust is the answer? A well planned trust is generally much more flexible han a guardianship for the handling of a minor's inheritance.

Both parents should take the arrival of a child as a clear signal to ither make a Will or to review the present one.

THE PEAK YEARS

Let us move ahead now some twenty-five years. With reasonable condence, we may expect that the husband has now attained, or is rapidly pproaching, the peak of his earning power. These are the years of subtantial estate accumulation in terms of a larger home, increased income, and more productive investments. Even more important, perhaps, is the uild-up of sizeable cash value in insurance and pension or profit-sharing enefits.

Children are graduating from college, starting careers, marrying. One r more grandchildren may have joined the family. Their needs, abilities, ad character are unknown quantities. Tax considerations now loom large 1 estate planning and a "trust" in the Will is almost essential. Often "two trust" Will is recommended to take maximum advantage of tax tvings in the estates of both husband and wife. By giving the wife a ower of appointment over one of the trusts, she can determine how the ust property will be distributed among the children. Such a provision rings maximum flexibility to the estate plan at a time when most needed.

THE RETIREMENT YEARS

At retirement the task of creating an estate plan is essentially complete. Peak earning years are past; insurance is paid up; and pension benefits are set. Of course there will probably be some gains in vested capital, but a person's assets have assumed the character they will ultimately have in his estate.

Usually at this stage in life the problem of drafting a Will is simplified. Financial requirements and the personal characteristics of the family have now become fixed. There are fewer imponderables to consider and the Will should reflect this added certainty.

Revisions in the Will can be made with the utilization of a written document known as a codicil. A codicil is an amendment executed with the same care and formalities as the Will itself. It can be used to delete or alter existing provisions no longer needed and to add new ones. In this manner it is possible to redistribute parts of your estate without having to resort to the task of rewriting a complete Will. Be sure the codicil is prepared by your lawyer.

This is also the time to consider a program of lifetime giving. The creation of an irrevocable living trust, offering substantial estate tax savings, might now be appropriate; but the Will must be very carefully revised to prevent serious inequities in the overall estate plan.

We have emphasized the need for regular Will review in terms of landmarks in the life of a family. But Wills show signs of age in other ways. A change in the law, a move to another state, the death of an individual named as executor, a sudden increase in the size of an estate, all these events can make a Will obsolete overnight. And testamentary obsolescence usually means needless taxation, family disappointment, and added expense in the administration of an estate. So be sure to review your Will regularly so that it reflects changing needs.

The precise terms of the Will that fits your family and your finances are a matter for discussion with your lawyer. See him without delay.

NOTICE TO CHURCHES

This year Barium Springs will hand deliver to as many churches as possible your THANKSGIVING MATERIALS.

If we do not hand deliver, the materials will be mailed to you in plenty of time for your Thanksgiving Gifts.

Look for us, and . . . thanks for helping!

W. EARLE FRAZIER Executive Director

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

Barium Expands Services

Rev. Charles L. Kirby, former minister at Caldwell Memorial Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, is the new planned giving officer at Barium Springs Home for Children, Earle W. Frazier, executive director, has announced.

Mr. Kirby, who will continue to reside at 2638 Hampton Ave., Charlotte, joined the staff effective Oct. 1.

A native of Fort Pierce, Fla., he graduated from Davidson College, Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va., and received his doctor of ministry from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, Ill. He also did graduate work at New College, University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

His pastorates include a four church field in eastern North Carolina at Atkinson, Ivanhoe, Kerr and Garland, First Presbyterian at Morehead City; and the past 12 years at Caldwell Memorial, where he was also a member of the Hospice.

He has served as moderator of the Presbyteries of Wilmington and Mecklenburg and is a former president of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Presbyterian Ministers Association. He also served as chairman of the Migrant Ministry of the North Carolina Council of Churches for a number of years.

Mr. Kirby now serves the Synod of North Carolina on the Higher Education Ministry Group.

His interests in civic activities have been varied and he is a recipient of the Jaycee Distinguished Service Award. The former Rotarian has been president of the N. C. Symphony of Carteret County and is active in the Parent-Teachers Association at Alexander Graham Junior High School.

Tennis and photography are his hobbies.

He is married to the former Charlotte Murphy of Tomahawk, and they have a son and two daughters. Mrs. Kirby is a home economics graduate of the University of North Carolina-Greensboro and currently is studying data processing at Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte.

His son Tom, 26, is married to the former Cynthia Moore

"Chief" Walker...

A Friend of Youth

On september 13th, Caldwell CoHage hosted another educational film littled children in Trouble! This film illustrated our country's Juvenille Jail system as is today. It showed the interior of some delinquent home and Jails and gave the audiance the feel of a Jails environment.

Police chief J.C. Walker from the Troutman Police department sponsored the film and discussed with the three cottages present what they saw. MR. walker has been coming to Barium Springs on his off duty time To offer his help to the residents with problems they might have.

The film, along with Mr. Walkers comments was very informative and proves how fortuneate many of us are here at Barium Springs of Charlotte and both are graduates of Appalachian State University. He is city planner for Wadesboro, having a masters degree in urban administration from UNC-Charlotte. He and his wife have a one-year-old daughter, Laura.

Mr. Kirby's daughters are Anne, 16, a junior at West Charlotte High School, and Frances, 13, an eighth grader at Alexander Junior High.

ONCE UPON A TIME

Once upon a time the rigors of scratching a living from the soil added to the plague of dread diseases took the lives of many parents during their child-rearing years. Their children found themselves dependent on the generosity of the church and its orphanage. The orphanage, just one of many benevolent responses of the church to people in need, became one of the most popular causes ever undertaken by the church. The helplessness of lovable children and the innate need of people to help was such a natural "fit" that children and church people were a blessing to each other for several decades. But that was once upon a time.

Once upon a time families no longer feared the dread diseases. Rather, economic depression and war were the oppressors. Children found themselves neglected and dependent. Often called "the orphans of the living" these children replaced the true orphans living in the children's home. The church hardly knew the difference and the children's home seemed not to mind that the church hardly knew the difference. These needy and lovable children often visited with church groups-sponsors they were called-who provided gifts at Christmas and on birthdays. The children were pleased with the gifts and personal attention while church people were pleased to help. And despite the sometimes uneasy feelings of both about the parents "out there somewhere," the children and churchmen continued to be a blessing to each other for a couple of decades and the popularity of the orphanage easily transferred to the children's home. But that, too, was once upon a time.

Once upon a time the needs of families became so numerous and intense that parents and grandparents were obviously hurting as much as children. Increasing numbers of elderly people needed housing and, in many instances, needed nursing care. Parents needed help to cope with children, jobs, or the lack of jobs, and each other. Working mothers needed day care for their young children. Unwed mothers needed care, counseling and training. Single parents needed support in resolving feelings associated with separation, divorce and aloneness. Uncertainty about how to offer real help with these complicated problems led to frustration among church people and professional helpers alike. So the children's home-turned family service agency-began to make efforts to prevent family breakdown. Day care was developed and promoted. Family life education was offered. Individual and family counseling programs were initiated. And the families of troubled youth in residence were offered help in redeeming their flawed relationships. As you can see we have moved from "once upon a time" to the "here and now."

Let us note another development between "then" and "now." Back "then" when Synod of North Carolina established its orphanage, the directive of the church was very clear, "take care of these homeless children." Bút as that need changed, there was no machinery in our church's system whereby it could say as clearly, "that task is finished. Now go and do this in the name of the church." Rather, the Board of Regents—church people elected by the church to represent the church—faced the task of assessing changed needs and choosing directions. This task continues to this day and will, in all likelihood, continue into the future as our society continues to change. It has been—and is—the heavy responsibility of these elected representatives of the church to deal with the ever-changing realities of people in need and discern what God and the church would have us do.

Presbyterians who do not know these Regents personally can trust them by simply reviewing the performance of your family service agency—its willingness to grapple with difficult problems such as those presented by troubled teenagers—its willingness to join various clusters of churches in developing and refining family life education and counseling services—its willingness to develop and refine a model day care program from which churches may ask for day care consultation and staff training—its willingness to join another Presbyterian agency, Alexander Children's Center of Charlotte, in devolping still another program for troubled children. Your Regents have acted responsibly and with compassion, as befits representatives of our church.

To summarize—Once upon a time the church gave much to—and required much from—its Orphanage. Once upon a time the church gave much to—and expected much from its Children's Home. Today the church is giving much to its Family Service Agency and seems not quite sure what to expect from the agency. Hence, I would welcome an opportunity to meet with any group in your church to answer the questions we know are being asked, to interpret the directions chosen by the Board of Regents and to update your people on what you are doing through Barium Springs Home for Children. I believe that when you know, you will be proud—as I am—to be a part of an agency—and a church—willing to undertake difficult ministries simply because the need is there.

Editor's Note: The above are exerpts from a talk by W. Earle Frazier, Executive Director of the Home, to members of Fayetteville Presbytery at their September, 1982 meeting.

APPRECIATION

Barium Springs Home for Children expresses sincere thanks to International Paper Company (Mr. Mickle Howell, Plant General Foreman) Statesville, for providing the cardboard in which the Thanksgiving materials are prepared for delivery to the churches. They have provided these materials free for a number of years.

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

Center, Wilmington BARIUM MESSENGER

Published Monthly-July and August combined by Barium Springs Home for Children W. EARLE FRAZIER, Editor will distribute my property in just about the same way I would.

Second-class postage paid at Barium Springs, N. C. 28010

I don't need a Will because most of my assets are in life insurance and my wife and children are the beneficiaries.

I don't need a Will because all of my property is in joint ownership.

I made a Will several years ago so I have completed my estate plan.

I can draw my own Will using a form I purchased through the mail.

I don't need a Will because most of my property is in my spouse's name.

I don't need a Will because the law in my state

I am a woman and don't need a Will.

I don't own anything of much value and don't need a Will.

I don't need a Will because all of my property has been placed in a trust.

I am young, single, in good health and don't need to worry about a Will.

The above statements are all false, and if you took the quiz you probably marked each statement "false." But the purpose of this exercise in "Will Power" is not to just score one hundred percent but is to alert our readers to the importance of a Will for each of us.

Bee Quest will not attempt to point out the fallacies in each statement, but rather will tell you some of the important reasons why you should have a Will.

It is true that without a Will the state will determine to whom, how and when your property will be distributed. Usually, close relatives will receive your estate, but probably not in the shares you would have wanted. [In North Carolina when a person dies without a Will, the estate is shared by the spouse (one-third) and children, if more than one, (two-thirds).] However, most of us want to determine to whom and in what proportions our assets will be divided. The Will prepared by the State does not do this.

Many husbands and wives own all of their property jointly; but to rely on joint ownership instead of a Will can be risky. For example, at the death of one the property will not necessarily pass as owners would have wanted but, rather, as the laws of the state provide.

In summary, Bee Quest lists a few of the things a sound Will can do for you.

- 1. It distributes your property. To distribute money and other things of value is the most common use of a Will. (In most states a widow has certain rights to an estate, regardless of the provisions of the Will). Suppose one of your intended heirs dies before you do. With a Will you can provide for this possibility and name a contingent beneficiary. It is always well to name a contingent beneficiary (or alternate use of the property) should the primary beneficiary predecease you.
- 2. It establishes responsibility. In your Will you name the Executor (person or institution) who, with the aid of the Court, will be responsible for carrying out the provisions of your Will. By naming the Executor, you have peace of mind in knowing that someone you choose will carry out your wishes.
- 3. It can help minimize taxes. As we all know, Federal and State Estate taxes may be quite susbtantial. Your estate may be larger than you realize and the tax bite can chew up many thousands of dollars you had intended for your heirs. Proper planning may eliminate or substantially reduce estate taxes.
- 4. It can name guardians. Certainly if you have minor children, you would want to name their guardian. Also, if there are elderly or incompetent relatives for whom a guardian is needed, you should name the person to be responsible for their welfare.
- 5. It gives you flexibility in setting other goals. In the process of making your Will, you will take a close look at what you own and what you would like to accomplish with your property. Perhaps there are children to educate? Elderly parents to provide for? Mortgaged real estate? Retirement objectives? Charitable responsibilities? These are some of the questions to be considered in your Estate Plan. A sound Will provides the flexibility to enable you to make provisions for those uncertainties which confront all of us.

So, . . . you made an excellent score on the quiz. Bee Quest commends you. However, commendations are not enough. See your attorney. Draw your Will now.

NAME

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

How Could Early Childhood Education Affect Families?

Sara P. Kent, Director Pre-School Center

K. J., age three, came to our pron at six weeks of age; at about one r, through a screening at our Center as found that one ear canal was very ıll. K. J. was referred to Baptist Hoś-I where her parents were told that were lucky to have found this at such early age, otherwise, without this and ood developmental day care pron her hearing may have been imed for life.

D. W., age five, came to us at age and a half. He was almost non verand brain damaged. Through a diostic prescriptive program and much on the part of dedicated carers, D. W. is now functioning in a reg-

propose that the wrong question is g asked in the title "How Could Early shood Education Affect Families?" itle suggests some assumptions that sider questionable. Our society has story of rationalizing children's prons and services by presenting them ssential to some group other than Iren.

What about children? We might be closer to a more productive question if we substituted the word children for the word families. Significant government initiatives in children's programs have come in response to economic crises rather than concern about improving the quality of life for children.

The 1930's—The Great Depression. Children's programs were initiated and funded to provide jobs.

The 1940's—World War II. Children's programs were funded to allow women to join the work force in the war effort.

The 1960's—The War on Poverty. Head Start was initiated as one of the many approaches to improve economic opportunities.

It is interesting to ponder why we as a society are still unwilling to state forthright that the developmental needs and rights of younger children are the reasons for providing early childhood programs and services.

The aim of early childhood education is to facilitate the development of young children. It is not the goal of early childhood education to teach growing tall. It is not the goal of early childhood education to teach conservation.

The goal of early childhood education is to facilitate:

- coanitive development,
- emotional development,
- social development, and
- motor development.

Great numbers of America's children will not receive appropriate developmental opportunities during their early years unless assistance is available to their parents to help them achieve such experiences for their children.

How can children be assured of developmentally appropriate experiences? I propose four suggestions to guide our thinking: THINK CHILDREN! Let's not lose, if we ever had it, the ability to put ourselves in the shoes of children, and consider how it would feel to be denied the basic opportunities essential for developing our fullest potential and a fair shake at experiencing our potential toward developmental competence.

What is the chance for a significant attitude change in our society to "think children"? After all, children are no longer an economic asset providing an extra set of hands to help support the family. In fact, each child is an added economic burden. And what chance is there for a "think children" movement when children do not vote and do not have money to contribute to campaigns and causes? continued on page 5

Our Sincere Thanks

As we enter into a New Year, the staff and young people at Barium Springs express deepest appreciation to those friends who shared their gifts, their prayers and concerns with us in 1982.

Many of you increased your giving ... many were not able to give as generously as in previous years ... some were not able to send a gift ... and many of you were first time donors in 1982. But without your gifts last year and in previous years we could not have provided the services needed by our youngsters. Thank you so much.

To those of you who mailed your gifts directly to us, we sent our official receipt and a letter of appreciation. To those who gave through your church (many did and will again in 1983), we take this opportunity to express thanks.

And a special word of thanks to those ministers and church treasurers for their generous efforts in our Thanksgiving Offering, which is so important to us.

All of us at Barium Springs wish for each of you a very meaningful and rewarding 1983.

It is exceedingly difficult to keep Presbyterians up-to-date on the ministries of their Family Service Agency—or so it seems.

In traveling throughout Synod, it is painfully obvious that too many Presbyterians are unaware of changes in the field of child welfare. Fewer still understand the reasons behind these changes. Since Barium Springs Home for Children is the family service arm of our church, this lack of understanding is regrettable. We are, therefore, taking several steps designed to remedy this situation. In future issues this space will be devoted to keeping you abreast of needs in this field and the responses of our church to these ever-changing realities.

Your attention is called to the new logo presented in this issue. The cross with four groups of people represents your church's ministries through Barium Sprinas Home for Children. The Pre-School Center, featured on the first page, is represented by the three small people in the upper-left quadrant of the logo. In future issues, the Pre-Adolescent Center, Adolescent Center and Family Life Center will be featured. We hope this effort will help keep you informed and involved in these ministries.

Another effort depends upon you. We welcome invitations to present programs of information and interpretation at family night suppers, Women of the Church groups, Men of the Church groups, or Youth meetings. These less formal face to face meetings provide the best means of sharing information, questions and concerns.

We will be making other efforts to better communicate with church people. Perhaps you have ideas which would help us improve this communication. If so, please share the ideas with us. Our very best effort will be of little avail without your help—or so it seems.

Charting Your Financial Course

Why bother with a will? Over half of adult Americans have something in nmon, and most probably don't even

They haven't had a will prepared. In y just don't know what a will really es and others have chosen not to take one, feeling they don't have bugh property or relatives to warrant till another group keeps putting it off. If you're in this majority of Amerins, whatever your reason, you really have what amounts to a will. The e's laws of descent and distribution step in at your death and distribute or property for you. So why should you her having a will drawn up, if the state eady has plans to do the job?

There are considerable rewards for pole who have wills:

1. Your property is distributed exly the way you want it to be. State 's may run counter to your wishes. Escially if you have few close relatives, in property may go to a distant cousou don't even know, when you really all have preferred it to go to a longefriend.

Even if those who knew you well can guess what you might have wanted, the decision will not be theirs to make. The courts must follow laws designed to protect everyone, even if they do not suit your situation.

- 2. If you are married, you can save a surprising amount in taxes by claiming the marital deduction, allowing you to exempt from estate taxes all property which you pass to your spouse.
- 3. You can name a guardian for minor children or other dependents. If you and your spouse should die in a common accident, who would care for your children? The guardian a court might appoint may not be the same you would choose.

- 4. You protect your family from tedious legal proceedings and delays, which are often a great burden at a time of grief. You also give them the satisfaction of knowing that the decisions affecting their future were made by you instead of strangers.
- 5. You can make special gifts to friends and charitable causes. Many friends of Barium Springs Home for Children have used their wills to make lasting gifts to help children who will come to us in future years. The many bequests, large and small, are great votes of confidence in our work.

If you would like more information about planning your will, please return the coupon below and request a free copy of "How To Protect Your Rights With A Will." I'll be happy to discuss any questions you have—just call (704) 872-4157 or write.

Adolescent Center: Christmas

No season of the year generates more excitement and festivity than Christmas. Youngsters and staff in the Adolescent Center were no exception in being caught up in the Christmas spirit. All of the cottages took on a special look with Christmas trees and decorations, homemade Christmas cookies, and other special activities. Even the classroom doors in the school were decorated. One featured a "silver bells" theme and others were creatively decorated with real greenery and lights, a three dimensional nativity scene, and even a sleigh driven by a reindeer and pulled by eight tiny Santas!

In Caldwell Cottage, the real Christmas spirit of caring and sharing was carried out. The boys there practiced many long hours and then took their caroling to local nursing homes, the Barium Springs Day Care Center, and other places on campus. The boys baked over 1000 cookies which they distributed wherever they went caroling. Elderly nursing home residents who could not gather in the common area were treated to special concerts in their rooms. They were even allowed by one elderly (98 year old) lady to sing in her room, even though the nursing home staff reported she never allowed other than family members to enter.

Just before the youngsters left for their Christmas breaks at home, the campus celebrated with a buffet lunch at a local pizza parlor and a special on campus dinner by candlelight. Caroling around the tree before dinner was led by the Caldwell group.

In the midst of all the festivities, we have tried to stop occasionally and reflect on the gifts of real importance... love and peace and happiness... and extend to all our wish that the Holiday Season and New Year be filled with an abundance of them.

Art Contest

If a picture is worth a thousand words, the youngsters at the Adolescent Center recently put out enough material for an excellent novel! The Barium Springs school sponsored an art contest and the display of talent presented a real challenge for the three judges who had to choose winners. The judges included two staff members not associated with the adolescent center and someone from the local Arts Council.

Entries were made in three categories: pen and ink, colors (pastels, chalk or paint), and crafts. First through third prizes were awarded in each category, although everyone who participated "won" in their feeling of work well done.

In late January, all the entries received additional recognition and were displayed at Signal Hill Mall in Statesville.

Christmas at the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center, Wilmington

The Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center of Wilmington, now in its fourth year of operation, found itself busier than ever. Its three full time staff persons, two pastoral counselors and a secretary, reported that the recent Christmas season, though it was a time of joy and celebration among Christian people, was also a time when many people were especially in touch with some of the painful aspects of their personal and family lives.

It was a time when persons recalled the loss of loved ones and memories of childhood and youth, it was a time when lingering conflicts were triggered in what seemed to be stable marriages. It was a time when families, under pressure from the hectic activities of the holidays, often experienced their problems turning into crises

So Christmas was a time when many persons seemed especially to need the services of this Center's counseling services. They called on the pastoral and therapeutic ministry offered by the Center for help in reflecting upon emotional difficulties in their lives, and in finding some concrete ways to cope with and begin to resolve some of those difficulties. It may seem ironic that so many people should be wrestling with emotional problems at Christmas. It m seem even more ironic that the Ch mas season actually triggers some p sonal and emotional turmoil.

Yet perhaps this is also part of redemption Christian people expt of ence during the Holy Days when the recall Christ's Birth. Perhaps the composition of the Christ Child calls us forth to the seriously the task of being fully hum and have the courage to confront in turmoil and uncertainty. For the paint our life is just as real as the joy. And pain often leads to personal and entitional and spiritual renewal and her

HOMECOMING 1983

August 6th and 7th

Statement of Purpose

(Adopted by Board of Regents on November 13, 1978)

"The problem today is not so much that people have not heard the Good News. It is that people's life experience is such that, having heard it, they cannot bring themselves to believe it."

(Alan Keith-Lucas)

Barium Springs Home for Children, an agency of the Synod of North Carolina, Presbyterian Church U.S., interprets its purpose to be:

- I. To provide a Christian ministry of love and compassion to children, youth and families who have special needs as a means of restoring complete and meaningful family functioning by:
  - A. Providing residential child care in response to defined needs in co-operation with other private and public agencies in North Carolina.

- B. Providing day care in response to defined needs in the Statesville-Troutman area, serving as a model for the churches of Synod.
- C. Providing and/or promoting family life education and counseling in harmony with other Synod efforts to help families.
- II. In providing these basic ministries Barium Springs Home for Children will be involved in:
  - A. Developing and refining improved, innovative and creative forms, methods and techniques of helping families in cooperation with other private and public agencies.
  - B. Co-operating with other agencies and educational institutions in the development and maximum utilization of trained staff and leadership for the helping professions so long as these activities do not detract from its basic ministry (cf. I. A,B,C,)

Barium Springs Home for Children will carry out its purpose always by maintaining an atmosphere conducive to teaching the Christian faith and transmitting to children, youth and families only those characteristics which are positive factors in their growth and development, and offering all services and conducting all business in such fashion that children, youth, families, staff, colleagues and others will experience the "fruit of the Spirit" (Gal. 5:22, 23) to the end that each be enabled to believe the Good News.

Society has recently experienced a ificant change in attitudes resulting n the environmental protection rement. Fifteen years ago how many pole were consciously aware of proing the environment? But in just a few rs, a sophisticated campaign imnted a few concepts in the minds of ericans. The environment cannot e, the environment cannot speak for f, but the environment requires nurnce if it is to serve as well in the fu-. If this society's consciousness was grammed to "think environmental tection", is there not even more nce that it can be programmed to nk children". Why not a Children's turance movement, so that there will competent individuals left on earth se this protected environment?

THINK PREVENTION! We are a soy that tends to think treatment rather prevention; to think short term rather

I long term.
If our vision were long term, we would nediately recognize the valid econic reasons for spending money on viduals during their early developtal years. There is no comparison ween the money it would take to ence opportunities during the early rs of life for healthy development as osed to the money society spends porting the military, like the 1.7 trillion dollars proposed to be spent on military projects by 1986. (If you or I had spent 1 million dollars a day since the day Christ was born we still would not have spent this amount of money!) Think about this when you think children!

Another example of our short-term vision is that in feeling our only responsibility is for our own children, we fail to recognize that the quality of life they will experience as adults is highly dependent on the peers they will interact with in their world. The interdependence of individuals in our society is great.

THINK COMMUNITY! In America today there seems to be some confusion and uncertainty about making a strong commitment to children.

The American family is shouldering a terrific responsibility. At the same time, many members of the community are searching for relevance in their lives, particularly the young and the elderly. Herein lies a wealth of resources to add to the cadre of early childhood professionals to assist in the provision of nurturance, stimulation, and care for America's Young Children.

THINK QUALITY! No setting, including the family, assures children of the opportunities needed to facilitate rather than inhibit the fulfillment of their potential. The determining factor is the quality of activities, the quality of adult/child interactions, the quality of child/child interactions.

For those of us involved in providing developmental experiences for young children, herein lies our biggest challenge: to endeavor to achieve training, standards, ethics and funds that will enable us to assure each child quality developmental experiences.

Developmental child care provides an education program that prepares the child for success in public school. Nationwide studies spanning 15 years have found:

- Early childhood programs significantly reduced the number of children assigned to special education classes.
- Early childhood programs significantly reduced the number of children retained in grades.
- 3. Early education significantly incontinued on page 6 creased children's scores on achievement tests.

4. I. Q. Test scores indicated lowincome children who attended pre-school surpassed those who did not, and maintained high scores approximately 10 to 15 years later.

5. Children who attended preschool were more likely to hold jobs after school, a hopeful sign that effects of pre-school will extend to employment and other kinds of success beyond the classroom.

I would like to re-emphasize the challenges that face us: formulating questions that will lead us closer to finding ways to assure children of their birthright; assuring them their right to opportunities that will facilitate the development of their potential.

Leon Chestang, a noted educator, has eloquently addressed these issues: 'And so I ask, who, if not us, will nurture our children?

Who, if not us, will assume responsibility for them? And who, if not us, will assure them of their birthright? Who?'

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A Way To Say You Care

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately companies. by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not men-

Building A Helping Community

Eddie Beach, Director Pre-Adolescent Center

"Once you were no people, but now you are God's people; once you had not received mercy but now you have received mercy."

I Peter 3:10

These words of affirmation to the early church ring relevant to me one year after the start of the Pre-Adolescent Center. The Center has moved from being "no people" to a growing identity of purpose and program and to a deepening sense of community among staff and children.

What have been the major factors shaping the identity of this newest program at Barium Springs? Let's examine four: (1) the "joint venture" aspect with Alexander Children's Center, (2) the implication of facilities and location, (3) the various talents of staff, and (4) the particular needs of children and families admitted to the program.

THE JOINT VENTURE

The boards of Barium Springs Home for Children and Alexander Children's Center approved the Pre-Adolescent Center in early 1982. In a broad sense, the purpose was clear: to provide quality residential care for children, ages 10-13, with significant social, emotional, behavioral, and learning problems. This new program would be a joint venture, located at Barium Springs and relying on the resources of both agencies to develop and implement effective services.

From the onset, an identifying mark of the Pre-Adolescent Center has been the partnership of two agencies of the Presbyterian Church: Barium Springs Home for Children has long been recognized as a leader in residential group child care; Alexander Children's Center is one of the foremost residential treatment centers in North Carolina. The Pre-Adolescent Center has relied on both agencies—on Barium Springs for facilities, daily care, education, family services, administration: and on Alexander for intake services, clinical assessment, therapy, Most of the children in care formerly lived at Alexander. Regular visits back there have ensured more continuity than is usually the case for children moving to a second child care agency.

FACILITIES AND LOCATION

As the new staff prepared for the admission of the first two boys on April 1, 1982, we were pleased at how smoothly Wallace Cottage converted to an office-school-dining facility. Several former bedrooms became classrooms, another bedroom became the director's office, and the living room made an attractive dining area. The overall effect was functional, welcoming, and comfortable.

The gym and HUB (game room) provide regular opportunities for a variety of activities. A great natural asset is the woodland surrounding the Center. The children enjoy taking hikes to the spring or to one of the ponds. Often they enjoy exploring or clubhousing. On a recent exploration one boy found an Indian arrowhead in a field.

In June, all the staff and children from Alexander came to Barium Springs for the First Annual Field Day. The spacious playground and the swimming pool provided the setting for exciting events and a picnic.

STAFF TALENTS

Residential child care is a peopleto-people service. A program can be especially distinguished by the ways in which the talents of staff are put to use. One of the staff does a great deal of art with the children. Projects included an exciting art show and chalk drawings on the tennis court. Another staff provides delicious meals, often accommodating to individual tastes. One who is skilled at sewing makes personal bathrobes for the children. Another leads them in learning new games and in planning special events.

(see Helping Community on Page 7)

...or so it seems

In our continuing effort to keep all Presbyterians informed about their work through Barium Springs Home for Children, the Pre-Adolescent Center is featured on page one of this issue. The program is represented in our new logo by the two figures in the lower left quadrant. We hope these features and other short articles will enable more of you to feel informed about the activities of your Family Service Agency.

Pastor Leighton McKeithan of Graves Memorial Presbyterian Church in Clinton introduced us to an impressive plan to keep local churches upto-date on the various benevolent programs of the church-at-large. (See Leighton's article on this page.) We were fortunate to visit with the Graves Memorial people for the Fifth Sunday Program in January. The congregation was most hospitable and showed enthusiastic interest in learning about the work of their church through its benevolent support of Presbytery, Synod and General Assembly.

As one who has struggled with how to keep local churches informed and up-to-date, I heartily commend the Fifth Sunday Plan to other churches. Perhaps some other churches have developed different systematic plans to involve members in the church's ministries in other places. We would welcome information about such programs to share with our readers.

We also welcome invitations to meet with any group—Sessions, Women of the Church, Men of the Church, Family Night Suppers—to share the joys and problems of our particular work on behalf of Presbyterians in North Carolina.

The expectations of service organizations often seem to be changing at such a pace that "the faster we go the behinder we get." Presbyterians "in the pews" need to know about the changes, the reasons behind the changes, and responses to the changes.... or so it seems.

W. Earle Frazier, ACSW Executive Director

Fifth Sunday Plan At Graves Memorial

by Leighton McKeithen, Pastor

If you have been in the ministry as long as I have, you will remember the days when there was more frequent face-to-face contact with the heads of the boards and agencies of our Church than there has been in recent years. This is no criticism of the servants of the Church today who shoulder the responsibilities given them by the courts and institutions; many changes have been wrought in organizations and their structures over the last quartercentury.

One of the great pluses of earlier years was having John Anderson or Jim Patton or Bob Hodges or Larry Stell or Darby Fulton or some other "board head" in to speak to the congregation. They told the people first-hand about the work we were doing together, they fellowshipped with our people, and when they left we knew more about the way in which we were carrying out the missions of the Church, and felt a closer relationship with those most directly charged with the responsibility.

Or Dr. Ben Lacy would tell our congregation first-hand some of his treasure-store of anecdotes and folksy stories about Union Seminary. Harold Dudley told us things about the work of the Synod, and Charles Gibbs was a store-house of information about the work of the Presbytery. Dr. E. C. Scott, Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, was around often, rubbing shoulders with "the grass roots" of the Church.

Remembering how the first-hand acquaintance with these "statesmen" of our Church helped the local congregation maintain some sense of the totality of the work we are doing together, we instituted here at Graves Memorial Presbyterian Church in Clinton a couple of years ago a plan to bring the directors of the institutions and programs and agencies to our people.

Every time there is a 5th Sunday in the calendar (which happens once each quarter) we have such a person visit our church. He or she speaks very informally to all the adult classes of the Church School assembled in the fellowship hall at the Church School hour. Often the visiting churchperson brings audio-visuals of the work being done by his/her particular arm of the Church, and there is a question-andanswer period during which our people learn details about the work which they never get otherwise.

Then, in the 11:00 o'clock service of worship (we cancel our 8:30 service on 5th Sunday only), the visiting churchperson delivers the sermon. Often it is in some way related to the work being done by the particular area of the Church's mission for which he or she is responsible, but the emphasis is always on making the service of worship just as meaningful as possible.

I am always on the "receiving end" after the visitor has left, and it has been emphatically impressed upon me that our people appreciate these visits from the servants of the Church and feel that we have a little more "stake" in the work we are doing together. Increased benevolence monies have been forth-coming. Sizable and very significant gifts have been made to causes that would never have received them otherwise, because our people did not have the challenging knowledge of that particular cause or institution.

It is doing for us what the program was designed to do: giving us a broader and more in-depth knowledge of how the Presbyterian Church is striving to carry out the commission given us by our Lord. And when we know more about it, we support it more generously.

Mother's Day Offering May 8

The Annual Mother's Day Offering is a special way for churches and individuals in our Synod to share in the ministry of The Presbyterian Home in High Point. This year the special offering authorized by our Synod will be taken on Sunday, May 8.

The Barium Messenger encourages its readers and friends to share in this very important ministry.

Since its beginning over thirty years ago, Presbyterian Home has never turned anyone away for lack of funds or inability to pay the full cost of care. During this time it has been "home" for over 800 elderly men and women.

Please send your gifts direct to The Presbyterian Home, Inc., Post Office Box 2007, High Point, N. C. 27261.

"Taxes On My Mind"

by Charles Kirby, D. Min., Planned Giving Director

Mary Westfield and a friend were discussing business plans after dinner recently when the subject turned to personal financial planning.

"I've got taxes on my mind," Mary told her friend. "Bill and I are concerned about all the changes in the tax laws which may affect our plans. It's time to review our wills and I want to know what to expect."

"There's no need to worry," her friend said. "I have some information about the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 I'll be happy to share with you. Although the law was passed in 1981, it affects your financial plans at least through 1987. And because the law has reduced gift and estate taxes, you are in a better position to distribute your property as you choose. Now is an excellent time to meet with your attorney to update your will."

When Mary got home, she read more about the recent law's three main provisions affecting estate planning:

1. The amount of money you can leave tax-free to any one you choose is gradually increasing. This year, the limit is $275,000 and by 1987, it will be $600,000. This means that after 1987 most people will no longer need to worry about federal estate taxes.

The federal government has greatly reduced its aid to many agencies that provide needed services. It is their hope that individuals will return some of their tax savings to nonprofit institutions.

"Now is an excellent time to add a bequest in my will for Barium Springs Home for Children," Mary thought. "I've been wanting to give more than I do, but just can't afford it now. Through my will, though, I can help families and children served by Barium Springs for years to come." She read on to learn that:

You can now leave an unlimited amount of money to your spouse tax-free. This sounds simple enough and eliminates estate taxes at the death of the first spouse.

But what about taxes at the death of the second spouse? To reduce these taxes, the first spouse might want to leave a portion of his or her estate in trust to someone other than the spouse, perhaps to children, usually the amount that can be left tax-free under the personal exemption.

The income can still go to the spouse for life, but at the death of the second spouse, the principal will pass tax-free outside his or her estate to the named beneficiary.

Property may be left in trust, with the income to the spouse qualifying for the marital deduction; however, the spouse does not have the right to change the beneficiary of the trust principal. This insures that children, or whoever the testator (will-maker) wishes, will be guaranteed the final ownership of the property without the possibility of anyone interfering. That was not possible until the 1981 law went into effect.

Mary stopped reading again and thought: "With a trust, you can receive tax benefits during your lifetime and still take care of your husband or wife who survives you. Bill and I may want to consider setting up trusts in our will."

A few days later, Mary and her husband made an appointment with their attorney to review their wills in light of the tax changes. They plan to take advantage of Mary's new-found knowledge about taxes to help them accomplish the most they can through their wills.

Duke Endowment Continues Generous Support

Barium Springs Home for Children has announced receipt of two grants from The Duke Endowment totaling $64,093.20.

In making the announcement W. Earle Frazier, Executive Director of the Home, expressed appreciation to The Endowment for its continuing support of Barium Springs Home for Children and child care in the two Carolinas.

A grant of $40,093.20 for the general support of children in care is but one of over forty annual grants to agencies in North and South Carolina. A special grant of $24,000 is designated to initiate a program of deferred giving through estates, trusts, gift annuities, etc.

In addition to the strong financial support, Frazier pointed out other invaluable assistance given to child care institutions. The Endowment has subsidized the initiation and operation of the North Carolina Child Care Association (NCCCA) which gives child care agencies a voice in legislative and regulatory actions and also provides staff training events for member agencies. Other training efforts for program, administrative and development staff are regularly promoted and supported by the Charlotte based Endowment. In addition, detailed statistics are made available in such areas as salary scales, days of care, costs of care and income. As current President of NCCCA, Frazier states that these activities have resulted in greatly improved services to North Carolina children and families.

News from Day Care Center

... The Day Care Center reached its highest enrollment figure in history February 14, 1983, 102 children.

... From the recent Day Care Cost Survey completed for the Day Care Study Committee of the Legislative Research Commission we found the following important facts:

... 22 children enrolled in the center in October, 1982 were living with only one parent.

... 275 volunteer hours were donated to the center by volunteers who worked in the center in October, 1982.

... Six special needs children were enrolled in October, 1982.

... 87 children were enrolled in the center in October, 1982 for thirty or more hours per week.

... 10,622 total hours of day care received by all children at the center in October, 1982.

***

... The Day Care Staff conducted 31 training sessions in 1982. Approximately 1,200 people were reached through this training. Churches included:

Harrisburg Presbyterian, Harrisburg

St. Stephen Methodist, Charlotte Highland Presbyterian, Fayetteville

Woodlawn Baptist, Charlotte Future training is planned for First Presbyterian, Gastonia and St. Stephens Methodist, Charlotte.

****

... Sara Kent and Reade Baker conducted a five week workshop for parents of pre-schoolers at First Baptist, Statesville, in January, 1983 titled "Without Spanking or Spoiling".

... January 25, 1983, the center received Approved Level 2 rating from the Day Care Section - Department of Human Resources. This is the highest level a center can achieve.

***

... March-June, 1983, the center will be involved with the Learning Together Center from Raleigh in training day care workers from throughout the western region of the state on "Mainstreaming Special Needs Children" in the regular day care.

Our Planned Giving Director, Charles Kirby, attended the National Planned Giving Institute in Memphis, Tennessee, the week of February 14-18. These courses on planned giving will enable Charles to assist our friends in the area of Wills, Estate Planning, and the more effective use of their properties.

Frazier Featured

Earle Frazier, our Executive Director, was spotlighted in the Fall, 1982 issue of Residential Group Care, magazine of the National Association of Homes for Children.

We are taking the liberty of quoting from the article several statements which express most vividly Frazier's philosophy of child care, and the high esteem in which he is held by his peers.

"As an administrator, Earle is a confirmed optimist and a true believer in the capacity of people to develop their potential. He credits his continued enthusiasm to his relationship with youngsters and the possibility of growth, and the relationship with staff and the possibility of growth.

"Earle's contributions have extended to activities on the state, regional and national levels. (He is currently President of the North Carolina Child Care Association.) For his professional achievements and for his personal contributions, the field of residential group care is enriched by his dedication."

News from Family Life Center, Wilmington

January, traditionally a somewhat slow time of year as people regroup following the Christmas Season, has proved to be the busiest month in the history of the Family Life Center. During January more than 200 counseling sessions were provided, in addition to consultation and pastoral care for various churches in the Presbytery.

Also, during this month the Board of Advisors met and reviewed the work of the Center and expressed strong affirmation not only for the work but for the ongoing relationship between this Service Ministry and Barium Springs Home for Children, once again affirming the workability of the connectional system of our church.

This ministry actively involves the churches of Wilmington Presbytery and the Synod of N. C. through its agency at Barium Springs. As the Center looks toward the coming months, every indication is that more service will be rendered than ever before.

A note of particular interest is the educational opportunities it provided in Morehead City during February. Each Sunday night the Morehead City Presbyterian Church presented a "Festival of Learning," and for the second year the Center is pleased to have been a part of that program. It provided education in facing a number of common crises in life, in helping children when they are troubled, in facing aging as a part of life, and in being aware of inner signals and emotions that help us interpret the world in which we live.

Such events enable the Center to provide preventative care through education which complements its efforts in the field of individual and family counseling.

Poems from our Adolescent Center

Poetry has been the focus in several of the English classes in the Barium Springs School recently. Here is a small sample of the results; including one poem about how hard the poetry assignment was:

A Very Important Day

I will not forget the day When I had not a word to say. I searched for creativity But it just evaded me.

Teach, so sorry I can't catch a sight and me and my pen are in a fight You can't make fire or confine space or expose fate or hurry me.

So I won't forget this day When I had no paper friends No I can't forget this day Until this class finally ends.

Scott, age 17

Sunshine beaming through the window

Crystal dew on the grass
A fine white mist hangs in the air
Birds chirping slow
Squirrels racing from tree to tree
Nature is saying Hello.

Sun dimming in the western sky
Light fades away
Darkness creeps into the east
Crickets chirp
Fireflies dance in their flight
A cool breeze blows across your face
Nature says goodnight.

Chip, age 16

Blue

Today, I feel blue
Blue as an ocean
Blue as the turquoise on your best friend's ring Blue as the shadows cast by mountains
Blue as the trim on your mom's best china
Blue as a crayola that has been forgotten
Today I feel Blue

If I Were A Queen

If I were a Queen
I'd roll in riches,
Eat out of gold dishes,
Call upon my servants,
And my Fiddlers three,
Not to mention my advisors
To help me with my home work.

Form For A Bequest By Will

PERCENTAGE: "I give, devise, and bequeath to Barium Springs Home for Children _______ of my adjusted gross estate to be used by its Board of Regents, in carrying out its corporate objectives and purposes."

SPECIAL AMOUNT: "I give, devise, and bequeath to Barium Springs Home for Children $______ to be used by its Board of Trustees, in carrying out its corporate objectives and purposes."

Statement of Purpose

(Adopted by Board of Regents on November 13, 1978)

"The problem today is not so much that people have not heard the Good News. It is that people's life experience is such that, having heard it, they cannot bring themselves to believe it."

(Alan Keith-Lucas)

Barium Springs Home for Children, an agency of the Synod of North Carolina, Presbyterian Church U.S., interprets its purpose to be:

- To provide a Christian ministry of love and compassion to children, youth and families who have special needs as a means of restoring complete and meaningful family functioning by:
  - A. Providing residential child care in response to defined needs in co-operation with other private

- and public agencies in North Carolina.
- B. Providing day care in response to defined needs in the Statesville-Troutman area, serving as a model for the churches of Synod.
- C. Providing and/or promoting family life education and counseling in harmony with other Synod efforts to help families.
- II. In providing these basic ministries Barium Springs Home for Children will be involved in:
  - A. Developing and refining improved, innovative and creative forms, methods and techniques of helping families in cooperation with other private and public agencies.
  - B. Co-operating with other agencies and educational institutions in the development and maximum utilization of trained staff and leadership for the helping professions so long as these activities do not detract from its basic ministry (cf. I. A,B,C,)

Barium Springs Home for Children will carry out its purpose always by maintaining an atmosphere conducive to teaching the Christian faith and transmitting to children, youth and families only those characteristics which are positive factors in their growth and development, and offering all services and conducting all business in such fashion that children, youth, families, staff, colleagues and others will experience the "fruit of the Spirit" (Gal. 5:22,23) to the end that each be enabled to believe the Good News.

Barium Messenger

Published Bi-Monthly by Barium Springs Home for Children W. Earle Frazier Editor

Barium Springs Home for Children is owned and operated by the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina. Financial support is from gifts through Synod, church groups, individuals, business firms, fees and investments.

These examples represent active ways in which a positive atmosphere is promoted. As necessary as these are some of the "quieter" talents which staff utilize—encouraging a child, listening, holding firm to limits, recognizing achievement, greeting warmly. These, too, have been marks of the Pre-Adolescent staff.

NEEDS OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

The Pre-Adolescent Center's identity has been most affected by the needs of the children and families who seek our services. As new children enter the cottage and classroom, varying individual needs must be addressed, and new group dynamics must be contended with. When an agency is beginning, each admission represents a higher percentage of change than in a larger program. In its first year the Center has focused on adapting its program to meet the needs of specific children and families.

A year's experience has given a reality-based understanding of serving pre-adolescents with significant social, emotional, learning, and behavioral problems. "Significant" problems were somewhat more profound than originally expected. Children referred to the Center have shown varying degrees of emotional instability, social immaturity, learning disabilities, and maladaptive behavior. All indications are that difficult referrals will continue and that a high quality of special services will need to be provided.

SENSE OF COMMUNITY

The move from being "no people"—having nothing in common—to being a community—bound by common values, loyalties, and goals—is an ongoing journey. The Pre-Adolescent Center set out to be a helping community of children and adults. We are encouraged by our progress to date.

Children and adults work, play, learn, and worship together. Within their abilities, children are expected to give help as well as receive it. Adults are expected to accept help as well as offer it. Groups are expected to help individuals, and individuals learn to contribute to the group.

Mealtimes are a daily builder of fellowship. All have an opportunity to make brief, positive announcements. Children take turns at leading the blessing. Meals are served family style, and efforts are made to keep the atmosphere positive.

Each Wednesday all staff and children participate in the one-hour Community Meeting. This meeting seeks to improve the quality of life and sense of community at the Center. Sessions have included values clarification, trust building exercises, use of external motivators to improve relationships, role play, and discussions of the Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments.

Celebration is a key element in building positive self-esteem for individuals and providing joy for all. Celebration often means being glad with someone over a success, such as conquering a difficult math concept or having a good weekend visit with family. It is also affirming an individual on his birthday, through a party, gifts, and recognition. The Center has made a special effort to highlight holidays; for example, with blue grass music on the Fourth of July and with a magic show at Halloween.

A sense of community has been built at the Pre-Adolescent Center by people confronting difficult situations, and being willing to give and to forgive—in truth, sharing God's mercy and learning to accept one another.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A Way To Say You Care

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

(Space limitations did not permit listing of Memorial Gifts in this issue. In the next Messenger we plan to list such gifts received through April 30, 1983.)

Special Investment Program

We are pleased to list new members and renewals to Barium's Special Investment Program. Gifts from business firms and foundations are not included.

For many this is your 11th year of special giving. Some do not make the large gift every year but continue to give regularly. Thank you.

But whether you make a large gift . . . a lesser gift . . . one gift . . . or many gifts—you are important to the young people at Barium Springs Home for Children.

Please continue your generous support in 1983, and remember, there are no small, no unappreciated, no unimportant gifts when the gift is used to help others. And a gift to Barium does help others... troubled youngsters... troubled families.

We Teach and Learn Together

Becky Armentrout, Director Adolescent Center

Eddie was a sixteen-year-old boy who taught me a lot about child care and about helping in general. As a small child, Eddie and his siblings had been abandoned and abused, taken into custody by the Department of Social Services, and shuffled for years among foster homes, relatives, and institutions. When he entered my life, he was a defiant, scared and confused youngster who trusted no one and resented any efforts to break through the emotional barriers he had erected to defend against other people and other relationships which might hurt him again.

When I entered his life, I was new to the profession of child care, filled with ideals, perhaps a bit self-righteous, and certain that my love for the children would be received easily by them. Only after seemingly unending months did Eddie decide to let me get close. Even then Eddie had more difficulty believing I cared about him than he did saying he cared about me.

Caring about someone means you have a responsibility to them, but it also neans you have a responsibility for knowing yourself, for knowing what you can really offer that person, and for being the person you tell them you will be. Eddie described it as "only making promises he could keep and stuff like hat," but his experience made it hard or him to believe another person yould do that. What I learned from Eddie was that to call myself a caring, helping person I had to focus inward first and what struck me was how big a task that is.

The dynamic, reciprocal nature of learning and being taught, of helping and being helped is very apparent to anyone in the child care field. I'm sure that the teenagers with whom we work never know just how much we learn from them. But learning and growing is a lifelong activity. We see physical and emotional growth in the child growing up, and professionals look for it in clients. It is equally important to seek and celebrate the process in ourselves.

The importance of fulfilling our own potential is just as firmly grounded in our Christian faith as our ministry to others. Jesus teaches the parable of the three servants and the talents each were given. Those who were faithful over their talents, who made the most of them, were received with blessings and rewarded. The one who did not develop his talent, who buried it in the earth, had it taken away.

Christ's call is always to fulfill our possibilities and to "become mature people, reaching to the very height of Christ's full stature." (Ephesians 4:13). The opportunities we have for growth, for knowing ourselves and for becoming the person we should be may differ with the state of life or age we are, but they always exist.

The person we become is especially crucial in child care, or perhaps in any helping profession, because the best "technique" that exists in the field is the use of ourself as the major facilitator of positive growth in clients. Our professional obligation, as well as our Christian obligation, is that we develop the best self we can to use in this way. When we first begin working with a confused, angry, scared adolescent who has poor ego controls within, we have to be prepared to step in and take over for their non-functioning selfcontrol. They need the security of knowing they will be taken care of until they are back in control. The essential process, however, is that the youngster establish controls within himself and begin to broaden his repertoire of responses to problems. That repertoire must include new and increasingly more adaptive ways of handling things.

We as staff must insert ourselves into this gradual and difficult process of change, and the responsibility we Someone has said that the difference between a cute little rascal and a potential juvenile delinquent is whether he is your child or somebody else's. Being the father of two former cute little rascals, I well understand the distinction!

I am also well aware that being a teenager—or being a teenager's parent—is much more difficult today. And it really isn't all that surprising that teenagers and their families encounter difficulties which seem insurmountable. Growing up has always been somewhat difficult. But the really difficult thing is growing up without a supportive caring family—or a family who does not know how to express support and caring.

In this issue we feature Barium's Adolescent Program—a program which has changed because needs have changed. More and more teenagers find themselves "out of step" with family, school or community and in need of special help. It is precisely this group of "cute little rascals" which the Adolescent Center seeks to serve. This program is represented in our new logo by the two figures in the upper right quadrant.

We would be pleased to visit with any group in your church to explain both the program and the youth. After all, they are terribly normal most of the time... or so it seems to me.

Campus Highlights

All staff at the Adolescent Center just completed two days of training on campus. The training sessions were conducted by Dr. Roselle Kurland from Hunter School of Social Work in New York. Group Development, an area of particular expertise of Dr. Kurland, was the topic. Staff from the Pre Adolescent Center and Family and Child Development Center also participated.

Teacher helps bring up those grades!

Since January, the staff and youngsters in the Adolescent Center have had the opportunity to work with Leigh Ann Feimster, a Social Work student from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Leigh Ann is a senior, and will be graduating soon. She chose Barium Springs as the site for her senior internship because the residential setting provided a unique practice setting, and her interest in young people. This is the third year that the Adolescent Center has provided a field placement site for a UNCC student.

Ms. Kay Donley met with the staff of the Adolescent Center during her recent visit to Barium Springs. The focus of their discussion was: planning issues that affect children in residential group care who are moving toward adoption. Ms. Donley is the Executive Director of New York Spaulding for Children, an adoption agency that specializes in placing children with special needs.

Rochelle Haimes, Campus Administrator, has been appointed to a three year term on the Advisory Committee of the Children's Home Society, Southern District office.

Alumni News

Mrs. Frances Price Misenheimer, Route 3, Box 273, Salisbury, N.C., attended the American Legion Auxiliary Awareness Assembly, February 23-27 at the Hilton Hotel in Washington, D.C. Frances is the Department of N.C. American Legion Auxiliary's National Security Chairman.

The Highlight of the Assembly was the presentation by June Stolte, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, of the "Public Spirit" Award to Casper W. Weinberger, Secretary of Defense. He also delivered the main address.

Frances has been active in the American Legion Auxiliary for the past eighteen years. She entered Barium Springs in 1940 and graduated in 1952. Barium alumni and friends extend best wishes to Frances in her candidacy this June for the office of 4th Division President in the American Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Josephine Walker Healy, daughter of the late Rev. William Townes Walker, a former superintendent of The Home, died March 8, 1983. She is survived by her husband H. Boyd Healy, 4580 Elm Street, Bellaire, Texas 11401, and by a sister, Mrs. Ruth Walker Dunn, 1300 Royston Street, Fredericksburg, Va. 22401.

***

Miss Neely V. Ford, 86, of Route 1, Thickety community in Haywood County, died recently following an extended illness. She was a retired houseparent at Barium Springs and had also been a houseparent at Grandfathers Home, Banner Elk. She was a member of Oak Grove Baptist Church. Surviving are three sisters: Alice Moore and Ellen Ford of Canton, and Ivy Trantham of Swannanoa.

Ellis To Preach At Homecoming

Rev. Paul A. Horne, President of the Alumni Association, advises that Rev. Larry Ellis, Pastor of Fallstown Baptist Church, Troutman, will deliver the sermon at Homecoming on August 7. Larry "grew up" at Barium and upon graduation from high school worked for several years helping Ike White in maintenance.

He attended Liberty Baptist Bible College, Lynchburg, Va. and served as student pastor at Troutman Baptist Church for several years. Alumni and friends look forward to welcoming Larry back for the Homecoming service.

Are You Puzzled About Gift Annuities?

Charles L. Kirby D. Min. Planned Giving Director

In recent months, I've spoken with several friends of Barium Springs Home for Children who want to continue helping the children here, but are concerned, quite understandably, about their own financial future. They have been happy to learn of several plans which allow them to give and, in return, receive income.

A gift annuity agreement is one of the most popular giving-for-income plans. It may also be the simplest. A few questions and brief answers about gift annuities follow, to give you an idea of their potential as vehicles for giving and wise financial planning.

Q. What is a gift annuity?

A. A gift annuity is an agreement between you and Barium Springs Home for Children. Under its terms, you may make a gift of $1,000 or more and receive guaranteed fixed annual payments for the rest of your life and/or, if you wish, another beneficiary's.

Q. What determines the amount of the payments I will receive?

A. Your payments depend on the size of your gift and the age when payments begin. The rate is fixed and the payments are guaranteed for life. Then, at your death, the gift portion is received by Barium for use as you designated or where most needed.

Q. Is there a difference between a commercial annuity (available from life insurance companies and other financial institutions) and a gift annuity?

A. Yes, a commercial annuity is an investment. A gift annuity is a gift with payments made in return. Commercial annuity rates are higher, so making a charitable gift should be the central motive for taking out a gift annuity.

Q. Are there tax benefits?

A. Yes. A portion of what you give to Barium Springs is deductible as a charitable gift, and a large portion of your payments each year is exempt from income tax.

Q. Can stocks be used to fund a gift annuity?

A. Yes. Many people fund gift annuities with stocks rather than cash. Often the tax benefits are even greater if the stocks have appreciated in value.

If you give a low-yield stock, you will probably receive a higher rate of payment with a gift annuity.

Q. Is the gift annuity a part of your estate?

A. No. The gift part goes directly to Barium Springs, thus avoiding estate taxes and probate costs.

Q. What if I have more questions?

A. If you think a gift annuity could help you accomplish your financial goals and you have more questions, call me at (704) 872-4157, or write me anytime. I will be happy to discuss our gift annuity program with you, and at no obligation. The agreement may also be completed by mail, if you wish.

I also have a free booklet, "Those Puzzling Gift Annuities," which may help answer your questions. Request your free copy below.

are taking on for that youngster's life is very great. This is also where what we offer that youngster of ourselves is critical, and every strength of our personality may be needed by him. Change is most likely to take place for any person when they feel secure, not when emotions like anxiety, anger, and confusion are most prominent. Old behaviors will ultimately be abandoned only when something better is learned to replace it. The youngster who is used to getting the teacher's attention by yelling in class will only stop that when he becomes sure that raising his hand will also result in attention.

The process takes place within a context, too; the context is the nature of the relationship between the youngster and the helper. The more that respect, understanding and caring characterize that relationship, the better are the chances for real help. If the relationship is cold, rejecting, or insulting, it is unlikely that the helper can become a positive force.

In reality, this relationship and the interactions within it are an exchange, and both emerge changed. Ideally, both experience positive growth; the youngster by taking help or strength from a person he believes in, and the staff by having given of himself and been open to what each interaction can help him become. The opportunities for development of self are numerous in this business of residential child care. We undoubtedly learn more about ourselves than we are consciously aware of, and even those things we could acknowledge are too numerous to discuss completely. However, many very "special" opportunities for us to accept our responsibility are created in our interactions with youngsters.

We try to teach youngsters the importance of honesty. No where can we learn more about our responsibility to know ourselves. When a youngster has experienced a world which has been unfaithful, he learns to expect it. He also learns to sense it, and often we as staff members find that youngsters here perceive our motives, our feelings, our strengths and our weaknesses with disconcerting accuracy. If there is inconsistency between what we offer to them, and what we are capable of, if we are not real, we will only confirm their view of the world as a hostile place. Instead we must be honest and real enough to help change their view.

We try to teach youngsters courage. No where do we learn more about our own fears and the courage with which we face them. Courage is not the absence of fears, it is the ability to face them. If we cannot admit that we too have fears, a youngster cannot believe that we have the strength to help him face his own.

We try to teach youngsters to take risks, to expand their experiences, to try new things. No where do we learn more about taking risks than the ones we take by investing ourselves in youngsters who may not respond. Another staff member once read to me a journal entry they made just after a youngster ran away. It talked about how hard it would be to invest oneself again in a relationship when you knew it could end "just like that". If that is true, and it is, how much harder must it be for a voungster who isn't very sure of himself anyway. If we can't take that risk first, and then over and over again, we can't be of help.

We try to teach youngsters to be mature, responsible individuals. In turn we learn from them that "mature and grownup" doesn't mean losing our creative spirit, losing our joy in life, losing our interest in learning. If it does, they say to us, they don't want to grow up.

We try to teach youngsters respect for themselves and others. No where do we learn more about whether we really respect another person than in helping him make choices about his own life. We learn to distinguish between doing something for a person and believing he is capable of doing things for himself. Kindness and sympathy and pity can be misplaced and humiliating, and the youngster who challenges those motives in us is rightly challenging whether we believe he is as capable as we say he is.

Change for us, just as for a youngster, may not be painless. But accepting change results in growth; continuing to grow develops strength.

I read a story once, about two women who spoke different languages but became good friends and developed a sense of communication despite the language barrier. Always upon departing, one woman spoke the same phrase in her native tongue. After a long time, her friend recorded the phrase and had it translated. The compliment which the other woman always gave her was "I will return, for I like myself when I am with you." That must be one of the best compliments that could be given.

For us to enable another person to like himself better because of the kind of person we are must be one of the best ways of giving help. What we do and say to another says as much about us as it does about the client. The challenge of that should be a source of renewal and increased effectiveness rather than a burden.

High Honor To Barium Regent

W. Earle Frazier, Executive Director of the Home and President of the N.C. Child Care Association, presents to Dr. Jane Gregory Marrow of Tarboro, the Association's Trustee of the Year award for 1983. Her influence on the programs and policies of the Home the past six years have been truly outstanding. Congratulations, Jane, from your fellow regents and from the Barium youngsters and staff for a richly deserved honor.

Youth Activities Program

In recent years readers of the Messenger have contributed most generously to our Youth Activities Program. These gifts were used to send youngsters to summer camps and to provide for a broader on-campus supervised program.

We did not request this special help from friends last year because your generosity in previous years enabled us to build a surplus in this fund. But the surplus is about gone and we again request the involvement of church groups and generous friends to help with summer needs.

Our special project this summer is to upgrade outdoor recreation facilities. Playgrounds need reworking, tennis courts must be resurfaced, ball courts need refinishing. Also a soft ball field must be prepared for our new pre-adolescent center. Other areas need to be graded and surfaced.

This effort requires extra funds not provided in our regular budget. We believe you will agree that a sound supervised recreation program is essential to meet effectively the needs of our youngsters. Thank you for responding.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A Way To Say You Care

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that vou care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

A Presbyterian Family Service Agency — Owned and Operated by The Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., Synod of North Carolina

Vol. 60

BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA, JULY-AUGUST 1983

No. 4

BARIUM SPRINGS: SYNOD'S FAMILY SERVICE AGENCY

W. Earle Frazier, ACSW Executive Director We are pleased to print our Fourth Annual Program issue outlining the services of Barium and how you can avail yourself of these services.

Please note on the chart and listings below that many people are involved in providing this service of the Synod of North Carolina, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

You might also note that the four programs outlined are the same as in our last program issue. This has been a year of evaluating and refining existing programs in our continuing effort to offer services worthy of our church.

We would welcome the opportunity to interpret these programs in more detail to any interested group.

"Providing residential care in response to defined needs in co-operation with other private and public agencies in North Carolina . . ."

The Adolescent Center

Ms. Becky Armentrout
Director

Program Philosophy

The Adolescent Center seeks to meet the special needs of troubled teenagers and their families. Residential group care is provided for teenagers who are experiencing more than usual difficulty in their home, community, and school. Counseling, planning and support services are provided for the families of teenagers in residence. In each case individual planning is done with each family to accomplish the following goals:

 Stabilize the youngster's and family's situation as quickly as possible to make sound planning possible.

 Enhance the development of trusting relationships between staff team members and families, and develop meaningful relationships between the youngsters and both peers and adults.

 Offer help to the family and youngsters in clarifying basic problems and developing strategies for resolving and/or coping with these problems.

Family and/or legal custodian involvement is particularly important. The direction taken may be toward reuniting the family or toward defining whatever options will best meet the youngster's and family's defined needs.

Program Structure

Services to youngsters and to their families are provided in each cottage by a team of skilled staff. Each team consists of one social worker, two child care workers, and one teacher. Team members share responsibility for child care programs and family service plans, and operation of the cottage within agency guidelines. The campus operates on a year-round, full time basis except that children observe major holidays and a two-week summer vacation in their homes away from campus. Additional weekend visits are planned individually. The Adolescent Center expects families having custody of children to share in the cost of services according to their ability to pay. Fees are individually negotiated on this basis, and can be adjusted in the event of unusual circumstances.

All youngsters attend the licensed, private school on campus where instruction is geared to the performance level of the individual. Experiencing success in school helps youngsters who are behind make significant academic gains and realize their academic potențial. Recreational opportunities are available on campus and through community resources. Special group projects and activities are encouraged. Each cottage group also receives a weekly work assignment.

Opportunities for worship and Christian Education are also a regular part of the cottage program. Cottage groups usually attend church together on Sunday mornings, but individual religious preferences will be accommodated.

Each element of the campus and cottage program is designed to serve the broader purpose of educating and preparing individuals to live satisfying and productive lives. The group model of care emphasizes that relationships within the peer group and with adults can promote stability and facilitate achievement of goals.

INFORMATION AND REFERRALS

The Pre-Adolescent Center

Eddie Beach Director

The Goals

The Pre-Adolescent Center is a joint program with Alexander Children's Center in Charlotte, another Presbyterian agency. Residential services are offered for up to 24 children, ages 10 to 13, with significant social, emotional, learning, and behavioral problems. Through residential care the Center offers families support by providing a time-out from stress, help in identifying and reaching goals, and an opportunity to make decisions about permanence for the child. We seek to help each child:

• Develop and maintain family identity to the degree possible.

Develop a sense of belonging and security.

 Increase faith, confidence, and trust in self, in others, and in God.

 Improve competence in self-care, social, academic, work, and recreation skills.

• Prepare for adolescence and the changes it will bring.

 Increase strengths and better manage problems in order to move to a more normal setting.

The Program

Upon acceptance to the Pre-Adolescent Center, each family and the Center's staff develop a written plan of care. This plan establishes goals and defines responsibilities, serving as a type of "road map" for the placement. The Center's program is the context in which children, families, and staff implement these plans.

The Pre-Adolescent Center strives to be a helping community, in which children and adults work, play, and worship together, learning from one another. Each child lives in one of three cottages, with a maximum of eight in a group. Two skilled cottage counselors provide daily nurture, care and guidance. Regular routines help to communicate reasonable expectations and to provide stability. At group meetings children plan activities, discuss values, and work through problems with staff guidance.

A student initially attends the campus school which is state-approved for grades four through eight. Teachers, certified in special education, have no more than eight students. Each student's course of instruction is planned and implemented individually, and progress is reviewed regularly. Public school is considered for children showing the potential to succeed there.

A trained social worker provides each child with regular therapy sessions to help him resolve personal and family issues. The social worker also has regular conferences with the parents to review progress of the placement and to provide counseling. Psychological and psychiatric services are provided through Alexander Children's Center.

Activities stress personal and social growth. Through work assignments, children take care of the cottage and grounds, and learn useful skills and safety with tools. Work varies from helping the cook to mowing grass, from washing the van to planting flowers. On campus we have a large playground, a gym, a swimming pool, and acres of woodland. In nearby Statesville we take part in YMCA, 4-H, and scouting activities. In addition to attending Sunday worship, religious faith is discussed in the cottage and at school.

Parents and custodians arrange home visits one weekend per month and for periods when the campus is closed. Parents having custody of children are expected to share in the cost of the service to the best of their ability.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A Way To Say You Care

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

"Providing and/or promoting family life education and counseling in harmony with other Synod efforts to help families . . ."

PRESBYTERIAN PERSONAL AND FAMILY LIFE CENTER

Background

Historically through its ministry of pastoral care, our church has sought to help people live creatively as they face many difficulties in daily living. This ministry provides both counseling and education for living in a complex and often confusing world. Our church also realizes people often need more extensive pastoral care than an individual church can provide.

Thus, the people of Wilmington Presbytery and Barium Springs Home for Children, recognizing the need for a service ministry to support the work of the local church in its effort to help individuals and families, established the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Denter at Wilmington and Jacksonville, North Carolina.

The Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center is now in its ifth year of providing the following services:

Education
Individual Counseling
Marital Counseling
Adolescent Counseling
Parent and Family Counseling
Premarital Counseling

Group Counseling and Education

Consultation and Pastoral Care for Churches and Pastors In 1979 the Center provided some 407 hours of counseling, education, and consultation throughout the Wilmington Presbytery rea. By 1980 that service had doubled to 881 hours and had exceeded 2,000 by 1981. Indications are that in 1983, more than 2,500 hours of service will be provided for persons in need.

Although the number of persons being served has risen greatly, he costs of providing services has only risen moderately. Significantly, the persons receiving service (both counseling and education) have shown exceptional responsibility by assuming more than 2% of the costs for service. The remainder of costs are met by hurches and the Presbytery budgeting monies to be used to purhase services (such as pastoral care for pastors, educational vents, or consultation to churches in the field of pastoral care) and elp provide counseling for individuals who realistically cannot assume the full costs of the service they receive.

Also, a modest endowment has been established to help in the ame manner. Because of the structure and management of the enter it was able to meet 99% of its budget in fiscal year 1981, xceed its budget in 1982, and thus far into 1983. This solid footing as enabled the Center to provide substantial service from a tradition nat can emphasize service on a daily basis.

The Future

As we work in the fifth year of service, we feel the future may be aced optimistically. The continuance of the cooperative relationship etween the various church courts and agencies that make the inistry possible is a source of great pleasure that daily emphasizes to value and possibilities of the connectional system. Individual hurch Sessions, Wilmington Presbytery, the Synod of North Carona, and its service agency, Barium Springs Home for Children have II worked together to create a solid foundation from which to reach ut and help God's people.

In addition to this foundation, a consistent management structure has been established that insures the service being available to tose in need. And finally, it is a source of great pleasure to know that its ministry is carried out within the context of and commitment to the Christian Faith. It is a clear goal of the Center to strive daily to be a honorable expression of the church and her servants who truly are for other persons.

The Center's staff - David McInnis (Director), George Slaton (Asociate), Ann Thacker (Staff Counselor), and Susan Williamson (Adinistrative Assistant) are pleased to be a part of this service by arium Springs Home for Children, and dedicated to providing the ighest level of help possible.

The main office of the Presbyterian Personal and Family Life Center is in the Delgado Presbyterian Church, 1950 Moss Street, Wilmington. (Mail Address: P. O. Box 4543, Wilmington, N. C. 28406). Appointments may be scheduled between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. (Monday through Thursday) and 8:30 a.m. to Noon on Friday. Our telephone number: (919) 762-4378.

Our Jacksonville Office is in the First Presbyterian Church, 400 Bayshore Boulevard, North. Appointments may be scheduled by calling (919) 455-2434 between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Rev. George Slaton, the counselor for this office, is in Jacksonville only on Thursdays.

DAY CARE PROGRAM

Philosophy and Goals

The philosophy of the Family and Child Development Center is that all children have certain needs, and can benefit from a comprehensive developmental program to meet these needs. Our goals are:

- Encourage self-confidence, spontaneity, curiosity, and selfdiscipline which will assist in the development of the child's social and emotional health.
- Enhance the child's mental processes and skills with particular attention to conceptual and verbal skills.
- Establish patterns and expectations of success for the child, which will create a climate of confidence for his present and future learning efforts and overall development.
- Encourage good health habits and development of physical abilities.
- Endeavor to increase the ability of the child and his family to relate to each other in a loving and supporting manner.
- Enhance a sense of dignity and self-worth within the child and his family.

Program Structure

Each weekday 104 children (infants, two-year olds, three-year olds, four-year olds, and school-age children) engage in a variety of activities to enrich their world. The center is presently operating at capacity enrollment with a waiting list.

The program is designed to meet the interests and needs of the children. Activities promote interaction with others but also leave the child free to play alone and develop special skills and interests. Time is spent outdoors and in the gym to develop physical skills. Field trips are planned to enhance the child's knowledge of his world.

In addition to serving children in the Troutman-Statesville-Mooresville area, the center serves as a model for day care workers to come and observe and take part in workshops, and training provided by the center.

The Day Care Program receives support from the parents of the children, the Iredell County Department of Social Services, the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, the North Carolina Food Services Program, and from Barium Springs Home for Children.*

Parent participation and education is also an important part of the Day Care Program. Monthly meetings and workshops are scheduled. Parents are encouraged to visit the Center and watch their child on the closed circuit television system.

*Private family fees are: $35 per week for children under 3; $30 per week for children over 3; $15 per week for school age children.

SPECIAL SERVICES PROGRAM

Philosophy and Goals

The Special Services Program is designed to meet the growing demand for early intervention in the lives of children with special developmental needs. The Special Services Program operates within the Family and Child Development Center structure and adds one to-one developmental programming and small group instruction. This program is an addition to the existing potential for parent group and para-professional workshops offered by the Family and Child Development Center. The program is primarily designed to individually assess the needs of children 0-5 and provide program instruction in identified areas of delayed development. Our goals are:

- To help alleviate problem areas of development before a chilireaches public school age.
- To mainstream children when possible into the normal classroon setting.
- To educate parents as to the nature of their child's problem and methods of appropriate developmental stimulation.

Program Structure

All children enrolled in the Family and Child Development Cente are eligible for the Special Services Program without additional cost Parents who wish to participate in the Special Services Program without enrolling their child in the Family and Child Development Center are charged $15.00 per hour. Parents and para-professions workshops are charged according to the cost of materials per workshop.

Parent participation is a primary goal of the Special Service Program. For those parents whose children are enrolled in other da care facilities, consultation is available through direct consultatio to day care agencies.

Our program operates in the spirit of "total involvement". We fee there is no room for competition in the delivery of services to childrewith special needs. By working together with the "total involvement method in mind, we are able to utilize all available services to mee the needs of preschoolers, regardless of their placement in the community.

HOMECOMING ATTENDANCE GOOD

About 350 alumni and friends met the week-end of August 6-7 to reminisce about "when I was here" and to make plans to strengthen the Alumni Association. The cookout at the pool was enoyed by all. Appetites had certainly not diminished with age!

Alumni Rev. Larry Ellis delivered the Homecoming Sermon at Little Joes. Prior to the morning service a number of alumni enjoyed an hour of special fellowship and sharing of ideas with Executive Director Earle Frazier.

After the usual delicious Sunday dinner in the Dining Hall, the alumni re-elected the following officers: Paul Barnes of High Point, President; Joe Ben Gibbs of Troutman, Vice-President; and Alice Clendenin of Statesville, Secretary-Treasurer. Highlight of the afternoon business session was the raising of $6,005 in cash and pledges to renovate the old print shop for a Memorabilia Room.

(In subsequent issues of the Messenger we will give more details about the Memorabilia Room and also about the History of the Home being written by several alumni. If you wish to contribute please send your gift or pledge to the Home and mark it Memorabilia Fund. Your gift will be tax deductible.)

HELP NEEDED FOR TRANSPORTATION

Our Pre-Adolescent Center, which opened in April, 1982, continues to grow! Staff for a third cottage is being hired to provide for these special children.

Also, plans are underway to convert Howard Cottage into a Preparation for Independent Living Center. This program will enable older boys and girls in the Adolescent Center to develop skills for making it on their own in life.

These expansions of our services, and our existing needs, require three additional vehicles—a van and two our-door cars. You can help by making a special gift. Please clip out the form pelow and send your gift today! Maybe you have a car you would like to give!

LIFE INCOME FOR SELF/SPOUSE PERMANENT HELP FOR TROUBLED YOUTH

We are happy to announce an increase in the rates of payment for Barium Springs Home for Children gift annuities. Rates for most new gift annuities are now higher than ever, making them an especially attractive way to give in support of our programs. Read below about how one couple used a gift annuity to reach more than one important goal.

Martin and Anna Smith felt strongly about giving and personal financial planning. When they learned about Barium Springs Home for Children gift annuities, they realized they could give now and also establish lifetime income to help secure their own financial future.

Since they owned stock which has appreciated considerably over the years, they decided to give this to set up their gift annuity. Had they sold the stock themselves, they would have had to pay tax on the capital gains immediately. But by exchanging the stocks for a gift annuity, they avoided payment of capital gains tax.

When they gave their securities, they received a contract guaranteeing them annual payments for as long as either one of them lives. Most of the annual payments are free from income taxation. In addition, they receive an income tax deduction for a portion of the amount placed in their gift annuity.

You can start a gift annuity with any amount of $5,000 or more and the entire transaction can be conveniently completed by mail. After requesting an application which you return with your gift, we forward to you a signed agreement. It's that simple, and payments will be annually or semi-annually according to the terms agreed upon.

The amount of payment is based on your age at the time you establish the gift annuity. Payments on a joint annuity are based on your age and your spouse's age. Older annuitants receive a higher rate than younger ones. For example, under the new rates, a 65-year-old receives annual payments of 7.3 percent of the gift, while a 75-year-old receives 8.2 percent.

Once the rate for a particular gift annuity is set, it never changes. But many people set up more than one annuity. Thanks to higher rates, now may be an ideal time to give for your first—or second or third—gift annuity.

For more information about this "double-duty" way of giving to benefit the children and families to whom we minister, send for the complimentary booklet offered below. If you provide your birthdate, I'll be able to give you specific information about your rate of payment.

PRE-ADOLESCENT CENTER CONTINUES GROWTH

The end of August brought the beginning of "full-day" school for the students at the Pre-Adolescent Center, after a half day of classes during the summer. It also marked the opening of the Center's third cottage—Johnston—and the addition of a third classroom and teacher. Students are enjoying new courses including Vocational Education, Drama, Public Speaking, and Music. Enrichment classes have included the study of honey bees and deaf sign language.

BACK IN SCHOOL

Here's how one class expresses it!

School Days

The best thing about school is the final bell, P.E. at the pool, cigarettes at break, Jimmie Lou's meatballs, smootching behind the bushes, starting arguments in class.

The worst thing about school is cleaning up three times a week, study halls where you can't talk, losing your pencil, lousy short five minute breaks, people telling lies on other people who didn't do it.

My advice to you if you're new is bring that pencil to class, do that homework and do it neat, don't talk back to nobody and be a thoroughly good little boy or girl so that your stay at this delightful school will be long.

English Class of '8

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A Way To Say You Care

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that vou care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.

WILLS SEMINAR AT BARI	UM	A HIT!

A Wills Seminar conducted by Charles L. Kirby, Barium's Planned Giving Director, and Robert F. Sharpe, well known consultant to nonprofit organizations, was well received by members of the Barium staff.

"It really set me to thinking," one member affirmed. "I appreciate the information I received and wish my husband could have been there," acknowledged another. "I think they did a real good job," was the evaluation of another.

A Wills Seminar is a new service the Home is now pleased to offer to any group—large or small—who would like to learn more about the importance of a will, what is involved, and how to get started. The panel for such a seminar would consist of Mr. Kirby and a local attorney and/or trust officer.

Please contact Charles Kirby (704) 872-4157 if you are interested in a Wills Seminar for your church. There is no charge.

BARIUM MESSENGER

PUBLICATION OF BARIUM SPRINGS HOME FOR CHILDREN

A Presbyterian Family Service Agency – Owned and Operated by The Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., Synod of North Carolina

Vol. 60

BARIUM SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA, NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1983

NO. 6

REFLECTIONS ON THE FIRST YEAR

Rochelle Haimes Campus Administrator

The Christmas season is usually such a busy time that we often approach the New Year feeling both joyous and tired. Before this holiday season ends, I have taken some time to reflect upon the year past, to understand what has been accomplished and to think about what lies ahead.

On September 1, 1982, I joined the staff of Barium Springs as the Campus Administrator. This was a time to return to North Carolina, to resume personal and professional friendships, and to become a part of the Barium community under Earle Frazier's leadership. I approached the first year in this new position with much anticipation and with some anxiety. There was no predecessor, no one's "shoes to fill." On the other hand, the success of a new position is closely connected to the first person who fills the job. With this in mind, I share these reflections on the first year.

I have appreciated the resources of this agency and my work has been greatly supported and enhanced by them. Among those resources, I count the people with whom I work, the dedicated and creative staff throughout the campus. They have been a source of inspiration and challenge to me. We have learned that our differences can be appreciated and that what we have in common is prevailing. Ralph Waldo Emerson is credited with the remark that "God evidently does not intend us all to be rich, or powerful or great, but He does intend us all to be friends." The support of the Board of Regents and of the Church enables us to have adequate resources in our programs and to provide quality service and care to families and children. The campus itself is a rich resource to house and care for children in a variety of ways.

I have enjoyed becoming a part of the long tradition of Barium Springs. This has been a special opportunity for me to be connected to a rich past, a vital present and, though undefined, a future of responsive mission. Our programs have changed, are changing and will, no doubt, continue to change as we learn each year how to better offer our service.

The variety of this experience keeps me perpetually challenged and, on many days, very tired-but, in a satisfied way. The three campus programs and the maintenance operation are four distinct parts of my work and of my attention. I spend time at the Day Care Center and watch the delight on young faces as little fingers, dipped in mud, make prints on a page. I see the progress of children with special needs and listen to the staff plan for a meeting with parents. I share the excitement of the Pre-Adolescent Center staff as the third and final cottage opens. I feel relieved when the staff has worked hard to assist a family get help for their child who needed a few weeks in a Chapel Hill hospital. I am proud that we are

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Why can't Christmas come during Springs' renewal—or in the splendor of Fall? Why must we celebrate Christmas in the bleakness of Winter? But then, why not?

Why not dwell on the human spirit while nature is dormant? Why not remember—and anticipate—joys, kindnesses, encouragements, and generosities and permit these memories to renew and beautify our spirits during nature's recess? Why not truly celebrate Christmas and know once again that true meaning comes to our living through—and only through—all our relationships with family, friends and neighbors?

Our wish is that your spirit will know both the renewal of Spring and the splendor of Fall as you share Christmas with family, friends and neighbors—and that you overflow with gratitude for these who give expression to God's caring for you.

ADOLESCENT CENTER FEATURED AT BOARD MEETING

The Board of Regents met in regular session on November 13-14 at the Home. Regents first heard reports from staff and then divided into groups of 2-3 for visits with each cottage team and group in the Adolescent Center. Visiting continued over dinner with staff and youth in the main dining room.

In business session, the Board acted on: (1) an offer to purchase six acres of land, (2) recommended actions from auditors, (3) recommendations from Administration/Development Committee regarding the printing and mailing of the Barium Messenger, and (4) a plan to sell a farm in Cabarrus County. Reports also were given by the Program Committee and the Endowment Trustees.

Following an extended Executive Session, Secretary John Alexander relayed to Earle Frazier, Executive Director, the Regent's pleasure and excitement over the current activities and programs of the Home. They were particularly pleased over the increased population (Day Care, 107; Pre-Adolescent Center, 20; Adolescent Center, 50). Frazier was instructed to implement a program for teaching typing in the Adolescent Center School.

The Board adjourned at 11:30 a.m. to meet again on April 8-9, 1984. The following is a list of Regents:

SPECIAL THANKS ...

... To Julius Blum, Inc. of Lowesville for the use of an IBM 5120 Computer for two years. This will be a big help in keeping our records up-to-date, and will enable us to mail your receipts more promptly.

Our youth, staff and regents are most appreciative.

_____ THANKS FOR HELPING _____

How many Messengers do you receive? 0, 1, or 3! We try to keep addresses current but we get several hundred back each time we mail... because of wrong addresses or no forwarding address.

For each Barium Messenger returned by the Post Office we are charged 25¢. Total cost to date this year is $1,285. Help us to eliminate this expense by promptly advising us of address changes. Thank You.

Sharing Through a Will

Christmas is the season when we celebrate the greatest Gift of all by giving personal expressions of our affection to friends and loved ones. For many of us, the Christmas season is also a time when we look beyond ourselves to the needs of others, by making a special effort to support worthy causes and institutions, such as Barium Springs Home for Children.

What we are really doing when we make gifts in such a spirit is sharing. We give because we want to share our blessings with others. One of the best ways in which we can share is by having a properly-prepared will. A "will" is simply a document which specifies exactly how we want our possessions—personal property, real estate, securities, cash, etc.—distributed at the time of our death. Having a will gives us the right to distribute possessions (called our "estate") as we choose, to the persons and/or worthy causes we select.

For example, Mike and Ann have been married for ten years and are the parents of two young children. Because they want to provide for their children and each other in the best way possible, Mike and Ann have separate wills. Their wills describe in identical terms such things as naming a guardian for their minor children and the disposition of their jointly-owned possessions, such as their house and lot.

Mike's will specifies that his automobile and any securities which may be in a small investment account, both of which are in his name alone, are to be left to Ann in the event of his death. Ann has similar property which she wills to Mike. This type of will is called a "reciprocal" will, and is one example of the ways in which wills can be tailored to meet the particular wishes and needs of individuals and their loved ones.

Your will allows you to share in other ways, too. Your gift of a portion of your estate to Barium Springs Home for Children will help us meet our future needs. Such a gift, called a "bequest", can be made in several ways: (1) A percentage of your total estate, (2) a fixed amount, and (3) the "residue" of your estate. The latter simply means that after you have attended to the needs of your loved ones and friends, the "rest and residue" of your estate is given to the cause or institution which you select.

Bequests can take a number of other forms, and decisions regarding which is best for you should be made only after talking with your attorney. If you would like further information regarding planning your will, send for the complimentary booklet, "How To Protect Your Rights With A Will," we are offering.

NEWS FROM OUR ALUMNI

A Memorial gift in memory of Mrs. Myrtle Austin Speed of Etobicoke, Ontario, who died on April 4 has been received. Mrs. Speed was a Barium resident around the turn of the century. She is survived by her husband, Mr. P. D. Speed of 15 Greencoat Road, Etobicoke, Ontario, M9C 2T7 Canada; and her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Torgis and family.

We have received word that Miss Miriam Sanders, Barium Class of 1935, and Flora McDonald Class of 1939, died on March 9, 1983. She was a retired employee of the state and at the time of her death was a resident at St. Luke's Retirement Home in Raleigh.

Mrs. Helen Brown Coble, who was a Barium resident in the mid 1920s, recently died in Alamance County Hospital after two weeks of declining health. Survivors are her husband, Glenn M. Coble of the home, a son, Terry G. Coble of Alamance, and two grand-children.

Another installment of the alumni "History Booklet"—a section of the years 1933-1943 by Charles Barrett—is now available.

Those who paid for the Booklet at Homecoming may pick up this second section at the Barium Business Office or send a self-addressed large envelope (9½ x 12 plus 63¢ postage) to Paul Barnes, 3906 Carroll Street, High Point, N. C. 27263, or Alice Clendenin, 1510 Kenmore Drive, Statesville, N. C. 28677.

If you did not get a copy of the first section of the "History" at Homecoming the total cost of both sections is $3.00 (plus 86¢ postage) and may be obtained with the same procedure as above.

We have learned that Mrs. Rebecca Woods Gentry, formerly of Statesville and a resident of Presbyterian Home, High Point, died November 9. She was 104 years old and a member of Oakland Presbyterian Church where she taught Sunday School for many years. Mrs. Gentry served as a Houseparent at Barium for several years.

REFLECTIONS ON THE FIRST YEAR

involved in a joint venture with Alexander Children's Center. I anticipate with excitement the opening of the Preparation for Adult Living cottage at the Adolescent Center. I commend the staff for meeting with a parent who is in prison and for many other helping activities in which they are involved on their own time. I see and appreciate the efforts of the maintenance staff who never rest and who always greet their work with good spirits.

These experiences may seem different but they have a common bond. We share a common belief that families and children can change and that our efforts have meaning. We may work on different parts of the campus and our methods may vary but we are learning from each other. The end result of what we do seems more similar. And, we had two occasions last year—at Christmas and in August-when all the staff came together for a time of meeting, of eating, and of learning about what we do in the different areas of the campus. We have also had some times of training together and have used each other as resources.

One day a call came to the agency with the request to talk to someone "in charge." When questioned, the caller wanted to speak to the someone "in charge" of the gym! I have learned to appreciate this part of campus administration—the coordination of facilities used by Church and civic groups, after first scheduling the campus programs. How nice to thank the group of young teenagers whose Church league had used the gymnasium for a basketball tournament. These young people has proudly collected $64.92 and, each one of the twenty five young people had signed the Thank You card. There are frequent calls for information about the agency and requests for advice about what the children may need as a special donation or project from a Church group. What a delight to meet people in the churches and local communities.

I have been grateful for the commitment Barium Springs has to the professional community and to the development of the staff. I have been proud to represent this agency as we meet with others from private and public agencies in community efforts. I have been mindful of the support and resources that give staff the opportunity for training and development experiences. As we grow and expand our skills, we increase our ability to help families and children do the same.

As I look back upon the first year, there are some irritations, too. First, my own impatience. I would like to know everything about Barium Springs, past and present, so that I can be the best possible resource to the campus programs. But, I do know this takes time. well beyond one year; I will put "patience" on my list of 1984 resolutions. Second, I do miss the less frequent and less direct encounters with families and children. I find as many ways as possible to know some of those in our programs but, have put aside the direct work. Finally, I do not enjoy some of the days that need to be fifty hours long. Earle Frazier often tells me, "You surely have an interesting job!" There are some days when I tell him, "This job is too interesting!"

The sum of these reflections is to feel great satisfaction at this unique opportunity: always varied, ever challenging, usually rewarding, mostly filled with humor, occasionally frustrating and always very interesting. On to next year. . . .

STAFF NEWS

Sara Kent has moved to Martinsville, Virginia to join her husband, John, who transfered his employment there. She plans to continue her consultation and training activity. Her contribution to the Center was substantial and her good work will continue through her replacement.

Becky Armentrout resigned in mid-September as the Director of the Adolescent Center. Ms. Armentrout has accepted a position as Director of the Iredell Center for Handicapped Persons in Statesville.

Silas B. Langfitt has resigned his position as Social Worker of the Grannis Cottage team to join the staff of Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina. Mr. Langfitt will serve that agency as the Director of Social Services for the Thomasville area. He and his family will reside on the Mills Home campus in Thomasville. Mr. Langfitt was a member of the Barium Springs staff since 1971.

*****

We are appreciative of the years of service to Barium Springs given by the recently-departed staff. We wish them good fortune in their new professional pursuits.

THANKS FOR THE CAR!!

We are most grateful to Mr. and Mrs. John Foushee of Chapel Hill for the gift of a 1971 Chrysler with very low mileage. This gift was in response to a notice in the September/October MESSENGER. We still need either two additional four-door cars or a van and one four-door to be used in our campus programs. Can you help? Thanks again, John and Ola Maie Foushee.

MEMORIAL GIFTS: A Way To Say You Care

Do you have a friend or loved one you wish to remember in a special way? Barium Springs Home for Children can help you honor that certain person through our Memorial and Remembrance Program.

The program is a valuable source of income to help meet operating expenses. At the same time, it is a thoughtful way to say to a friend, relative or bereaved family that you care.

HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

MEMORIAL GIFTS are acknowledged immediately by a personal card to the bereaved family. No mention is made of the gift amount. Many find this "living memorial" more meaningful than sending flowers.

REMEMBRANCE GIFTS may be sent in honor of a birth, birthday, anniversary, graduation, illness, recovery or occasions such as Mother's Day or Father's Day. They are promptly acknowledged. The amount is not mentioned.
